"I would like to wish Mr. Raimondi great success," said the Rev. Fred Fullerton, pastor of the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, "but the license is not in the best interest of the community."

The Rev. John Swanson, pastor of the Union Congregational Church of Wollaston, suggested that a wine and beer license would lower property values and lower the quality of life in the neighborhood.

"It's abundantly clear to me," said Ward 5 City Councilor Doug Gutro, "that residents value the store. I've found that it serves people all over the community but the vast majority of neighbors are against it."

Council Wants White Caps On Faulty Hydrants

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Firefighters and the public will be able to spot a faulty fire hydrant by the color of its cap under a proposal adopted Monday by the City Council.

Councillors want white caps on faulty hydrants in tandem with other fire departments, such as Boston, which use white markings to identify non-working hydrants.

The white topper on a fire hydrant will warn firefighters that the hydrant won't work in an emergency due to no water access, low water or low pressure.

According to supporters, the markings are essential to alert back-up firefighters and secondary responders working in unfamiliar sectors.

"If they see a white cap, they know it's out of service," said Ward 2 Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi.

At Monday's meeting, the full council acted on information provided to the Public Safety Committee last week by Fire Chief Tim Pettinelli and the firefighters' union president Ernie Arienti who indicated that there are some 100 faulty hydrants in the city.

Chairman Jay Davis said his committee would check on the progress of the project in 60 days and also plans on meeting with Department of Public Works officials even sooner, later this month.

Davis also commended fire officials and union officials for working together calling their cooperation "refreshing."

Committee Issues First Report On Smart Zoning

The Mayor's Smart Zoning Committee recommends new regulations on fence heights, boat storage, the number and size of satellite dishes, parking, and boarding houses, according to an interim report distributed this week to the City Council which was asked to consider the Committee's recommendations.

"This Interim Report represents the first phase of our work," according to the committee's statement which notes that initial goal of the committee was to address many of the local neighborhood "blight" problems. A few of the committee's recommendations are described briefly below:

The committee considered Special Permits/Site

Plan review as the most important issue and recommended considerable expansion of the review process presently required.

While acknowledging that "Quincy is a seaside community," the committee also recommends that recreational vehicles and boats "not be allowed to be placed in front of the building line anymore than 72 hours" and, then, only if the vehicle is properly registered.

Once an owner of a single family dwelling rents rooms to four or more persons, the structure shall be considered a rooming and subject to applicable regulations.

Home occupations would be allowed provided the business does not affect a residential neighborhood through traffic or signage or involve more than three employees on site.

Fences shall be limited to six feet and satellite dishes to two dishes that are not more than three feet in diameter. In addition, parking requirements shall be tied directly to the number of bedrooms proposed for each project.

City councillors received the report at this week's meeting and did not discuss the Smart Zoning Committee's findings or recommendations.

The Committee was established by Mayor William Phelan in spring of 2006 because "new development, changes in human behavior and the need for more code enforcement were having a negative impact on the quality of life in Quincy's neighborhoods."

The committee began meeting last April, and have met five times since. The report notes that not all recommendations were approved unanimously by the committee whose members are the following:

Planning Director Dennis Harrington, Building Inspector Jay Duca, Angus

Jennings, David Murphy, City Solicitor Monica Conyngham, then ZBA Chair Jack Garland, ZBA member David Portesi and Planning Board Chair Robert Harnais, City Councillors Kevin Coughlin, Joseph Finn and Leo Kelly were invited to attend and participate and did, according to the report.

The case for consolidating your mortgage and home equity line into one loan right now

You had a great rate on your mortgage and didn't want to touch that. But there was something you needed or wanted money for. And adjustable home equity line rates were low-low-low. So you took one out. Now that line keeps adjusting up-up-up. You're feeling the squeeze and suffering with the squeeze. You are not alone.

If you're worrying about where rates are going next and simply want to have the same mortgage payment every single month, consider consolidating your original mortgage and that home equity line into one new locked-in fixed rate 30-year loan while those rates are still near historic lows. Come see us and we'll help you figure out if consolidating is right for you. Or call Richard Coleman or Angela Blanchard at 617-471-0750.

Encouraging Start For Koch

Tom Koch appears to have gotten off to an encouraging start in his bid for the mayor's office.

Anything can happen between now and the November election.

But what happened last week, Koch would be happy to see happen again.

It was his first fundraiser since he resigned as city park commissioner to challenge incumbent William Phelan.

It was held at the Quincy Neighborhood Club with an estimated 275 attending, a turnout Koch says "exceeded my expectations and was very encouraging."

"We did very well financially," he added.

"I would say $70,000."

That would put him almost half-way to the $150,000 political watchers say is the minimum sized war chest needed to wage an effective campaign for mayor. Not bad for the first shot. Ticket range was $125, $250, $500.

Koch has another fundraiser coming up April 12 at the Granite Links Golf Club. This is a grassroots one, $20 per.

Political incumbents who are customarily invited to such events, as last week's, included City Council President Doug Gutro, Councillors Mike McFarland and John Keenan, Koch's brother-in-law.

Also, Rep. Bruce Ayers, School Committeeman Jim Timmins, John Gillis, former city clerk and Norfolk County commissioner, former councillors Steve McGrath and Mike Cheney; Chuck Phelan, chairman of the City Democratic Committee, and former School Committeeman Nick Verenis.

Notables from the business community attending included Bob Curry, who introduced Koch; Ed Keohane and Mark Bertman.

Also in the crowd were police officers, firefighters and teachers. And some fresh faces – not usually seen at political functions.

"It was a terrific start," Koch says. "But we have a long way to go."

KOCH

OTHER THAN THE mayor's race, things are pretty quiet politically but there is a little stirring on the school committee front.

Nick Puleo, president of the Ward 5 Association, says he is "thinking" of running for one of the three school committee seats on this year's ballot.

Puleo is a senior budget analyst for the Senate Ways and Means Committee and was Councillor Joe Finn's campaign manager two years ago.

Three school committee incumbents are up for reelection: Vice Chairwoman Elaine Dwyer, Linda Stice and Dave McCarthy.

MEANWHILE a well-known but non-political figure is considering a run for the city council. A retired business executive, he is still very active in the community.

AND, speculation is still there that there will be a woman candidate for the city council.

Only four women have been elected to the council in the city's 118-year history:

Edna Austin (1943), Joanne Condon (1978), Patricia Toland (1982) and Alicia Gardner (2003).

Austin served 15 years; Condon, eight; Toland 11 years, plus six on the school committee; and Gardner who stepped down in 2005 after one term.

REARDON

MILESTONE: Belated congratulations to Jeanne Reardon, the city council's efficient clerk of committees and husband, Bill, on the birth of their new grandson and fifth grandchild.

Nicholas William Reardon, son of Bill and Michelle Reardon of Plymouth, arrived Feb. 1 at South Shore Hospital. He has a big sister, three-year-old Brooke.

Jeanne, incidentally, is now in her 27th consecutive one-year term as clerk of committees.

Proud dad, Bill, of course, is defensive coordinator of the Quincy High School football team and a guidance counselor.

Resident Overseer Sought For Historic Landmark

There's a two-story, two bedroom, one bath, near-200-year-old house available at a reduced rental in a quiet Wollaston neighborhood.

It's a steal at $1,100 a month, well under the market rate, plus utilities and a background check to weed out possible miscreants.

The historic domicile is the original servants' quarters of the Josiah Quincy

"It's a year-round job," said Leah Walczak, spokeswoman for Historic New England, an affiliate of the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, the owner.

"We are looking for a family or a couple to sign a

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A late 1940s postcard reproduction showing the old Capitol Theater building that was located at 1573 Hancock St. in Quincy Square. One of Quincy's first theaters, it was opened around 1915 to show silent moving pictures and run vaudeville shows. It was known as the Quincy Theater until the end of World War II when it was renamed the Capitol. With its balcony it had 1,382 seats. The theater closed in the early 1950s just before the Korean War and remained boarded up for many years until it was used as part of the old Sears & Roebuck store. The building is now part of the Quincy Fair Mall. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

A 'Thank You' For Lunar New Year Success

I would like to congratulate Quincy. The 19th annual Lunar New Year Festival that took place on Sunday, Feb. 25, at North Quincy High School was a huge success. The event attracted about 4,000 people, and there were plenty of activities to keep individuals and families entertained for hours. The festival's enormous success depended upon the partnership and support of many businesses, organizations and individuals.

First and foremost, our committee members and volunteers deserve a standing ovation. The event would simply not have been possible without their many hours of hard work and phenomenal dedication. Led by co-chairs, David Yi Zou and Frank Poon, many of these volunteers have been involved in Quincy's Asian festivals for years, and the wisdom and experience that they bring is indispensable to our growing success.

North Quincy and Quincy High School students, along with those from other high schools, deserve special recognition as our largest and most enthusiastic group of volunteers. Over 100 students contributed time, beginning at 7 a.m. on a Sunday, to ensure that everything went smoothly. They were always ready, willing, and indefatigable in their efforts. The leadership skills they displayed and developed while planning and managing the festival were amazing and we are confident that they will make our city proud as they make increasingly greater contributions in the future.

The Lunar New Year Festival is an important way for the Asian community to come together to mark the New Year, as well as for the non-Asian community to appreciate Quincy's cultural diversity. It requires financial resources, however, and we are grateful to our sponsors for providing such generous support. We would like to recognize, in particular, our outstanding Grand Sponsor, Mohegan Sun/Sunshine Travel, whose contributions allowed the festival to be truly outstanding. We also would like to highlight our Diamond Sponsors, Tufts-Northwestern Medical Center, Quincy Medical Center, and State Street Bank, and our Media Sponsors, The Patriot Ledger and The Quincy Sun.

The list goes on and on, but we would be remiss not to specifically mention the City of Quincy. Mayor Phelan's office provided the festival with wonderful support, as did the Parks Department and the Police Department. North Quincy High School was, once again, the perfect space for the event, and many school employees went above and beyond to assist as we planned, executed, and wrapped up the event.

Thank you to everyone who made this event not only possible but spectacular, and to the community for their enthusiastic reception and participation. We hope you will join us as we celebrate the Year of the Rat in 2008!

Taxpayers Assn. Demands Pay Increases Be Tied To Cost Of Living

By FRANK McCAULEY

The Quincy Taxpayers Association will demand that any increase given city employees be tied to the cost of living index.

The association's views will be placed on record at the City Council's Finance Committee meeting.

George Yarrington, executive director, was instructed by the association Board of Directors to appear before the committee and make this demand.

The cost of living has gone up 4.5 percent since the city employees received their last general increase on July 1, 1955.

PAY RAISES SURE, SAYS AUSTIN

"There is no doubt that city employees will get a pay raise, but there has been no decision reached as to what the increase will be and when it will become effective," said Edna B. Austin, Finance Committee chairman. The Quincy City Employees Association is asking for a flat $350 annual increase.

Forrest, Frances Smith Honored As Sweethearts On 70th Anniversary

Forrest and Frances Smith, married 70 years, were honored as the "Reigning Sweethearts" at a recent "Sweethearts Party" at the Beechwood Senior Center.

Forrest, 91, and Frances, 89, were married March 2, 1937 in St. Peter's Church in Dorchester, a marriage that brought them a family of eight children, 15 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Forrest and Frances still live in the house in Wollaston they bought in 1955.

At the Beechwood party the Smiths were surrounded by other Quincy "Senior Sweetheart Couples": John and Ruth Dobbie, Warren and Nancy Kirkland, John and Pat Rein, Tony and Lee Cronis, Bob and Joan Clarke, Mario and Deena DeLucas and Joe Fontanna and Olga Ward.

Children from Beechwood's Preschool joined the party singing songs: "You Are My Sweetheart," "I Love You", and presenting hand painting hearts to all the sweetheart couples.

The Smiths are "regulars" at the Center. They participate in the Senior Lunch Program, card games and round table discussion groups. Frances teaches crochet. Forrest volunteers at lunchtime. Both are readying for the Senior Olympics in May. Forrest hopes to compete in horseshoes, darts, bowling, boche, basketball and free throw. Forrest also began swinging his golf clubs.

The Smiths were also honored Sunday by their family at Lombardos in Randolph. Family members came from as far as California and Indiana.

COURTNEY PAQUETTE and ROY BJORLIN, III Courtney Paquette Engaged To Roy Bjorlin, III

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Rita's Fantastic Dressing

It was one of those Sundays when we had a couple of children over for dinner and our daughter Rita called to tell me of her own recipe for blue cheese dressing that she was bringing for dinner.

It was so delicious that all of us said we would never purchase blue cheese dressing again, but would prepare it as Rita did. It's so easy and can be made and kept refrigerated for a long time.

Rita's Fantastic Blue Cheese Dressing:
four ounces blue cheese (either a hunk to crumble or one already crumbled)

1 cup sour cream (she used a low fat one)
1/4 skim milk mixed with 2 tablespoons lemon juice or 1/4 cup buttermilk a splash of Worcestershire sauce a smidgen of garlic powder salt and pepper to taste
Mix altogether and keep refrigerated. I also used it as a topping for baked potatoes with a broccoli stuffing.

Blue Star Mothers To Meet At Wollaston Congregational

The newly formed Eastern Massachusetts Chapter of the Blue Star Mothers of America will hold the next two monthly meetings in Quincy at the Wollaston Congregational Church, 48 Winthrop Ave., at 7 p.m. on Thursday, March 15 and April 26.

The Blue Star Mothers of America organization is open to all family members, friends, and neighbors of military personnel regardless of activation status or station of service. The organization offers support to families, soldiers, and veterans of all military branches of service.

The March meeting will open with a flag ceremony conducted by the Quincy's Navy Sea Cadets.

For more information, call 781-545-4021 or write to EMAC-BSMA P.O. Box 123, Scituate, MA 02066.

St. Agatha Church Spring WINGS Session Starts March 14

The women of St. Agatha Parish of Milton-Quincy invite women of all ages and all parishes to join them at their spring session of WINGS (Women In God's Spirit) which begins Wednesday, March 14 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Parish Center.

The session continues on consecutive Wednesday evenings, ending on April 4.

This is the third WINGS session to take place at St. Agatha Church. It is offered in partnership with the Office of Life and Family Ministries-Archdiocese of Boston.

WINGS is a faith enrichment group for women led by a Core Team of lay women who invite and encourage other women to come, seek, and grow in their relationship with God.

When St. Agatha first offered its WINGS program in the Spring of 2006, it was one of only a handful of churches statewide to do so. The session was a stunning success, drawing nearly 90 women from over 17 parishes each night. WINGS welcomes women wherever they are in their journey of faith, and St. Agatha's Core Team stresses to each participant to "come as you are."

"Forgiveness" is the theme for the upcoming spring/Lenten session of WINGS. In the past, each meeting has had a different theme and guest speaker. This session will take a different approach.

All four evenings will be led by Celia Sirois, a well-respected biblical scholar, instructor in Sacred Scripture in a number of adult education and enrichment programs in the Archdiocese. She is also Coordinator and Instructor for CHRISM, a Bible study program serving the parishes of the South Region of the Archdiocese.

For the past 15 years, Sirois has also co-directed New Directions in Catholic-Jewish Dialogue, an interfaith educational initiative, jointly sponsored by the Archdiocese of Boston and the Anti-Defamation League.

She will choose four Scripture passages/parables that deal with forgiveness, assist the women in interpreting the material and then participants will break into small groups to discuss the relevance of the readings in their own lives if they so choose. Some women feel more comfortable listening, and there is no pressure placed on anyone to speak.

Debbie Riley is the coordinator of the WINGS program at St. Agatha's.

Each session lasts two hours, and participants are encouraged to BYOB (Bring Your Own Bible), although there will be some on hand for those who do not bring one.

There is also a voluntary $5 donation to cover the costs of materials.

For more information about the WINGS program, contact Debbie Riley at 617-698-2439.

First Meeting Of Season For North Quincy Catholic Women

The Catholic Women's Club of North Quincy will hold its first meeting of the 2007-08 season tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in Tax Tips From the Experts.

Advantages of Flexible Spending Accounts

Many taxpayers have plans available through their employer known as Cafeteria Plan Flexible Spending Accounts. Most common are medical spending accounts and child care spending accounts. It analyzes how many taxpayers fail to take advantage of the rather significant tax savings available through these accounts.

Established by employers, Cafeteria Plans offer employees a choice of receiving taxable compensation or tax-free fringe benefit in lieu of the compensation. If you opt for the fringe benefit, your income and income taxes are reduced and you receive a fringe benefit of equal value. Flexible Spending accounts are set up so the employee can have his/her employer contribute a predetermined amount of money on behalf of the employee rather than paying that amount as compensation. The employee may then draw on that account to be reimbursed for qualified plan expenses such as day care or medical.

With the child care flexible spending account a taxpayer can have his/her employer contribute up to $5,000 to the plan. The taxpayer can then ask for reimbursement for qualified child care expenses paid up to $5,000. Since the $5,000 is not included in the employee's taxable wages the savings equal the Federal income tax rate plus the state income tax rate and the social security rate if the employee is not earning in excess of the social security wage amount.

For instance, a couple with taxable income of $75,000 and one child in day care costing $6,000 will save $600 by claiming the child care credit. They will save $1,897 if they contribute $5,000 to an employer flexible spending account.

The savings is even more dramatic for health care flexible spending accounts.

Tom Hurley, CPA, is president of South Shore Tax Services, a local, independent tax preparation service. They're located on 716 Hancock St. in Quincy; he can be reached at (617) 376-6226.

Global Warming Film Discussion At Library

Wondering whether global warming is myth or reality? Or convinced there's a problem but not sure what you can do about it?

A free screening of the Academy Award winning documentary "An Inconvenient Truth" will be presented on Sunday, March 25 at 1:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center. Following the movie, will be a discussion with local officials and environmental activists on how Quincy is responding to the situation and how residents can help and also save on energy costs.

In this critically acclaimed film, former Vice President Al Gore presents a compelling view of the future of the planet, the myths and misconceptions about global warming and urges that we act now to save the earth.

After the screening, members of the Quincy Environmental Network, Green Start, the Massachusetts Climate Action Network, Mayor William Phelan, and

City Council Environmental and Health Subcommittee members Leo Kelly and Kevin Coughlin will discuss how residents can become part of the solution.

The screening and discussion are sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library and the Quincy Environmental Network, in cooperation with the Quincy City Council Environmental and Health Subcommittee.

10th Annual Quincy Lions Club Run/Walk For Sight April 21

The 10th annual Quincy Lions Club Run/Walk for Sight will be held Saturday, April 21 at Pageant Field in Quincy.

Registration for the event begins at 9 a.m., followed by a children's 1K race at 10:30 a.m. The adult 5K run/walk - which is on a course certified by U.S. Track & Field - begins at 11 a.m.

Prizes will be awarded to race winners in a number of categories. The first 200 registrants will receive a free race t-shirt.

Following the race, a barbecue buffet luncheon courtesy of the Outback Steakhouse will be held. There will also be a disc jockey on hand and a number of prize raffles.

Proceeds from the event benefit eye research and the Quincy Lions Club's community service activities, including providing free eye exams and free eyeglasses for local residents in need, offering free vision and health screenings, providing college scholarships to local high school students and more.

"The Run/Walk for Sight is a fun event for the whole family," said Quincy Lions Club President Elaine duJardin. "The local community has been very supportive of the Lions Club's efforts to help blind and visually impaired individuals, and we hope everyone will come out and enjoy this fun and worthwhile event."

The registration fee is $5 for children, $20 for adults. Pre-registration for those who sign up before the day of the event is $17.

To register, mail a check payable to Quincy Lions Club to: Quincy Lions Club, P.O. Box 27, Quincy, MA 02170, Attn: Run/Walk. Registrants should include their name, address and age (for race categories).

Platinum sponsors of this year's Run/Walk are Outback Steakhouse and Eastern Bank. Silver sponsors include South Shore Savings Bank, Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, ASAP Environmental, Mansfield & Nolan, Custom Builders and the Mass. Department of the American Legion.

Tax Tips From the Experts.

Advantages of Flexible Spending Accounts

Many taxpayers have plans available through their employer known as Cafeteria Plan Flexible Spending Accounts. Most common are medical spending accounts and child care spending accounts. It amazes me how many taxpayers fail to take advantage of the rather significant tax savings available through these accounts.

Established by employers, Cafeteria Plans offer employees a choice of receiving taxable compensation or tax-free fringe benefit in lieu of the compensation. If you opt for the fringe benefit your income and income taxes are reduced and you receive a fringe benefit of equal value. Flexible Spending accounts are set up so the employee can have his/her employer contribute a predetermined amount of money on behalf of the employee rather than paying that amount as compensation. The employee may then draw on that account to be reimbursed for qualified plan expenses such as day care or medical.

With the child care flexible spending account a taxpayer can have his/her employer contribute up to $5,000 to the plan. The taxpayer can then ask for reimbursement for qualified child care expenses paid up to $5,000. Since the $5,000 is not included in the employee's taxable wages the savings equal the federal income tax rate plus the state income tax rate and the social security rate if the employee is not earning in excess of the social security wage amount.

For instance, a couple with taxable income of $75,000 and one child in day care costing $6,000 will save $600 by claiming the child care credit. They will save $1,897 if they contribute $5,000 to an employer flexible spending account.

The savings is even more dramatic for health care flexible spending accounts.

Jaehnig Seeks $100,000 For Park Dept. Budget

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Mark Jaehnig, the city's new Park Commissioner, got a warm welcome from the City Council Monday, but no cash for his budget woes.

Instead, the council sent Jaehnig's $100,000 appropriation request to the Finance Committee for further study.

"Our budget has been greatly impacted by a number of unforeseen circumstances," Jaehnig told council members before outlining the need for an additional $60,000 for personnel services and $40,000 to meet current expenditures.

"As the newly appointed park director, I fully intend to ensure that our city is kept clean and beautiful," Jaehnig promised, adding, "Our elite facilities are the envy of the South Shore and Metropolitan Boston. I want to maintain and enhance these gems..."

According to Jaehnig, an unexpected $28,000 was spent to complete the installation of new turf for the Veterans' Memorial Stadium project in time for the 2006 high school football and soccer teams.

In addition, he said that the personnel budget must also meet unanticipated settlements totaling over $37,000 due to the retirement of former Park Director Thomas Koch and the death of General Foreman Paul Zambruno.

As for equipment repairs, Jaehnig noted the line item amount was $20,000 and the department has already "nearly expended the vehicle repairs budget and spent an additional $22,000 from the Park Maintenance account in order to continue to service our vehicles."

Jaehnig also cited storm damage at Mitchell/McCoy Park and the need for sodding Teel and varsity fields.

If approved, the appropriation request would be met by transferring $50,000 from the city's collection and disposal account and $50,000 from free cash.

Jaehnig, appointed Parks Director by Mayor William Phelan three weeks ago, is a practicing chiropractor who earned his degree from Palmer College in Iowa.

A graduate of Boston College High School and Stonehill College, he lives in North Quincy with his wife and four children. For many years, he has coached basketball, baseball and soccer.

City Council Scraps Mandatory Recycling

As for senior citizens, Coughlin said some senior citizens told him they were surprised that recycling was not mandatory now. Quincy has fallen behind in recycling efforts, according to Coughlin who noted that Newton has a 40% recycling rate.

He also said that Braintree and Plymouth already impose fines.

Voting against the proposal with Raymond and McNamee were Joseph Finn, Michael McFarland, Leo Kelly and Jay Davis.

Voting "present" were Council President Doug Coutro, Coughlin and Keenan.

'Friends Of Unborn' Retreat At Kennebunkport In June

The Rev. Francis Conroy, former parochial vicar at St. John the Baptist Church, will lead the seventh annual retreat of the Friends of the Unborn on the weekend of June 8-10 in Kennebunkport, Maine.

The weekend at St. Anthony's Franciscan Guest House will cost $319 for a single room and $249 per person for a double room, including a two nights stay, six meals and a bus leaving St. Johns Church.

Checks should be made out to "Friends of the Unborn, Trip Account" and sent to Friends of the Unborn, Kennebunkport Retreat, 38 Edgemere Rd., Quincy, MA 02169.

For more information, call Marilyn Birnie, the retreat coordinator, at 617-786-7903.

By LAURA GRIFFIN

North Quincy's 15 glory girls are their league's basketball champions and they won more accolades Monday night in City Council chambers for bringing victory home.

City councillors applauded their league victory and lauded their coach, Doug MacFarlane for his quarter century of dedication and excellence.

MacFarlane coached the North Quincy High School girls' basketball team to the Atlantic Coast League North championship this season. It is the third championship in his past nine years, but the first Atlantic Coast League championship.

The victory is sweet, but somewhat bittersweet, as MacFarlane will retire from coaching this year after 25 years. He plans to retire from teaching next year.

Councillors presented MacFarlane with a commendation citing his "victorious career" and commending him for challenging and inspiring his teams. Each of the

John Hancock Plungers And Toe-Dunkers Raise Over $3,000

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

What do you do on a sunny, 51-degree Saturday morning in March? You take a plunge in the Atlantic Ocean, of course!

Over 100 people were at the Mound Street Beach in Quincy Point Saturday to support about 20 brave hearts who took a dunk in the water to help raise funds for the Interfaith Social Services of Quincy.

Sponsored by the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission a death and winter-weather conditions had twice before forced rescheduling of the John Hancock Birthday Plunge from its initial date in January, coinciding with Hancock's birthday.

"The third time was the charm," was the oft-quoted comment of the day, as the enthusiastic and good-humored crowd shared their excitement with friends, supporters and media. With all the spirited conversations, laughing, and refreshments, the gathering had all the elements of a real beach party, in March!

Eighty-one year-old Jean Ross, a Quincy resident for 57 years, was one of a group of toe-dunkers, aptly nicknamed 'The Dunking Toe-Nuts' by plunge-supporter Betty Sweeney. Ross placed a notice in her Bethany Church bulletin about the upcoming plunge and requested sponsors.

"It was very fortunate for me, the very first day it was in the paper, there was a sit-down lunch after church services, and I cornered everybody. It was like you couldn't get away from me that day. When my first sponsor gave me a check I was flying high. After that, everywhere I went I would ask for money."

Ross raised over $600 in pledges, and was presented with a plumber's helper, a plunger, an award for achieving the most money raised.

Ross in turn motivated her church buddy Barbara Gilliland, also 81. "Well, if she can do it, I can! You know, you read about the L Street Brownies and see them on the TV all the time and I never really wanted to do it, but then my friend Jean kind of inspired me and I said 'What the heck, once in your life, let's do it.'" Gilliland was accompanied by an anonymous assistant, who claimed to be too much of a wimp to go in the water, but was there to "hold Barbara's towel and wrap it around her and keep her warm while she runs for the ambulance!"

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly, chairman of the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission, was pleased to report that nearly $3000 has been raised or pledged for the ISS. Kelly is planning another John Hancock-inspired event, a future penmanship contest for Quincy school students. Commission member Jack Nigro, who said he lacked the nerve to go in the water, confessed that he had challenged Kelly to take the plunge, but both wound up as avid cheerleaders for those who did.

Mary-Jo Kahler, winner of the plunger, for the funniest costume, was in a blue and white swimsuit, the colors of her alma mater, Quincy High School, and wore a mop cap and old fashioned shawl to reflect her interest in early-American history. Kahler, who did more than toe-dunk, wanted to participate because "I grew up in Quincy Point, was always at the beach, and ISS is a nice charity. And I was beaten out on pledges; I was tops at close to $400, and somebody beat me out!" Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond and the Immaculate Conception Bingo Committee of Weymouth were two of Kahler's major donors.

Raymond applauded the commission's efforts.

"This is just a great event for a great cause and it's wonderful to bring people back to the beaches. We have wonderful beaches in Quincy-like Mound St. and Avalon. We have a cookout at Avalon in the summer, so it's nice to have an event at Mound St. as well. There are a lot of activities in Quincy Point to bring the neighborhoods and residents together, and we're hoping the commission will make this a yearly event.

"The Beach Commission advocates on behalf of all things that affect the beaches and the quality of life for all folks who want to utilize Quincy beaches, they do great work and their service is to be appreciated by all of us."

Lorraine Paolucci, a Quincy Point resident since she married 54 years ago, said,

"I've been down here twice a week since this event was first planned, and the beach was all ice...I remember playing on the ice when I was a kid, but I'm 72 years old now, so I thought 'I don't think I'll do it.' I grew up on Perry's Beach in Houghs Neck, which is named after my father, and I've suggested that maybe next year we could have this event there. All the doctor told me was if I was going to do this, I needed to get a wet suit. I have $350 in pledges."

Described as the event's brainchild, Chickie Abdallah, commission treasurer, said, "Today's event has beaten every expectation I had. The funds we have raised for ISS are phenomenal for a first time. Just wait 'til next year. This has done my heart good, and I want to thank everybody!"

Life-long Quincy resident Brad Croall collected over $400 in pledges and was one of only two men who took the plunge. The other was his

Downpour Detective Solves Ceiling Leak

Q I read your column about the e-mail from Nancy V. and her inability to locate the source of a leak that caused damage to her dining-room ceiling but not to the bedroom ceiling above. I had the same problem several years ago and experienced similar frustrations. Nobody seemed able to find the source.

Finally I insisted that my husband remove what I thought was a damaged siding shingle. He found that the installer had bent down one corner of the eaves box when installing it. During heavy rains, the water overflowed and ran down between the walls, then across the dining-room ceiling to the center light fixture.

Having a new eaves box installed correctly fixed my problem. Perhaps this information will help Nancy V. and others. —Mary D.

A Thank you, Mary! I mentioned in a previous column that a house, besides providing shelter, is a system that can keep it occupants comfortable and healthy. If something in the system is damaged or incorrectly installed, that comfort is compromised.

The eaves box end is part of the fascia (the horizontal covering along the roof eaves that protects roof timbers) and is found at the corners of the eaves. Damage to this or any part of the roofline system can certainly cause interior leaks.

A visual inspection of the roof, its joints, flashing, eaves, soffits, gutters and other protective systems is a very important suggestion. Note any areas that are damaged or "not quite right" — dirtier than the surrounding area, corroded or rusty, or clogged with debris — and contact a roofing professional for further examination.

Also, remember to get a written estimate and a detailed explanation of damage and suggested repairs from the roofer before agreeing to have the work done.

Floating Floors Cut Steps

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Floating floors—what a concept! Sounds like something out of "Peter Pan." Actually, the floors are designed to stay solidly in place though they are neither glued nor nailed down—hence the ethereal name installers give them.

Some new glueless floors that look like stone, granite, ceramic tile, marble or hardwood are so warm and soft underfoot you may feel like you are floating. Made of resilient flooring with fiberglass backing, the new floors by Domco are called FiberFloor.

Whether installed by do-it-yourselfer or a professional, these floors are clean and easy to work with, saving time and money. Professional installer GJ West of Augusta, Ga., advises, "If you're not using glue, make sure that the flooring doesn't touch baseboards, doorjamb or walls." Molding will cover the small space between floor and wall.

West suggests that beginners start with a square room that requires minimal measuring and cutting. "In spite of its remarkable flexibility, if you're covering a big room, you'll need an extra set of hands to help maneuver the flooring. Its sturdiness makes it heavy."

FiberFloor ranges in price from 99 cents to $3.22 a square foot for dozens of designs and colors, in 12- and six-foot widths in the Influence, Urbana and Habitat collections. Where should the seams go so they're least visible? "At the shortest possible span, such as a doorway." He adds, "Make sure the surface below the flooring," which can be almost anything except carpet, "is stable."

"These new floating floors make my job easier and the results look good."

How does the flooring remain in place without glue? Mario Allard, Domco's product director, says, "It's a combination of the flooring's weight, the suction-cup effect of the fiberglass backing, and the construction—which enables it to lay and stay flat. Furniture and appliances placed on top also keep it from moving." Allard and West say to lift heavy pieces and place them where you want them and never slide them.

A bonus of glueless installation: In case of a leak, you can lift up the floor and replace it after it and the subfloor have dried.

Portable Generators: Staying Safe During The Storm

Weathering storms includes knowing what to do about downed power lines due to high winds or ice. Power lines and trees can become encrusted with ice that they collapse, leaving millions without electricity. However, with a portable generator, you can keep your refrigerator running and your kids warm as a bug in a rug until the power is restored.

"Portable generators are the best way to keep your household running when wind or ice takes out power lines on your street," said Colin Iwasa of Yamaha Motor Corp., U.S.A. "The provide a power source for a space heater, refrigerator and other household necessities such as a coffeepot. But it's very important to know how to use a portable generator safely at your home."

Each year in America, carbon monoxide (CO) poisoning associated with the use of portable generators and other engine-driven tools claims dozens of lives and sends many others to hospital emergency rooms for treatment. Since CO is an odorless and colorless toxic gas, there is no warning of its presence.

Yamaha offers some important safety tips on using portable generators as a home backup power supply:

Never Use a Gas Generator Indoors or in Partly Enclosed Areas such as an Attached Garage - A portable generator uses a combustion engine just like your car, which produces toxic carbon monoxide gasses. It must be outdoors in a well-ventilated, dry area away from any of your home's windows, doors and other air intakes. Never run a generator in basements, attached garages or other partly enclosed areas such as patios.

Read Manufacturer's Instructions for Safe Operation - This is provided when you purchase your generator. If you need another copy of the instructions, stop by the generator dealer.

Don't Store Fuel and Oil Indoors or Try to Fuel Equipment While Running - "You wouldn't fill your car at the gas station while the engine is running and the same logic should go for your generator," said Yamaha's Iwasa. These liquids are flammable and can be sparked by the generator. Your generator should be turned off and allowed to cool before refueling; gasoline on a hot engine can cause a fire.

Use a Carbon Monoxide Detector in Your Home - This is an important way to be warned of toxic carbon monoxide in your home from any source. You can find these affordable units at home or hardware stores. Purchase battery-powered units and test and replace the battery as recommended by the manufacturer.

Never Try to Power a House by Plugging a Generator Into Your Wall Plug - This can cause "backfeeding," which is extremely dangerous and an electrocution risk to utility workers and neighbors using the same transformer. As an electrician or the power company can install an appropriate transfer switch that complies with local building codes and, with proper operation, will allow you to power selected circuits in your home.

Use the Appropriate Generator for Your Needs - Work with a generator salesperson to get the right unit to meet your needs. List the equipment and appliances you want to power in an emergency, and be sure your generator is sized properly to handle the load of those products.

In addition to a portable generator, Yamaha suggests you keep the following on hand.

- Battery-operated carbon monoxide and smoke detectors and a fire extinguisher.
- A battery-operated radio to keep apprised of weather conditions while the power is out.

- Cell phone and an extra cell phone battery for communication needs, should your phone lines also be affected by the storm.

- Flashlight.
- Lots of extra fresh batteries.
- Blankets.
- Extra food and water.
- Extra medicine and baby items.

- Extra fuel for your generator.

- First aid supplies.

Following these tips can mean safety and comfort for you and your family.

The Next Big Thing In Housing: The 'Citizen Vacationer'

In fact, lost in all the headlines over fortunes investors made in recent years playing the real-estate market is that, until not that long ago, homeowners were telling researchers that they were more concerned with living in "strong communities" than they were even their houses' resale values. Now that same yearning appears to be catching on among a new class of homebuyers, as well: "citizens vacationers."

Citizen vacationers are in search of second homes that let them feel like they're part of something bigger. Not only don't they want strangers for neighbors, they want to live in a place where shades of "Cheers" - everyone knows their name well enough to say "hello" in the morning.

It's a concept developer Neel Bennett has long understood. He's been turning beachfront property held by his family into a new vacation community in Florida's Emerald Coast, called The Towne of Seahaven. When complete, this community will have a distinctly village-like feel to it with a mix of architectural styles evocative of Key West, magnolia plantations, Florida cracker and the South Seas.

"The site has been in our family for three generations," says Bennett. "When my great-grandfather bought the land, people told him he was crazy. Why would anyone want to buy sand?"

But it seems his great-grandfather was on to something. Nestled safely in a hurricane-free alley in Panama City Beach, The Towne of Seahaven features about a quarter-mile of white sand beachfront along the emerald green Gulf of Mexico.

Vacationers to The Towne of Seahaven will soon be able to wander the intertwined pedestrian walkways that will lead them from their homes to the town center. There they'll mingle with neighbors, visit a bistro or boutique or relax in the spa. There will even be wine festivals and other events planned specifically to help the citizen vacationers get to know one another - even if they live there for just part of the year.

The community's first beachfront-view occupants are expected in late 2007. When totally complete in the coming years, as many as 4,000 units - many of them beachfront property - are slated to have been built. Somewhere between those times, one local expert is predicting we'll surely see another hallmark of the citizen vacationer proved right: "It could easily be their preferred address," says Calvin Kilpatrick of Playground Destination Properties, Inc.

QUINCY POLICE HOT SPOTS

A Job Well Done

On Thursday, Feb. 22, at approximately 1:15 p.m., Officers Kristen Bowes and William Lanergan were dispatched to the area of 500 Quarry St. for a "motor vehicle accident with injuries." As Officer Bowes arrived on scene, dispatch informed her that the suspect driver just fled from the scene down Hall Place.

Officer Bowes's first responsibility was to check the accident scene to determine if anyone was injured. The first vehicle was unoccupied, however, the driver of the second said her neck and head hurt.

A witness, who was driving behind one of the cars involved, described the male driver who fled just before the police arrived. As Officer Bowes awaited a license plate check on the suspect vehicle, she was informed by the dispatch that the owner was on the telephone attempting to report her car stolen.

The owner stated she was at Stop & Shop on Newport Avenue and when she came out, her car was gone. She also said she was now in a taxi and headed to her residence on Rogers Street.

The officers on scene immediately found this suspicious since the car owner's home was only two blocks away from the accident scene. Sgt. James McNeil and Officer Lanergan went to the Rogers Street address and met with the car owner. Based upon the officers' experience and a brief questioning period, they determined the car owner was not telling the truth. The owner said she did not give permission to anyone to take the car and the last time she saw it, it was in the store's parking lot.

Sgt. McNeil told her he was concerned that the driver of her car may be injured and he wanted to search her apartment. She gave permission to search, stating numerous times no one was there. Officer Lanergan opened a second floor bedroom closet door and found a male hiding.

Sgt. McNeil questioned the car owner about her lies. She said the man in the closet was a friend, but she did not give him permission to take the car. The male told Officer Lanergan he was the driver and fled because, "I got scared because my license is suspended, that's why I ran." The suspect, a 33-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license, leaving the scene of an accident after causing property damage and failure to yield.

Officer Bowes conducted a search of the suspect's vehicle and found a box containing a medication called Naxoxone Hydrochloride, which was not in a prescription container. This part of the investigation continues.

Nice work!

SCAM UPDATE:

I recently asked for readers to call me if they received a telephone or mail solicitation from law enforcement groups asking for donations. I was contacted by about 10 people, who described the solicitors as being very pushy and evasive.

Again, be wary. One law enforcement group that I called told me that the telemarketers gave the guarantee, "No less than 20% goes to the organization."

Quincy Plays CM Thursday At 7 PM

Presidents Advance To South Semi-Finals

By SEAN BRENNAN

When it comes to tournament style basketball, these are two things that can make or break a team: guard play and defense.

For Quincy, the combination of the two, along with exceptional senior leadership, has propelled the No. 8 Presidents into the semifinals of the Division 2 South Sectionals today (Thursday) against No. 5 Catholic Memorial. The game will begin at 7 p.m. at Brockton High School.

Quincy (17-5 overall) played their way into the semifinals behind two straight home wins over No. 9 Silver Lake High School (a 62-48 victory in the first round) and No. 16 Sharon High School (a 73-52 victory in the quarterfinals). The Presidents earned the second of two home games after Sharon upset top-seeded Whitman-Hanson in the first round.

In the quarterfinals, sophomore guard Doug Scott exploded for 33 points and 10 assists, but it was the defensive intensity that Quincy played with from the opening tip till the final horn that propelled them into the next round.

"Our defense wore them down," head coach Bob Fisher said. "Our intensity level was extremely high, and I thought we rebounded well. That defensive tenacity makes us who we are and what we are."

"But we beat a hell of a club tonight. We felt we had to win the first six to eight minutes because they are a good team."

The game began with Sharon scoring the first two points, but the Presidents quickly responded with 12-0 scoring run. The Eagles never got closer than six points the remainder of the game. With the raucous home crowd cheering every possession, Scott and his teammates dismantled Sharon and gave

BOYS' BASKETBALL

Fisher the biggest win of his three-year tenure as head coach.

"It was as big a win as I've had in my three years at Quincy," Fishersaid. "That's my best win here, by far."

Scott's game consists of much more than scoring at will, he can penetrate as well as any guard in the area and the energy he brings to the court becomes infectious. Senior captain Steve Connolly and fellow senior Jared Tucker and juniors DeShawn Mathews and Paris Amado (the star of the Silver Lake game) all fed off of Scott and contributed to the victory.

"Mathews had his best game as a Quincy player on the boards, defensively and emotionally," Fisher said. "Jared Tucker was tremendous defensively, as was Steve Connolly, and Paris Amado, our other starter, did a phenomenal job."

The leading scorers for the Presidents were Scott (33 pts.), Mathews (14 pts.) and Connolly (11 pts.).

The Presidents may have caught a break when top-seeded Whitman-Hanson lost at home to Sharon (Quincy went 0-2 against the Panthers in league play), but that is the way the ball bounces come tournament time, and Quincy didn't squander their golden opportunity to advance.

Quincy earned their second home game of last week with a convincing 14-point win over the Lakers of Silver Lake High School. The two teams had already met twice in the regular season and both teams had won on the road. Suffice to say these two teams probably won't be atop each others Christmas lists come next season.

The environment for the first-round game was intense. With a packed East Gym sitting on the edge of their seats throughout, Quincy and Silver Lake traded blows the entire first half. At the break, the Presidents held a slim 27-24 lead.

The turning point of the game happened in the first six minutes of the second half. Quincy stormed out on a 6-0 scoring run to up their lead to 33-24 (the largest of the game to that point). Silver Lake, who held its own against the Quincy pressure in the first 16 minutes of play, could not find its mojo, and turned the ball over on its first three possessions of the second half. By the time the Lakers called a much-needed time out at the 9:42 mark, Quincy had outscored them by an 18-6 margin and led 45-30.

Scott supplied the finishing blow with just under four minutes remaining and with the Lakers making one final push to get back in the game. Scott scored on a layup, came back down court and stole the ball; and raced all the way back down, scored and was fouled. He completed the three-point play and the game was settled.

"We ran the court well and we shut down their big guns," Fisher said. "We had tremendous ball pressure and interior defense."

When the horn sounded to end the game, fans, players and coaches celebrated. The scene was euphoric and deservedly so.

The leading scorers included Scott (18 pts.), Amado (13 pts. on several key jumpers), Connolly (18 pts.) and Mathews (9 pts. and 4 blocks).

Quincy and Catholic Memorial will battle it out in a public/parochial school showdown tonight, with the winner advancing to the Division 2 South Sectional finals (time to be announced).

LAUREN STILLE, a senior captain, attempts a free throw during last Thursday's first round Division 1 South Sectional tournament game against Durfee High School. North Quincy shot just 10 of 23 from the free throw line and lost to the Hilltoppers 62-50.

North Quincy Upset By Durfee In First Round

The North Quincy Red Raiders entered the Division 1 South Sectional post-season tournament on an emotional high.

The Red Raiders finished their regular season with an overall record of 16-4 and had laid their claim as co-champions of the Atlantic Coast League's North Division with Whitman-Hanson High School.

By virtue of their stellar regular season record and league championship, North Quincy earned the number four seed in the South Sectionals. Along with the high seed, the Raiders earned a home date against No. 13 Durfee (12-8).

But their post-season run would be short and bittersweet, as the team lost in the first round in an upset 62-50 last Thursday night.

Durfee took advantage of a very poor foul shooting game by the Red Raiders. North Quincy was undone by its paltry 10 of 23 (43%) performance from the charity stripe. The Red Raiders missed 13 foul shots and lost the game by 12 points.

The Hilltoppers also did a solid defensive job on North Quincy's star forward Rebecca Goreham. Goreham was held to five points (nine points below her season average of 14.1 points per game) and 13 rebounds in the loss.

The two teams battled it out throughout the first half of play, and at the break, the Red Raiders trailed 33-29. But the cold shooting from the line caught up to North Quincy as the game rolled on, and all of the missed opportunities finally did in the Raiders.

With or without a long tournament run, the 2006-

LOST IN TRANSMISSION

As reliable as most automatic transmissions are, they are relatively easy to break and quite expensive to fix. One of the most common signs that there may be a problem is delayed engagement. That is, there is a long moment of hesitation between the time you put a shift into "D"(rive) or "R"(everse) when the transmission actually kicks in. Other signs of problems with automatic transmissions include slippage or jerking/shuddering of the transmission. It is also not a good sign, certainly, if the transmission gets stuck in a gear. These problems may be more noticeable when the engine is still cold or after the vehicle is warmed up. Take note of either

Raiders Go Overtime To Defeat Presidents, 2-1

Last Tuesday night, the city's two high school hockey programs got together and played in an emotional Division 2 South first-round tournament game at the Quincy Youth Arena in front of an overflowing crowd.

The outcome of the game, a 2-1 overtime victory for the No. 9 North Quincy Red Raiders, ended what had been a historic high school sporting event. The game marked the first-ever matchup between the Quincy Presidents and the North Quincy Red Raiders in MIAA tournament play.

The No. 8 Quincy Presidents (final overall record: 10-7-4) scored first late in the second period. With 2:13 remaining in the middle frame, junior forward Nick Masone won a battle for the puck behind the North Quincy net and flicked a shot into the crowd in front of the crease. The puck took a funny bounce off of a Red Raider skate and found the back of the net.

With the two teams exchanging scoring opportunities throughout the game (North Quincy outshot Quincy 33-28), the game remained 1-0 Quincy through two periods of play.

The Red Raiders finally tied the score at 1-1 halfway through the third period behind the solid play of their first-line. Seniors Jimmy Fitzpatrick, Ted Finnegan and sophomore Brandon

HOCKEY

Gilmore anchored that line. But it was the youngest, Gilmore, who beat Quincy goalie Jeff Giordani to the glove side that helped give North the momentum heading into the overtime period. Gilmore was assisted on his third period goal by teammates Fitzpatrick and senior defenseman Joe Canavan.

In overtime, Gilmore ended the Quincy Presidents season with his second goal of the game. Gilmore's game-winner was assisted by senior captains Fitzpatrick and Finnegan.

"Everyone was going crazy," Gilmore said after the game. "It was one of the best feelings I've ever had."

With the win, the Red Raiders advanced to play No. 1 Franklin High School in the quarterfinals in Bourne. The team's post-season run ended with a 4-2 loss last Saturday, but the Quincy game helped solidified head coach Bob Doyle's pride in his team.

"It's a pleasure to be a part of this, to see kids reap benefits of the hard work they have put in for me including the 5 a.m. practices. Everything we've challenged them with and asked them to do, they've risen to the occasion and gotten stronger and stronger. I am so proud of this kids."

North Quincy ended their 2006-2007 season with an 11-8-3 overall record.

Both Quincy and North Quincy will graduate a handful of experienced seniors from this season's roster, but both teams will also return a number of talented underclassmen.

Hingham Ends Quincy's Tourney Trail

By SEAN BRENNAN

The dream ended last Wednesday night for the Quincy Presidents girls' basketball team. Playing in a Division 2 South Sectional first-round game against Hingham High School, the No. 20 Presidents kept it close for most of the game, but ultimately fell 55-41 to the No. 4 Harbormen in Hingham.

The game had an ominous beginning for Quincy, as they quickly fell behind 9-0 to start the game, but a change to a hard-press defense and the inspired play of seniors Jacqueline Provenzano and Hope Collins and captains Meagan Tobin, Marybeth Torpey and Brigid Kyle resulted in head coach Jeff Bretsch's team turning the tables on Hingham with a 9-0 scoring run of their own.

Junior guard Meagan Tobin, who was coming off a 24-point game in the preliminary round against Silver Lake, scored Quincy's first points of the evening at the 10:30 mark of the first half. After Tobin buried a three-pointer (her only one of the game) from the top of the arc at the 8 minute mark, Quincy had crawled their way back into the game.

Junior Liz Bock's put-back in the final seconds of the half helped the Presidents enter the break down 24-23.

"Our shaky start resulted in an unsettling 9-0 deficit," Bretsch said. "But the seasoned veteran captains from last year's tournament team refused to let the game get out-of-hand."

The leading scorers at the half for the Presidents included Tobin (9 pts.) and Torpey (6 pts.).

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The beginning of the second half played out like a heavyweight fight, with both teams doing their best to knock the other team out of contention. Tobin's driving layup and one at the 14:20 mark cut the Harbormen's lead down to 28-26, and after freshman Leslie Campbell's lay-up at the 12:30 mark, the Presidents had fought their way back into the lead at 30-29. Unfortunately for Quincy, foul trouble and another 9-0 scoring run by Hingham immediately after Campbell's bucket sealed their fate.

"The opening minutes of the second half was a see-saw affair," Bretsch said. "After we found ourselves up by one with 12 minutes remaining, a tough fourth foul against Kyle sent our senior captain and defensive stopper to the bench and Hingham responded by rattling off a 9-0 run."

The Presidents quickly found themselves down by as many as eight points, but as has been the case all season long, the team jumped on the back of its captains and made one more run at Hingham. At the 3:40 mark, Torpey drove hard into the paint and scored while getting fouled. She made her free throw and Quincy suddenly found itself down just five points at 42-37. But this was as close as the team would get the remainder of the game. Trailing by eight points with two minutes remaining, Quincy was forced to foul to no avail as Hingham calmly stepped to the line and sank their free throws.

"Meagan Tobin did everything she could," Bretsch said. "All the kids were hustling. Our seniors-Brigid Kyle, Hope Collins and Jackie Provenzano-were all working their hearts out in their last game. I would like to have seen them rewarded for their efforts, but I am so proud of them. We came in here as the 20th seed and gave the fourth seed a pretty good scare."

With time winding down, Bretsch made sure to put his three seniors (Collins, Provenzano and Kyle) into the game so they could end their Quincy careers on the hardwood. As the final horn sounded, another successful season had ended for the Quincy Presidents. The 2006-2007 team finished their year with an 11-11 record and a 1-1 record in post-season play.

Meagan Tobin led Quincy with 14 points, Marybeth Torpey finished with nine points and Leslie Campbell and Brigid Kyle each chipped in six points.

The team will enter next season with a roster filled with players who have big game experience and a handful of underclassmen that should play major roles in the upcoming seasons. Graduating seniors include Kyle, Provenzano and Collins, but junior captains Tobin and Torpey will be back along with starters Liz Bock (junior) and Leslie Campbell (freshman). Also returning next season will be juniors Kathryn Carella, Julie Kisiellus, Kerri Ryan and Hilary Mills and sophomore Alyssa Mullen.

Spring Training Starts For Senior Olympics

Spring training for Senior Olympians has begun.

"Each Friday morning, adults 55+ are invited to come down to check out the Senior Game activities," reports Sharron Beals, Executive Director of Beechwood On The Bay. "On some Fridays, our Basketball Hall of Fame friend, George Burke, coaches basketball."

"We call it 'Fitness for Fun,'" said Maryann

Mahony, the Senior Center's Coordinator. "All are invited-no cost."

This year's Senior Olympic Games (May 7-14) will expand to all eleven South Shore communities and beyond. Registrations are expected from New Hampshire and Rhode Island as well.

A kick-off breakfast with Dr. Wayne Wescott has been planned for April 4th. Those who wish to learn more about fitness and the Olympic Games are invited. Reservations are needed. There is no cost for the breakfast-but seating is limited.

To register for the 9 a.m. breakfast, call Beechwood at (617) 471-5712.

Registration packets for the Senior Olympics will soon be available at these locations: Beechwood On The Bay, the City Hall Information Booth, the Recreation Department, the Council on Aging, the Quincy Sun and The Quincy Business Association.

a league title for the first time since back-to-back titles in 2001 and 2002 (as a member of the Old Colony League); and saw Goreham smash the school's all-time rebounding record as a junior.

The team will lose five team members to graduation, but will return a handful of all-star caliber underclassmen. Seniors Megan Therrien (captain),

Lauren Stille (captain), Danielle Kelly, Shannon Malone and Caroline Cunningham have all played their last games as Red Raiders, but returning next season are juniors Rebecca Goreham, Kasey O'Connell, Brienne Carnell, Paige Bonanni and MaryKate Stille, sophomores Jess Howlett, Siobhan Carnell (a revelation this season at the guard position) and Catherine O'Connell (a future league all-star in the making) and freshman Rushri Wijesundera.

The team will be in search of a new head coach as current head coach Doug MacFarlane is retiring.

MacFarlane steps down after nine years on the sidelines. During his tenure, the North Quincy Red Raiders won three league titles, including the school's first as a member of the Atlantic Coast League this season.

Children's Health Update

Childhood Obesity Linked To Foot Pain

(NAPS) – Look down to find one possible culprit in America's childhood obesity epidemic: feet.

Doctors with the 6,000-member American College of Foot and Ankle Surgeons (ACFAS) point to a link between foot pain and childhood obesity.

"You want overweight children to exercise and lose weight, but because of their weight, their feet hurt and they can't exercise," says Thanh Dinh, DPM, FACFAS, a foot and ankle surgeon in Boston. "It's a vicious cycle."

An estimated 16 percent of U.S. children ages 6 to 19 are overweight. Foot and ankle surgeons say they're seeing more overweight and obese children with foot and ankle pain in their examining rooms.

"The numbers are definitely increasing. I treat four to five overweight children a week," says Darryl Haycock, DPM, FACFAS, a northwest Ohio foot and ankle surgeon. The average age ranges from 8 to 12 years.

The foot is a complex assembly of 26 bones, 33 joints and more than 100 muscles, tendons and ligaments. Being overweight flattens the foot, straining the plantar fascia, a band of tissue that runs from the heel to the base of the toes, causing heel pain.

Because the heel bone is not fully developed until age 14 or older, overweight children are more prone to Sever's disease. Although not an actual disease, according to FootPhysicians.com, it involves an inflammation of the heel's growth plate due to muscle strain and repetitive stress. Walking makes the pain worse. Being overweight may cause stress fractures, or hairline breaks in a child's heel bone.

But Dr. Haycock notes that some overweight children suffer foot pain from congenital or inherited foot conditions, such as bunions, hammertoes, pediatric flatfoot, and tarsal coalition, an abnormal connection between two or more bones in the back of the foot.

Many of Dr. Haycock's young patients complain of calf or arch pain. This can be caused by a flatfoot that is flexible. The collapsing of the arch can require more energy, making it difficult for a child to walk and run.

Foot and ankle surgeons treat many overweight children with custom orthotic devices (hoe inserts), physical therapy and other conservative measures to reduce or eliminate pain.

"As foot and ankle surgeons, we can reduce the aches and pains so children can run around and play like other kids," says Samuel Nava, DPM, FACFAS, a Dallas-area foot and ankle surgeon. "But parents also need to watch their children's lifestyles and diets."

For more information on children's foot and ankle problems, or to find a foot and ankle surgeon, visit the ACFAS patient information website. FootPhysicians.com.

BOSU Ball Offers 2-Sided Workout

Q. While at a local department store I noticed a device that looks like half a fitness ball. It is called a BOSU Balance Trainer. Although it looked weird, I have been told it is great for training. What is a BOSU ball, and what do you do with it?

A. The BOSU Balance Trainer was invented in 1999 by David Weck. BOSU is an acronym for Both Sides Utilized. It has become very popular in the fitness industry. The BOSU Trainer has been used by fitness and sport professionals for several years, but like many fitness tools, it has only recently become mainstream and more accessible.

Designed to improve balance, core stability, proprioception, coordination and posture, the BOSU ball allows a variety of exercises to be performed on its unique shape. From abdominal exercises to cardiovascular workouts, the BOSU Trainer puts a new spin on its close relative—the exercise ball.

The BOSU ball looks like an exercise ball that has been cut in half. The top resembles a ball, while the bottom is relatively flat. This design allows you to perform certain exercises that could be dangerous if performed on a traditional exercise ball.

For example, using the BOSU ball for squats or lunges is a great exercise progression for balance and stability; however, this type of movement would be unsafe on exercise ball for the average exerciser.

The flat bottom of the BOSU ball provides added safety and increased intensity. Both sides of the Bosu Trainer can be used. The rounded exercise ball side and the flat side each provide a different form of intensity. Exercises, such as push-ups and squats can also be performed with just as much intensity but with the added possibility for more functional progressions.

The BOSU ball can be a great addition to your home gym. I suggest ordering instructional videos to accompany the BOSU Trainer to make sure you are completing the exercises safely at home. If you are trying it out at a fitness facility, seek the assistance of a fitness professional.

The BOSU Balance Trainer can be found at many local department and sporting-good stores and through professional fitness equipment companies. They sell for approximately $99. To learn more about the BOSU Trainer, visit the Web site www.bosupro.com.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

TOOTHBRUSH SELECTION

Because brushing and flossing have such a great effect on oral health, toothbrush selection is no small matter. Brushes that come with the American Dental Association's seal of approval are evaluated by clinical studies to see that they are effective in removing plaque. While brushes with stiff bristles may seem to promise greater tartar-removing ability, they are likely to be too hard on the gums. A gentler brush with soft, rounded bristles is preferred. If reaching the molars and the inside surfaces of teeth poses a problem, it may help to select a brush with an angled and/or tapered head. Beyond toothbrush features, attention should be paid to how much time is spent brushing teeth. If less than two minutes is spent at this task, an electric toothbrush should be considered.

We recommend regular checkups, periodic cleanings, and x-rays when needed. We stress preventive dentistry for all members of the family. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we strive to teach you good oral hygiene. In the long run you have better dental health. Good experiences with dentistry are based on making the right choice in a family dentist and in taking steps to keep dental costs at a minimum through self-care at home between visits. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Be sure to replace a bacteria-laden toothbrush after a bout with a cold so that it will not reintroduce germs to the system.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're correct to want to help someone who seems to need assistance. But be careful that he or she isn't pulling the wool over those gorgeous Sheep's eyes. You need more facts.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your Bovine optimism will soon dispel the gloom cast by those naysayers and pessimists who still hover close by. Also, that good news you recently received is part of a fuller message to come.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Feeling jealous over a colleague's success drains the energy you need to meet your own challenges. Wish him or her well, and focus on what you need to do. Results start to show in mid-March.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You're likely to feel somewhat Crabby these days, so watch what you say, or you could find yourself making lots of apologies. Your mood starts to brighten by the weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your pride might still be hurting from those unflattering remarks someone made about you. But cheer up, you're about to prove once again why you're the Top Cat in whatever you do.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A misunderstanding with a co-worker could become a real problem unless it's resolved soon. Allow a third party to come in and assess the situation without pressure or prejudice.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Call a family meeting to discuss the care of a loved one at this difficult time. Be careful not to let yourself be pushed into shouldering the full burden on your own.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An upcoming decision could open the way to an exciting venture. However, there are some risks you should know about. Ask more questions before making a commitment.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Personal matters need your attention during the earlier part of the week. You can start to shift your focus to your workaday world by midweek. Friday brings news.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You've been going at a hectic pace for quite a while. It's time now for some much-needed rest and recreation to recharge those hardworking batteries.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) This is a good time to upgrade your current skills or consider getting into an entirely different training program so that you can be prepared for new career opportunities.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Keep a low profile in order to avoid being lured away from the job at hand. Focus on what has to be done, and do it. There'll be time later to enjoy fun with family and friends.

BORN THIS WEEK: You can be a dreamer and a realist. You dream of what you would like to do, and then you face the reality of how to do it.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Are you a sentimental person? Do you blot out tears at weddings? Do you show and share grief and sorrow at funerals? Do you like to touch loved ones, and walk hand-in-hand with loved ones? Yes? ... Then you are a sentimental person ...

The late Jeannette MacDonald, one of Hollywood's most popular singer-stars, was once asked, "What's wrong with sentiment?" - This was her reply:

"Today, anything that has a suggestion of sentiment is quickly dismissed as 'corn.' Frankly, what's wrong with it? Have we become so sufficient that we can live without sentiment?

"Sentiment, after all is basic. Without it there is no love, no life, no family."

Most Americans, and all funeral directors, will agree...

father, Pat, a member of the commission. Father and son "went all the way, and were the last two out." Jennie Pentz, award-winner for the best Dunking Toe-Nut, said her friend, Betty Sweeney, sent her frequent emails with directions on what she should do in preparing for this plunge, telling her to gradually lower the water temperature in her showers so that her toe could get used to the cold water.

Other plungers and gift certificates were presented to Barbara Gilliland for being the oldest plunger; Lorraine Pallucci, who they said made the most noise going in the water, received the most enthusiastic award; eighteen year-old Nicole Ash, Abdallah's granddaughter, who said she couldn't feel her toes during the award-presentations-received the youngest plunger award; Christina Mendez, a Mound St. native who raised over $200 wore a bathrobe which clinched the ugliest costume award for her; Abby Ash, Abdallah's daughter, received the most original costume award. Various other prizes and goodies were distributed to participants in a random drawing, so each of the plunge participants received recognition.

Laura Stracco, Executive Director of Interfaith Social Services, located at 105 Adams St., was grateful for the turn-out.

"We are inundated with requests from people who are having all kinds of problems with fuel and electricity and food, trying to decide which bills they are going to cover this month. We run a bureau-drawer thrift shop that we invite everyone to make donations of everything except large appliances, year round. People come and they say they can't believe the bargains they get, that is one of the nicest thrift shops on the South Shore. And we still have a bunch of plunge T-shirts left over which are available at the agency for a minimum $15 donation."

Saturday's plunge was only one of the many events held on city-owned beaches and sponsored by the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission, which has been encouraging resident use of Quincy's beaches since its formation in 1998. Publishers of the yearly "Beach Guide," the group is dedicated to restoring and protecting the city's beaches.

Interfaith Social Services is a private, non-sectarian, non-profit agency, which offers assistance and support to those in need, including access to food, clothing and counseling. Donations may be made payable to Interfaith Social Services, and mailed to Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission, c/o Chickie Abdallah, 48 Silver St., Quincy 02169.

Upcoming events for Interfaith Social Services include a South Shore Walk on April 22 and a golf tournament June 25. For more information on ISS visit HYPERLINK http://www.interfaithsocialservices.org or call 617-773-6203.

DANGEROUS CROSSING. Quincy American Legion Post 95, which has no parking space of its own, abuts Revere Road, a barrier between the Post Home and the municipal parking lot. Veteran members are seeking to have the post taken by eminent domain to make way for the Quincy Center Concourse connector.

New Highway Will 'Put Us Out Of Business'

Quincy Legion Post WANTS To Be Taken For Concourse

By TOM HENSHAW

For years, Quincy American Legion Post 95 at 27 Revere Rd., one of the oldest veterans' posts in the nation, has operated at a disadvantage.

It has no parking lot of its own. Guests at the many dances, receptions, christenings and the like have to leave their cars in the municipal lot and cross busy Revere Road to the post.

For a while, with the expected coming of the Quincy Center Concourse, it appeared to the 300 veteran members of the post that their 30 years of problems were over.

The Concourse would run right through their building. The city would take it by eminent domain and the post would be able to move into a new building with ample parking.

But when the list of landtakings came out the other day, Quincy Legion Post 95 was conspicuous by its absence among the estimated 24 businesses that were to be taken.

Worse than that, Revere Road would become an even busier four-lane highway whisking traffic from one main highway, Hancock Street, to another, Washington Street.

"If that plan goes through, we're out of business," said George McRay, commander of Post 95, which derives a good part of its income from rentals of its hall.

"Senior members of the post and people attending events there will not want to cross that street from the parking lot.

"There is no provision for a stop sign at Revere Road and Mechanic Street and there are already traffic lights at Revere Road and Hancock and Washington Streets."

While others may be ready to fight City Hall to retain their property, members of Post 95 are fighting to offer it up.

Leonard Seitz, a member of the post's executive committee, said the initial proposal for the Concourse would have taken it through the vacant lot where the Kincaide building used to be.

"That would have wiped out the post," he said. "Now the plan is to go through the cinema and the less expensive route was scrapped."

McCray said ever since the cross town connector was first discussed more than 10 years ago, Post 95's location was expected to be directly impacted by the roadway.

"At a chance meeting with (Planning Director) Dennis Harrington last summer, he told me that all of the plans under review at that time impacted the Post home in some fashion," he wrote to Mayor William Phelan.

"As you can imagine, our membership was genuinely surprised to learn that our building at 27 Revere Rd. was not included in the city's proposal to create a cross town connector.

"Our membership has long accepted the fact that our present location was vulnerable to this likely fate.

"As a consequence, we deferred necessary improvements to this property, electing instead to invest in many civic and charitable endeavors, which benefited the city of Quincy and its residents during this time.

"In addition, our membership is concerned that the proposed cross

'No Way' Will He Fire Police Chief Phelan Stands Behind Crowley

The head of the patrolman's union wants the police chief fired for endangering public safety with inadequate patrols.

The mayor says "no way," and points to FBI statistics that have crowned Quincy as the second safest city in the state.

Union President Bruce Tait started the current dustup when he charged that, in defiance of a City Council order, Chief Robert Crowley used fewer than 13 cruisers to patrol the city at least three times.

"Enough is enough," Tait wrote in his blog. "I'm calling on Mayor Phelan to immediately terminate the employment of Robert Crowley as police chief."

Mayor William Phelan told The Quincy Sun that he has no intention of firing Crowley and he told his weekly press availability on Access TV that "I support the chief."

At the behest of Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi, the Council voted to direct Crowley to use no less than 13 cruisers per shift to patrol the city. Tait said he did not.

"Specific shifts call for a different number of cars," Crowley told The Sun. "Some call for less than 13, many call for more."

"Our issue is public safety. We never do anything to compromise public safety."

"For anyone to say that we would do that is totally irresponsible."

"I'm satisfied that what we are doing is more than adequate."

Crowley said he is willing to discuss that and other issues of disagreement with Tait and his union officers.

Last fall the union passed over-

Koch, Phelan Trade Jabs Gloves Off In Mayoral Race

The gloves apparently are coming off in the 2007 campaign for mayor of Quincy — and the final balloting is still nearly eight months away.

Candidate Tom Koch has claimed that Mayor William Phelan used taxpayer money to include a four-page color brochure about himself in this year's annual city census.

He called it "a clear misuse of public money for political purposes."

Koch's campaign filed formal requests with both the State Ethics Commission and the State Office of Campaign and Political Finance asking if the flyer violates state election law.

Phelan declined an opportunity to comment to The Quincy Sun on Koch's charges but later he told his weekly press availability on Quincy Access TV that "this tells you where this campaign is going."

Thomas Largey, spokesman for the mayor, told The Sun the complaint "says more about the Koch campaign than the Phelan administration."

"It is absurd," he said, "to com-

7 Deadly Mistakes That Will Cost You Thousands When You Sell Your Home

Quincy - A new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9 Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market. The fact of the matter is that fully three quarters of homesellers don't get what they want for their home and become disillusioned and - worse financially disadvantaged when they put their home on the market.

As this report uncovers, most homesellers make 7 deadly mistakes that will cost them literally thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable.

In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar."

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report, call 1-800-611-0351 and enter ID #1000. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

plain to the Ethics Commission about how the government is run."

Koch, who is basing his candidacy in part on the need for better communication with the public, said the brochure was symbolic of deepening disconnect between the mayor's office and residents of the city.

"It seems we've captured the mayor's attention," he said.

"That said, I don't think the taxpayers should be required to pay when the mayor feels the need to communicate with our residents."

"There are plenty of other ways for a sitting mayor to talk with the public at no cost. That's what being the mayor is about."

Largely said the Phelan administration has been one of "openness with a five-year record of reaching out to the taxpayer."

"We have weekly press availabilities that are televised and dozens of neighborhood meetings where we have acted on the input.

"That's not campaigning. That's good government."

"The administration that Tom Koch served went in the other direction. They wanted to build a new high school on a toxic waste dump and lost millions trying to revive shipbuilding at the shipyard."

Largely was referring to Koch's role as chief of staff to Mayor James Sheets, whose 12 years in office ended in a grand jury investigation and a breakin at City Hall.

Koch's Ethics Commission complaint noted that production of the brochure came after Koch announced his candidacy, thus requiring overtime payments to at least one city worker who stuffed the envelopes and delayed mailing of the annual city census, an important legal document.

Largely said the brochure was being drafted long before Jan. 23 when Koch made his announcement.

State law, said Koch, prohibits public officials from using their positions for political gain.

Specifically, he said, the law states that candidates who are also public employees cannot use "staff time, publicly-provided stationery, office supplies, utilities, telephones, office equipment (copying machines, typewriters, word processors, fax machines, e-mail), office space and other facilities."

"These are intended for the conduct of public business, not for conducting political activity or otherwise advancing the political interests of public employees."

The Koch campaign also filed a public records request to the mayor's office seeking detailed explanations of the costs associated with producing the brochure.

Campaign Chairman Jack Nigro, who filed the complaints, estimated that producing a four-page color brochure sent to nearly 50,000 people would cost at a minimum thousands of dollars.

"It may end up being legal but there's no question in my mind that it is inappropriate," said Koch. "I can't wait to talk about many of the issues the mayor raised in his brochure but the taxpayers won't have to foot the bill."

He noted that the top of the brochure declares that it is the "premier issue" of the brochure.

"I find it ironic that after five years as mayor, he decides to send out the 'premier issue' of a brochure with the goal of communicating with residents," said Koch.

"If this mayor was truly intent on communicating with the public, he wouldn't have waited five years."

"The mayor has nearly $200,000 in his campaign war chest to pay for things like this, so the use of taxpayers money is truly inexplicable."

Phelan hinted at his press availability that he is eager start campaigning "on the issues."

"Quincy is moving in the right direction and I can't wait to start talking about it," he said. "I hope that will be the direction the campaign is going in. I'm willing to talk all day about the good things we have done."

Quincy 2000 Training For Start-Up Businesses

'Dr. D' Provides Ears For Those Born Without Quincy Plastic Surgeon Make Life Normal For El Salvador Youngsters

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Their real names are Armando and Madeline, Rudy and Carlos but classmates taunted them with names like "Goat ear" and "leper", and even worse, in their schoolyards.

Afflicted with microtia, these children were destined to suffer lifelong discrimination because of the birth defect that causes the absence or deformity of an ear.

But, for nearly three dozen youngsters in El Salvador, that doesn't happen anymore. Their future is brighter now.

Thanks to Dr. Raffi Der Sarkissian, a plastic surgeon based at Crown Colony in Quincy, and his team from Salem's Medical Missions for Children (MMC), these children will lead more normal lives. One little boy now dreams of becoming a lawyer.

Dr. Der Sarkissian, better known as "Dr. D," recently completed his second trip to El Salvador where he operated on 18 children, surgically creating and attaching actual ears where nature forgot them.

On his previous trip in 2006, Dr. D operated on 14 children and this second trip allowed follow-up on past surgeries. "It's pretty much a long-term commitment," Dr. D said of the return visits.

Three other surgeons and four anesthesiologists joined the MMC team for this year's trip with Dr. D. If one had to put a price-tag on February's medical mission, it would surpass $1.2 million after tallying the value of eight doctors, medical aides, drugs and equipment.

The other surgeons operated on children with cleft lip and palate problems while Dr. D focused on microtia patients. All told, the team treated 40 children during their nine days in a modern medical facility donated by British philanthropist Benjamin Bloom.

"My area of expertise is making ears," Dr. D said recently during an interview at his Crown Colony office where he specializes in aesthetic and reconstructive surgery, a career that combines his love of art and science.

According to Dr. D, one out of 10,000 American babies are born with microtia while the problem occurs three times more often in El Salvador, possibly due to heavy use of insecticides on banana crops and to a genetic element.

While surgery can repair the physical damage, the children's hearing will always be somewhat impaired.

"They can hear as if you and I were hearing with our fingers in our ears," according to Dr. D.

"There's very few of us who do ears," Dr. D said, estimating that only 20 surgeons in the United States are specialists in the field and few, if any, in other parts of the world.

One youngster's parents saved all their money to go to Mexico for an operation for their son only to be told in Mexico that nothing could be done. Dr. D and his team gave him a new ear.

Given the opportunity, Dr. D will walk his visitor through every phase of the ear restoration operation from the removal of three to four ribs to the sculpturing and implanting of the new ear.

Dr. D follows his patients with pictures and answers e-mail questions from his patients in El Salvador, such as the parent who wanted to know when his son could shower. Just this week, a father e-mailed him a note, "I consider you my best friend in the case of the my child."

Dr. D grew up in the Bronx surrounded by art and beauty as his parents were artists. He chose to specialize in plastic surgery in medical school after "I broke my nose playing soccer." And the plastic surgeon repaired his nose.

The former Chief of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery at Boston Medical Center and assistant professor at Boston University School of Medicine, Dr. D is proud of his profession but wary of new trends that "trivialize" plastic surgery, making it as frivolous as getting a new hairdo.

For him, on any given day, his work is exciting as he can help someone restore their looks or reconstruct a nose battered in an accident.

Dr. D still teaches, still lectures and still writes articles and books on plastic surgery but his private practice now allows him more freedom for his family, his wife and two toddlers, and his pro bono projects which have also taken him to Armenia, Europe and Vietnam.

Sadly, such charitable work has gone out of fashion in the United States, according to statistics from the American Medical Association quoted by Dr. D who said that 20 years ago, 40 % of America's doctors offered pro bono services.

"It's probably less than five percent today," Dr. D said.

Looking for a great local bank?

Have all the great local banks disappeared? Absolutely not! We're Colonial Federal Savings Bank – an independent local bank with no plans to merge. We keep things simple and we treat customers right. For example: We don't make you open multiple accounts to get our best deals. We don't make you give us your life savings to get a great rate on a CD. If you have a question, you talk to us – not some out-of-state call center. And most of our people have been with us for years, so they know what they're talking about. We offer every banking service from old-fashioned Christmas Clubs to state-of-the-art online banking, free checking, mortgages, business banking and more. We've been part of the South Shore community since 1889. And we think it's our job to make it easy for you to bank with us. Had it with big banks? Come see us! THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On March 15, 44 B.C., Julius Caesar is murdered by his own senators at a meeting in a hall next to Pompey's Theatre. In a dagger attack, Marcus Brutus wounded Caesar, and Caesar is said to have remarked in Greek, "You, too, my child."
- On March 17, 1762, in New York City, the first parade honoring the Catholic feast day of St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, is held by Irish soldiers serving in the British army.
- On March 12, 1776, in Baltimore, a public notice appears in local papers recognizing the sacrifice of women to the cause of the revolution. The boycotts that united the colonies against British taxation were generally of products used mostly by women. The colonists only resorted to an attempted boycott of rum after Britain closed the port of Boston.
- On March 13, 1865, the Confederate States of America reluctantly approves the use of black troops. Several thousand blacks were enlisted in the Rebel cause, but they could not bring to balance out the nearly 200,000 blacks that fought for the Union.

• On March 16, 1909, a federal court ruled in Harper and Bros. v. Kalem Co. that the movie studio's 1907 production of "Ben-Hur," filmed without the author's permission, was a copyright violation. Kalem paid the author's estate $25,000 in damages.

• On March 18, 1925, the worst tornado in U.S. history passes through eastern Missouri, southern Illinois and southern Indiana, killing 695 people, injuring some 13,000 people and causing $17 million in property damage. The "Tri-State Tornado," which traveled 219 miles, had a diameter of more than a mile, spent more than three hours on the ground and traveled at speeds in excess of 70 mph.

• On March 14, 1967, the body of President John F. Kennedy is moved to its permanent spot at Arlington National Cemetery. JFK's original gravesite attracted 16 million visitors in the first three years after his death.

An Anchor A Nautical Touch

That new 50-foot flagpole at the Fore River bridge rotary is a majestic eye-catcher.

Old Glory flying at the top with the MIA-POW flag and the City of Quincy flag fluttering from the yardarm.

But, I still think something is missing: a Navy ship anchor at its base.

The flagpole, erected in January, replaced the Granite Ball that had been there some 68 years before it was moved back to City Hall, its original site.

Quincy Point residents were disappointed when the ball was moved. Some of the newer residents thought it has always been at the rotary and saw it as "Quincy Point's ball."

But the ball was a gift from the Quincy Granite Manufacturer's Association June 25, 1925 to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Quincy in 1625. And stipulated that the ball be placed outside City Hall.

It was moved in 1937 when the Fore River rotary was named Wigglesworth Circle in honor of Congressman Richard Wigglesworth.

Mayor William Phelan brought it back to City Hall last June where it belongs and where it is the crown jewel in the Constitution Common picturesque setting.

And where it can be seen close-up and appreciated, more than it was at the rotary. And where children again can delight in seeing their reflections in the polished granite.

As the years went by, the ball became less visible at the rotary with shrub growth and an accident risk for motorists trying to get a glimpse of it.

But the flagpole certainly is visible and will remain so. It makes for a pretty picture with the three flags.

An anchor, an appropriate nautical touch, would complete the picture.

The old Fore River shipyard just a few feet away was famed for building some of the great Navy fighting ships that played a major role in winning World War II.

Such ships as the battleship Massachusetts, the aircraft carriers Lexington and Wasp, cruisers Quincy and Boston.

In the three years after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941 the yard turned out some 88 ships from LST's (landing ships tanks) to carriers an average of one every 12 1/2 days.

After the war, the yard built the first nuclear-powered surface combat ship, the cruiser USS Long Beach in 1961 and the second, the frigate Bainbridge in 1962. It also built luxury liners.

And in the shipyard today is the USS Salem Naval Shipbuilding Museum.

An anchor at the base of the flagpole would be a most fitting tribute to Quincy Point and its shipbuilding history.

Tax Assistance For Low, Middle Income Payers

The Council on Aging will again sponsor the AARP Tax Aide Program to provide free, personal income tax assistance to low and middle income taxpayers.

Special attention is given to those 60 years old and older.

The assistance will be provided, by appointment, each Monday beginning Feb. 12 and lasting through the tax season at the Richard Koch Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

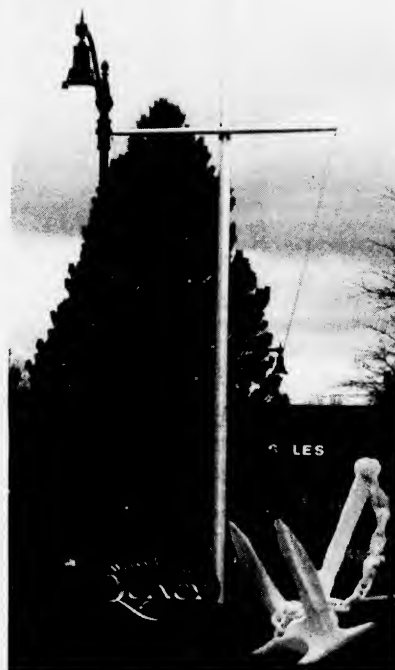

For an appointment, contact the COA at 617-376-1508.

COA Seeking Wheelchairs

The Council on Aging is in urgent need of wooden or metal wheelchairs of all sizes and canes to help disabled seniors to get around.

If you have one, call the council at 617-376-1506.

THIS GIVES YOU an idea of what a ship's anchor would look like at the base of the new flagpole at the Fore River rotary. The anchor was superimposed on the photo taken by Robert Noble.

There's been talk of getting an anchor but one has yet to be found. Maybe Congressman Bill Delahunt could track one down.

Maybe from a ship in mothballs or one about to be scrapped.

And maybe from one built in Quincy.

LEO KELLY isn't letting any grass grow under his feet this election year. Kelly has named George Murphy of Rock Island Road, a retired Weymouth teacher, as his campaign manager.

Kelly will be seeking his ninth term as Ward 1 councillor.

KELLY

SMILE DEPT: Mayor William Phelan sent out a newsletter with the 2007 city census forms mailed last month.

It provided neighborhood updates, information on the energy saving program in municipal buildings, streets and sidewalk improvements, etc.

There was also a suggestion form inviting residents to submit ideas to help the city provide better services or to save money.

A Bowdoin Street resident got right to the point: "Use common sense. Don't water the grass when it's raining."

Quincy, Mass.

THIS IS A 1920 postcard showing the Finnish Uljas-Koitto Temperance Society Hall that was on the corner of Nelson Street and Suomi Road in West Quincy for 75 years. A fire set by vandals destroyed the building in 1974. Finnish people first arrived in South/West Quincy in 1886 to work in the granite industry. Over time hundreds of Finns had settled in what became known as the Brewer's Corner neighborhood. By 1890 they had formed their own temperance society and in 1898 had sufficient funds to build the small hall shown in the front here. The building was expanded with the large addition on the rear in 1912. After the fire, only a small stone tablet marks this site. In 1926, the society had purchased a small summer camp on Furnace Pond in Pembroke and expanded their presence there over the years. Known as the UKTS sauna camp they are still in operation there on Suomi Road off Route 36. Suomi is the Finnish word for Finland and/or Finnish, Uljas-Koitto translates to "Noble Endeavor." Quincy Shore Adopt Mandatory Recycling

We moved to Quincy six years ago from out of state and have been advocates for our beautiful city, until now. I am thoroughly disgusted with the arrogance of our city councillors regarding mandatory recycling.

The nation has been focused on global warming and ways to reduce our energy consumption. Forgive my ignorance but wouldn't mandatory recycling help the environment? Not only would mandatory recycling help the environment, it would also save our city more money.

After living here for a few years I noticed the politics of many of the city projects and proposals, naive as to why it had gone on for so long. Then after attending a social function, a long time Quincy resident said to me, "Don't you know Quincy is an Old Boy's Network and if you're not an Old Boy it won't get done." At the time I didn't feel this was true, until now. Mandatory recycling should be adopted in the city of Quincy.

I know I am not an Old Boy, not born and raised in Quincy, but my opinions and the opinions of others matter. Not only do our opinions matter but we vote. It's a sad statement when an elected official is afraid to enforce mandatory recycling in an election year.

Maybe our global environment is slightly more important than your own individual city council seats. Myself and many other Quincy residents will be watching to see how the council resolves this issue. Remember the face of Quincy is changing and this "Young Girl" votes every chance she gets.

Treatment Of Illegal Immigrants 'Most Intolerable'

Quo Vadis America?! Whither, America?!

The recent shock treatment of the illegal immigrants by the USA Federal Authority in New Bedford, Mass, represents, as Sen. Edward Kennedy declared, "the most intolerable, the most irresponsible and the most un-American activity."

It is significant that the same behavior is exhibited by us nationally and internationally. It is directed against our friends. The goal is to make our friends our enemies.

In the Arab world, Saddam Hussein has been our most loyal friend, for many years. The whole world knows what happened to his country, to him and to his two sons. The next in line for our mistreatment of our friends are our illegal immigrants, the people who love us and who contribute to the quality of American lives, for less money than the American citizens and documented immigrants.

After an unexpected arrests and deportation in New Bedford, a young woman gave to a TV station a very beautiful description of the illegal immigrants: "The illegal immigrants did not come to America to be illegal. They came to work and to make a better life for themselves and for their children."

The illegal immigrants did not have a choice to be legal or illegal and chose to be illegal. The illegal immigrants are "the smallest of men" that Christ implored all men on earth to treat them as God's most favorite children.

Mayor Urged To Reconsider $58,000 School Cut

By FRANK McCAULEY

The school budget committee of the Quincy Parent-Teacher Council asked Mayor Charles A. Ross to reconsider his $58,000 cut in the 1949 school budget.

The request was made in a statement issued by Earl Lantery, chairman of the committee, which was formed by the Parent-Teacher Council for the express purpose of trying to regain the money, which the mayor had stricken from the departmental budget.

The school budget advisory committee has been investigating quite extensively the cut in the school budget by Mayor Ross. "We are firmly opposed to this cut or any other cut that might be made by the council finance committee," the committee said. "We feel that the Mayor's actions was decidedly unwise."

AUDITOR OPPOSES

PUBLIC FUNDS FOR CHRISTMAS LIGHTS

Quincy merchants were told that there are "limits to what they can expect from public funds," by a city official who opposes legislation requiring a $2,500 municipal appropriation to help finance Christmas decorations at Quincy trading centers.

City Auditor Leo E. Mullen told a legislative committee at the State House that a city appropriation for this purpose has been sought for several years. Mullen said, "We have done all right by the merchants. We gave them a million-dollar parking area. Talk about being Santa Claus, there are limits to what they can expect from public funds."

HOSPITAL OUT-PATIENT

DEPARTMENT TO BE OPENED

Dr. Ensio K.F. Ronka, director at Quincy City Hospital, announced that the long awaited outpatient department will be opened. "For the people of Quincy it means that they will be able to get certain types of medical and surgical care at substantially reduced costs," he said.

Laurie's 'Crabbies'

At our daughter Nancy's barbershop, her employees are always exchanging various recipes, and while I was having my hair done, one of her talented barbers is also a great cook and gave me this wonderful recipe.

Here is Laurie's recipe for 'Crabbies' of course made with crabmeat, a favorite of so many.

LAURIE'S CRABBIES

- 1 package English muffins
- 1 jar of Old English cheese spread (or other favorite)
- 1 1/2 teaspoons mayonnaise

- 1 can crabmeat (drained)
- 1 stick butter (or margarine)
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt (optional)

Soften the butter, and place in a bowl with the cheese spread, mayonnaise, garlic powder, salt and crabmeat. Spread on halves of the muffins. Cut each muffin half into quarters.

Bake in a 400 degree oven for 20 minutes or until bubbly.

P.S. You can certainly leave the muffins in halves if you don't want to quarter them.

Wine Tasting, Art Show To Raise Funds For Library

The Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library are planning a major fund-raising event in observance of 125th anniversary of the founding of the library.

They will hold a wine tasting in conjunction with an exhibit of paintings of the Fore River Shipyard by Quincy artist Mary Smith Friday, June 8, at the library, 40 Washington St.

During the last fiscal year, ending in June, 2006, the Friends contributed some $24,000 to 744 library programs attended by more than 7,000 persons, 2,000 of them children.

The next meeting of the Friends' planning committee will be March 19 at 7 p.m. in the community room at

'Beatlemania Live' To Benefit Teacher Mini-Grant Funds

The Quincy School-Community Partnership will present its fifth annual benefit concert, "Beatlemania Live," Friday, March 16, at 8 p.m. in the President's Grand Ballroom at the Boston Marriott Quincy Hotel, 1000 Marriott Drive, West Quincy.

General seating tickets are $30 and doors will open at 7 p.m.

The event will capture the authentic sound, mannerisms, costumes and original instruments and take the audience on a magical trip through the entire career of the Beatles.

All proceeds will benefit the Quincy Public Schools teacher mini-grant program, which provides funds for more than 130 Quincy teachers to purchase items that enhance the educational lives and opportunities of their students.

For more information and tickets, call 617-984-8888.

Coming events for the Quincy School-Community Partnerships include:

"An Evening at the Pops," with the Quincy Symphony Orchestra. May 10, at the Boston Marriott Quincy.

QHS Student Celina Abundis Wins First Place Essay Prize From Harvard

Celina Abundis, a sophomore at Quincy High, won first place in an essay competition offered by Harvard's Program for International Education (HPIE).

For the past few months, undergraduates from Harvard have been making weekly visits to Quincy High to teach students about the historical, cultural and modern issues concerning the very heated immigration debate.

HPIE's program is offered to students in the Boston, Belmont and Quincy school districts. The program culminates with a full day trip to Harvard which includes a tour, additional debates, lectures, and a team response to a mock-immigration-crisis situation.

Abundis's essay included thoughtful and insightful information on the history of immigration as well as opinion on the recent passing by Congress of the building of a fence along the Mexican border. First place prize was a generous gift certificate to Border's and an HPIE t-shirt.

Phelan Stands Behind Crowley

whelmily a "no confidence" vote in the chief and last month Tait called him "a liar" before a City Council subcommittee.

"I am more than happy to sit down with the Patrolman's Union executive board any time they want," said Crowley.

"My door is open to discuss any issue they want. I want to open communications."

"He can have his executive board and I'll have two or three of my command staff and we can come to a mutual agreement or agree to disagree."

Phelan told his press availability audience that, 13 cruisers or not, "the Quincy Police Department has never been more visible. I'm proud of what our Police Department does."

He noted that recent FBI crime figures ranked Quincy second behind only Newton as the safest city in Massachusetts.

"Something must be going well," he said, "but we can do better. We are strong but we want to be first."

Phelan said the current controversy "is not driven by the public. The issue is between management and the union."

"My only concern is public safety. We have an extremely safe city due to the good work of our police. I'm proud of them. But we'll keep working on it."

Health Care Reform Topic At Business Owners' Breakfast

Quincy Medical Center and Quincy 2000 will co-sponsor a Business Owners' Breakfast focused on health care reform Tuesday, April 3 from 8 to 9:30 a.m. at Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock Street, Quincy.

The Business Owners' Breakfast is designed to help local business owners to understand how the current health care reform will impact their businesses and employees.

Topics covered during the breakfast will include a review of the state's new Commonwealth Care and Commonwealth Choice insurance products, as well as the Commonwealth Insurance Partnership, a state and federally funded program that helps qualified businesses with uninsured employees and the self-employed pay for health insurance.

Attendees will also learn the obligations for local business owners under the new health care reform, as well as the potential penalties for non-compliance.

Simultaneous translation will be available to present attendees who speak a primary language other than English.

Space is limited and pre-registration is requested.

To register, call 617-847-1454 or visit www.quincy2000.org.

Vets Adviser At COA Office

John D. Miller of Home Care Partners, will be at the Council on Aging office, 83 Saratoga St., each Wednesday to advise veterans or their surviving spouses of their in-home care benefits.

To schedule an appointment, call the Council on Aging at 617-376-1506.

Friendly Visitors Sought At COA

The Quincy Council on Aging is seeking volunteers to call on the elderly who live alone and would welcome a friendly visitor.

The COA is also seeking seniors who live alone and would like a friendly visit themselves.

Call the COA at 617-376-1508 and ask to speak with Lena Trough, the friendly visitor coordinator.

The Council is mandated by law to do background checks on all volunteers.

Seek Medical Gear To Loan

The Council on Aging is seeking donations of medical equipment that is no longer needed by the current owner but can be loaned to someone else.

The present highest priority is given to bath transfer seats.

Call the Council at 617-376-1506.

Literacy Volunteers Adult Spelling Bee Fundraiser At Marshall School March 21

Literacy Volunteers of Massachusetts-Quincy at the Thomas Crane Public Library will hold its annual fundraiser Wednesday, March 21 from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Clifford Marshall School, Moody St., Quincy.

This year's fundraiser will be an adult spelling bee, where teams of three spellers per table.

The event will not require people to spell out loud. Instead, each team will spell on a white board and hold up the answer for the judges to see.

Donation for the event is $300 per team. There are also a limited number of corporate sponsorships available.

The evening will also feature a raffle, refreshments, prizes and surprises.

D.J. Hank Morse of WROR FM 105.6 will be the master of ceremonies.

Andrea J. Cabral, sheriff of Suffolk County, will be the word pronouncer.

Three judges will time the 30 seconds allowed for the answer and will also resolve any disputes about pronunciation or time.

All proceeds will benefit the literacy program and will be used to purchase reading and writing software to reinforce their learning and also teach a most necessary skill: using the computer to communicate and search for information.

Crane Library literacy program serves the South Shore community. Volunteers are trained and matched through LVM-Quincy and have provided free tutoring to adults in basic reading and writing since 1985.

For a registration form and more information about the spelling bee, call Elaine Kline at 617-376-1314.

Space is limited.

town roadway will isolate the Post Home and make access from the adjacent parking area across a four-lane parkway very hazardous, especially for our older members.

"... We remain hopeful that your administration will consider acquiring our property as part of the roadway project."

McCray said he has tried to arrange a meeting with Phelan to discuss the taking but has had no response other than a letter noting that:

"Our planning efforts under the preferred alignment have been ongoing for more than a year. This alignment satisfies both state safety and traffic regulations."

"The city cannot duly justify the purchase of 27 Revere Rd. under a plan that clearly avoids impact to the property."

"The roadway design included sound engineering work for improved traffic flow as well as better pedestrian access. Under the current plan, there will be a center median in front of the Legion to assist safer crossing."

"The City believes the roadway will improve the area surrounding 27 Revere Rd. and produce greater benefits for the community at large."

Quincy Legion Post 95 was founded in 1919, the same year the national Legion was organized.

Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

HEEL PAIN SYNDROME

It seems only natural that putting the entire weight of our bodies on our feet can result in aches and pains. That knowledge is not much comfort to the person who is experiencing heel pain syndrome that is making it uncomfortable to walk. Suddenly increasing your physical activity, or having thin heel pads can contribute to the condition. To make your heel feel better, be sure that you have a solid heel cup in your shoes and appropriate padding, especially if you are doing any activity that puts a lot of pressure on your heels. There are other causes of heel pain, including plantar fasciitis, so if the pain does not go away on its own, see your podiatrist.

Bearing all of the body's weight with every step, the heel is subject to considerable stress. When heel pain is the body's answer to this stress, there are treatments available to eliminate the problem. Any treatment, however, begins with a call to your podiatrist. Located at 999 North Main Street, Randolph, in the MEDICAL OFFICE BUILDING, we are now accepting new patients for a full range of footcare services. Please call 781-986-3668 for an appointment. Office hours are also available at Quincy Medical Center and Milton Medical Building. I am affiliated with the Brockton and Good Samaritan Hospitals.

HINT: Stepping on something such as a stone can cause a bruise in the foot pad that is not visible but can still cause pain.

Kelly Invites Gore Here To Talk Global Warming

Call it a longshot, but who knows?

Ward 1 City Councillor Leo Kelly has invited former Vice President Al Gore to meet with his Environmental and Public Health Committee to discuss global warming.

Gore, fresh from an Academy Award for his documentary film "An Inconvenient Truth," has also been mentioned as a possible candidate for president in 2008.

"Who knows," said Kelly, "he may be up here in New England sometime looking for certain locations to talk about global warming."

And what better place than the Council Chamber in City Hall to talk about global warming — or to announce one's candidacy, for that matter.

In a letter to Gore's office in Nashville, Tenn., Kelly congratulated the former veep for his Oscar and for bringing "climate changes in the world to everyone's attention."

"Whenever you are available, the meeting will be held at your convenience," he wrote.

"The city of Quincy with its population of more than 90,000 is the birthplace of two presidents — John Adams and John Quincy Adams — and also John Hancock.

"The City of Presidents was a very strong supporter of yours in the presidential election (of 2000). Your would be most welcome in our city."

Verizon Blames City Inaction For 93 Double Telephone Poles

By LAURA GRIFFIN

A Verizon spokesman this week fired back at city councillors critical of the company's slow response on double telephone poles and blamed city officials for dragging their feet on the problem.

Double utility poles exist when a second utility pole is erected to prop up an existing pole that is either tipping or leaning or deemed too weak to stand alone. Locally, such poles are often tied to each other with cable or nailed together with plywood.

Verizon press officer Rick Colon charged Monday that his company can't act on nearly 50% of the city's double poles or 93 poles because of the Quincy Fire Department's attachments on the poles.

"In the City of Quincy, there are 218 double poles out of a base of several thousand," said Colon, noting that the "93 attachments are the responsibility of the fire department before anyone else can do anything."

"We can not remove anybody's attachments," Colon said during a telephone interview, adding "Other attachments above (on the poles) need to do their work first."

Colon was contacted after the City Council, on March 5, unanimously passed a two part resolution aimed at slashing the number of double telephone poles on city streets.

At that meeting, Councillors described the double poles littering the city landscape not only as a visual blight, but, in some cases, as dangerous impediments for drivers.

City Council President Douglas Gutro said there were 35 double poles in his Ward 5 district alone and double poles on over 100 streets. Another councillor described a double pole standing in place for two years while a state law already requires that double poles be removed in 90 days.

"They're violating state law. We need to send a message," Gutro said before the resolution, which he hoped could force "utilities to remove these poles."

In the first part, Councillors voted to invite utility company representatives to their next scheduled meeting to discuss the problem. The second part of the resolution offered the Council's support for state legislative initiatives by the Massachusetts Municipal Association (MMA).

Double poles are apparently a statewide problem because the MMA developed the proposal which could fine utility companies for up to $1000 for each occurrence of leaving double poles in place beyond the legal limit.

Councillors also considered delaying votes on new requests for additional poles until the company takes action.

Gutro was contacted by telephone this week and asked to respond to Verizon's charges this week. Gutro said "That's the first time that has been brought to the attention of City Council." He also asked what kind of notice Verizon issued to the fire department or to city officials and in what time frame.

When discussing the issue, Verizon's Colon outlined Verizon's limited ability to remove poles, stating that other parties or attachments must act first. Colon listed the order of attachments as follows: 1. Electric companies 2. Street lights 3. Fire alarms 4. Private attachments 5 cable television and 6. Verizon.

The City Council has scheduled a discussion of the issue at their next meeting on March 26.

Appreciation And Gratitude

I'll photograph occasionally during an adventurous day. It might take place on the water kayaking amongst the seals at Monomoy, or during a long remote winter's walk amongst the sand dunes on the Cape, prodding along for a nine mile trek to photograph some winter scene. I typically focus on during the warmer summer months. It doesn't much matter when or where, if I get a photograph that represents the day and connection experienced during that adventure, I'm driven to write an essay to prolong and appreciate the experience. Here I am doing so again while prolonging and appreciating a different type of experience that I would like to share with you here.

Often times within my office, we'll start the day by searching for incident reports within the system that officers have previously flagged giving notice to us of a situation needing additional attention. Through these flagged reports, an officer can indicate to us that another agency should be contacted to refer an issue to them, or that an individual resides at an address needing intervention or assistance beyond our emergency response. It's not in the last infrequent that fire prevention is asked to channel a request to another agency or party, or follow up on a hazardous condition. I received one such flagged report today.

Without giving too many details, a concerned lieutenant had previously responded to an incident where a resident needed medical assistance. This individual happened to be elderly and the lieutenant saw enough within the apartment that he was concerned about the overall safety and welfare of this individual and another. Meanwhile she was transported to the Medical Center by ambulance and while that addressed an immediate need, the officer felt and noted through a flagged report, that should this individual return to risk, they could remain at risk without assistance in their daily life.

Reading this, I was prompted to contact members of the Health Department where the report narrative raised a concern about health issues. The Health Department in turn filtered this information to an appropriate inspector and a visiting nurse and I was told they would meet me at that address that afternoon to assess the claim. With community police officers present, five of us then met and knocked on the door introducing ourselves and asking to be invited in. We were welcomed, while each of us entered assessing the condition of the interior with each step we took. We did so, I believe, while conveying our genuine empathy and concern for the patient who had been released from the Medical Center. We were pleased to find her doing well and in good spirits.

While a conversation continued, we each assessed the condition of the living space through our own trained eyes. I looked for signs of excessive accumulations of combustibles, blocked exit access and smoke and carbon monoxide detectors. The health inspector looked through her own eyes at the condition of the interior, and the nurse, the appearance of the occupant's health and welfare. I experienced the connection of a joint effort focusing on the welfare of these seniors.

We each discussed our own concerns with them and conveyed our suggestions and our involvement here on in. I believe it was a fruitful visit and we all felt pretty good about our efforts for them.

That's my point here. Through these years in the fire department, particularly these last 13 years in fire prevention, we have the unique opportunity to work with others from other departments for the common good of citizens within Quincy. I believe that each inspector, officer and nurse today was genuinely involved in focusing upon the welfare of these individuals, and channeling them to into a system for assistance. Besides the outcome, just the opportunity to work with such dedicated people is a gift.

Unlike the adventures referred to above, there is no photograph to focus on as I write this I don't need one. There is however, the appreciation and gratitude that comes with the connection of working with these dedicated people. From the lieutenant who flagged his concern, to the agents who walked through that door to assess the need for further help, it's a great opportunity to connect and be a part of an effort larger than ourselves. I'm grateful to be a part of it.

Mayor Says Downtown Makeover Key To Increased Tourism

Mayor William Phelan Tuesday promised that he'd work with local business leaders toward revitalizing the city's center as a boon to both business and tourism.

Addressing some 80 Rotarians at The Neighborhood Club, the mayor called a "vibrant downtown" the key to drawing new visitors and said a downtown makeover will "benefit tourism."

Phelan envisions a downtown destination attracting tourists to lunch, dinner and, maybe, shopping. "We're working on that."

At the luncheon, the mayor welcomed Dean Reeder, the National Park Service Tourism Director, to Quincy. This week, Reeder kicked off a tour of the state's national parks with a first stop at Adams National Historical Park.

Reeder, the featured speaker for the Rotary, said his agency has already begun planning for the 100th anniversary of the National Park Service in 2016.

Earlier this week, Reeder told The Sun that the Park Service is gearing up to increase the diversity of park visitors. Reeder said that young people and people of more diverse backgrounds must be encouraged to visit the parks.

Reeder will be the keynote speaker at the Governor's Conference on Travel and Tourism scheduled for March 22 and 23 in Worcester.

Marianne Peak, Superintendent of the Adams National Historical Park, introduced Reeder to the Rotary luncheon which was a joint meeting of Milton and Quincy members.

Quincy Kiwanis Club Honors 17 Junior Heroes

The Kiwanis Club of Quincy recently recognized 17 young leaders at its second annual "Junior Hero Awards" breakfast held at the Quincy Lodge of Elks Firell Room in West Quincy.

The awards are presented in memory of Patrick White, who died in December 2005 after battling cancer for six years. He was a freshman at North Quincy High School. Patrick was known for his courageous battle with rhabdomyosarcoma, a cancer of the soft tissues and muscles. During his illness, he continued to help others working with the Jimmy Fund.

"This year's top quality group was nominated and selected because they stood out amongst their peers," said Maralin Manning, a member of the Quincy Kiwanis Club and executive director of the Quincy Business Association.

"Their special civic efforts and contributions helped identify each one as a leader within their student body," Manning said. "In addition, these contributions give a whole new perspective on just how local youngsters selflessly contribute to those less fortunate amongst them."

"These young people have learned early in life the skill of giving back. With sustained community encouragement, they should continue to use this skill their whole life," she added.

GRADE 1

Devin Zambruno, St. Mary's School, Devin had donated her hair to Locks of Love after getting her waist-length hair cut above her shoulders. Locks of Love is a non-profit organization that provides hairpieces to children suffering medical hair loss who can't afford them.

GRADE 5

Ashmare Appolon and Lynn Leger, Merrymount School, Ashmare and Lynn raised $100 from their lemonade stand last summer and donated the money to the American Cancer Society.

Joseph Hutchins, Squantum School, was recognized for his general work in the classroom and for being a "buddy" to students who function below him.

Hang I Lam of the Snug Harbor School received her award for her contributions to the school's media center and her help with younger students.

GRADE 6

Katie and Meghan White, Andrew Minton and Matt Levine. The foursome was honored for their participation in a coin drive for the Snug Harbor Community Center. Katie and Meghan White are sisters of Patrick White and make and sell bracelets for the Patrick White Foundation.

GRADE 7

Christine Callahan, Broad Meadows Middle School, was recognized for her six years of volunteer work at Quincy Interfaith Social Services, arranging car washes and bake sales for Avon Walk for Breast Cancer and victims of Hurricane Katrina. She also works with Broad Meadows service groups Workerbees and Operation Day's Work.

GRADE 8

Krisi Gjini, Atlantic Middle School, was honored for helping a fellow student with special needs. After learning the sixth-grade boy could no longer be driven to school by his grandmother, Krisi volunteered to help him learn how to take an MBTA bus to school.

She worked to build his confidence by walking with him to the bus stop and riding with him to the school.

Krisi was also nominated as a peer leader at her school. She helps teach the lessons on the dangers of cigarettes and how to ease the transition to middle school.

GRADE 10

Nicole Casinelli and Logan White, North Quincy

DEVON ZAMBRUNO, a first grader at St. Mary School and Kiwanis Junior Hero, with School Committee member Elaine Dwyer.

High School. Nicole and Logan were honored for their work in the school's child development program.

Donyelle Carmody, North Quincy High School, was recognized for raising money to help low-income children.

Dung My Pham, a student at Quincy High School, was one of only two children from the U.S. who traveled to New Delhi, India, to participate in the second Children's World Congress on child labor.

DONYELLE CARMODY, a senior at North Quincy High School, was a Junior Hero Award recipient.

JOSEPH HUTCHINS, a fifth grader at the Squantum School and Quincy Kiwanis Club Junior Hero Award recipient.

Mary Harris, the senior class president at Woodward School for Girls, was nominated for the award for volunteering with Project Piaba in Brazil which focuses on fish studies and conservation.

Laura Bloomer, a senior at Archbishop Williams High School, was a guest speaker at the United Nations International Year of the Volunteer reception in New York City. She has been recognized with many other awards for her activism and accomplishments.

St. Ann's Observes Catholic Schools Week

Students at St. Ann's School celebrated Catholic Schools Week with activities aimed at expressing their gratitude to the men and women who are fighting for freedom in Iraq.

Colorful displays were created to be sent to our forces in the Middle East and each student contributed a dollar to buy the supplies needed but not provided by the government.

The students also showed their concern for people in the community and around the world by contributing nearly 800 pair of white socks for the homeless and Valentines for priests and nuns who are sick or retired.

They also made time capsules containing meaningful things in their lives, which are to be saved and opened at a later date.

Middle school students from Grades 6, 7 and 8 staged their annual educational fair for parents, family and friends.

Grade 6 presented projects on the saints and the popes; Grade 7 researched and displayed U. S. and world history; and Grade 8 built simple machines from candy dispensers to slush makers.

The week began with a Mass at St. Ann's Church and ended with a Mass celebrated in the school gym. Mrs. Alanna Edstrom, a fifth grade teacher, organized and coordinated the week's activities.

Hints For Homeowners

Insulation May Help To Control Moisture, Too

(NAPS) – Used properly, insulation plays a helpful role in just about any homeowner's personal energy improvement policy. In addition to saving energy by helping keep a house cooler in the summer and warmer in the winter, it can also help make a home quieter by reducing noise. Some insulation may even help to prevent mold and mildew.

Here are some tips from the Department of Energy (DOE) and CertainTeed, a leader in Building Science, on selecting and using insulation:

- Determine where you need insulation, what type is needed and what R-value and thickness you need in various parts of your home. The higher the R-value, the better your walls and roof will resist the transfer of heat. The DOE recommends ranges of R-values based on local heating and cooling costs and climate conditions in different areas of the nation. Check with your local insulation contractor or retailer to learn the recommended R-value for your region.

- Check the insulation in your attic, ceilings, exterior and basement walls, floors, and crawl spaces to see if it meets recommended levels. For example, if your attic has six inches or less of fiberglass insulation, it should likely be upgraded to meet local standards. Or, if your exterior walls feel cold to the touch in the winter or hot in the summer, they may need more insulation.

- Insulate pipes to keep the hot water flowing through them hotter. In the winter insulation helps prevent pipes exposed to the cold from freezing.

- Insulate air ducts to increase the energy efficiency of the overall heating and cooling system.

- If mold is a concern, especially in parts of the country where humidity fluctuates seasonally, a new insulation product is available to help control moisture within wall cavities. Called DryRight FiberGlass Insulation, it provides exceptional thermal and acoustical benefits while helping to control moisture.

DryRight is fiberglass insulation faced with a patented vapor retarder that changes molecular permeability under varying humidity conditions to allow wall cavities to stay dry and help reduce the risk of damaging mold and mildew. Essentially, DryRight, breathes to help keep walls dry.

To learn more about proper insulation, visit www.certainteed.com or call 800-782-8777.

Don't Let Germs Crash the Party

(NAPS) – According to the Centers for Disease Control, approximately 76 million cases of food-borne diseases, commonly known as food poisoning, occur in the United States every year. Fortunately, you can help keep your family out of such statistics.

Food-borne illnesses are attributed to bacteria that can grow and spread throughout the home. The best way to protect yourself is to understand the science behind bacteria growth and spread. Noted microbiologist Joe Rubino recommends taking preventative, scientifically proven measures to help keep your family healthy, happy and safe.

1. Keep your refrigerator at the proper temperature. "The temperature of the food, as well as where it is stored, is crucial to the safety of everyone. Make sure the temperature of your refrigerator is accurate to prevent bacteria growth and spread." Test the temperature of your refrigerator to ensure that it is no higher than 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

2. Thaw and cook food to proper temperature. Use a thermometer to make sure that meat and poultry have been thawed all the way through. "Do research on the time needed to thoroughly thaw ingredients. The heat from cooking food kills bacteria that live in things such as meat and poultry. If the inside of your food is not thawed completely, it won't get hot enough to eliminate the threat."

3. Prevent cross contamination. "The danger lies in contact between cooked and uncooked food and remnants, so take precautions to always keep them separate. Use cutting boards that come with removable mats to cut down on washing time and keep food safe." If you can't find one of these, wash your cutting board with hot water and soap after each use.

4. Sanitize all surfaces that come into contact with food. "Sanitizers, such as Lysol Food Surface Sanitizer, can kill bacteria and eliminate the threat of illnesses caused by E. coli and salmonella. They also require no rinsing and cleanup is quick and effective."

5. Properly store leftovers. Store remaining food in resealable containers and high-quality plastic bags. "Leftovers are enjoyed for days after. It is important that they are stored properly." Rubino recommends looking for products that boast airtight seals to keep food fresh.

A Job Well Done

On Monday, March 5, at approximately 11:35 a.m., Officer Steve O'Donoghue was dispatched to the lobby of the station to meet a female and her roommate about damage to her vehicle. The female victim said she purchased a car from a man (suspect) about a year ago and that he remained friends with her for the past year, although the relationship was plutonic.

The victim stated she believed the man was becoming "attached to me." She said the man was coming by more often and wanted a relationship. The victim said the suspect came by two nights ago (March 3) and began banging on her apartment door, yelling "Open the #%^&#! Door - Don't ignore me."

The victim said she was afraid so she hid in the back bedroom from inside as the suspect left the door area and then walked around the apartment. He then tried to force open a window without success, and then walked over to the victim's car and crouched behind it.

The roommate opened the door and witnessed the suspect straighten up from behind the left rear tire. She asked him what he was doing and he responded, "I'm not doing anything" as he hurried away. Once they decided it was safe to go outside, the victim and her roommate examined the car and found all four tires had been slashed.

The victim then went to the phone and called the suspect and asked him why he slashed her tires. He said, "because I wanted to go shopping and use the car and you would not answer the door or your phone when I called." The victim hung up the phone, which resulted in the suspect calling back over and over. The victim said she finally picked up the phone and the suspect said he would go to the junkyard and get her some tires.

The victim told the suspect she never wanted to talk or see him again. He responded by saying he wanted the car back. The victim said she wanted her money back and this went back and forth for a few minutes until the victim hung up. During this time that Officer O'Donoghue was interviewing the victim, she cried and was visibly upset, holding hands with her roommate.

When Officer O'Donoghue told the victim he was going to find the suspect and arrest him for the malicious damage, the victim became even more frightened. The officer questioned the victim as to why she was so fearful. The victim said the suspect never harmed her but did reveal to the officer that the suspect returned on the 4th and the roommate answered the door.

The suspect walked right into the apartment and the victim and roommate immediately noticed a bulge in his waistband under his shirt. When the roommate inquired about the bulge, the suspect then pulled up his shirt to exhibit a silver and black handgun. The victim became extremely fearful and screamed at the suspect to leave or she would call the police. The suspect then left without incident.

Officer O'Donoghue transported the victims to the courthouse so they could speak with a domestic violence advocate. He then met with Sgt. Tim Sorgi, who organized a team of officers to apprehend the suspect at his worksite. Detectives Dennis Maloney, Jason MacIsaac and Officer Dan Francis went to the Copeland Street work address of the suspect. The officers approached a male in the parking lot, confirmed his identity as the suspect and placed him into custody.

Det. Maloney asked the suspect if he owned a gun and he said he did not. Consent was given by the suspect to search his home for the handgun. The suspect's home was a single family home with three bedrooms on the second floor and only one had a mattress and clothes in it. In the closet of that room inside the pocket of a hooded sweatshirt, Det. Maloney located a pellet gun. The gun was a black and silver Powerline brand and had a magazine that could be removed from it.

Det. MacIsaac took several photos of the gun and the location that it was found in. The gun was taken into evidence at this time to show the veracity of the victim's story. Once at the station, the suspect was fingerprinted and minutes later, the FBI teletype indicated that the suspect had provided a false name, had a criminal record out of state and had a warrant out of New Jersey for "unlawful possession of a handgun." The suspect, a 27-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with "vandalism and fugitive from justice."

Nice work!

What could these victims have done better? The first issue is hiding in the bedroom for fear of the person at the door. Ideally, a call to the police prior to this escalation would be the correct action, so that an officer could intervene and advise the suspect to stay away from the victims and their home. Since this didn't happen, a quick "911" call would let the suspect know the victims were serious about ending their relationship and probably would have saved them the aggravation of getting new tires.

If you are in a situation where you are in fear and hiding in a back bedroom, this would be time to call the police for help.

Another concern was the victims on the following day would open the door without inquiring who was there, after being in such fear. Once he returned, a call should have been made to the Quincy Police, but instead, the victims appeared willing to let anyone in who was at the door. Remember, as in any incident when someone is knocking at your door, once the door is opened, it takes only a second for someone stronger or armed to gain entry. Once that has been accomplished, those inside have created significant risk to themselves.

The best action is to ask who is there and their reason for being there. As always, when in doubt, call the police and let us assess the situation.

CRIME PREVENTION ADVICE: Officer Bob Pearson, who works the dayshift in Houghs Neck, asked me to reach out to the citizens of Quincy with this request: Please lock your car doors at night. There have been breaks into cars recently but few by force. This is usually done by youths, who walk around looking for the easy access of an open car. He added that some car owners were angry that someone had been inside their car, but angry with themselves that they left the car unlocked and had valuables left in plain sight taken.

Quincy Falls In South Sectional Semi-Finals

Presidents' Campaign Ends With Loss To CM

By SEAN BRENNAN

A trip to the Division 2 South Sectional finals was not in the cards for the No. 8 Quincy Presidents, as the team lost to No. 5 Catholic Memorial 75-66 in the semi-finals. The game was played last Thursday night at Brockton High School.

After dispatching No. 9 Silver Lake 62-48 in the first-round and steam-rolling No. 16 Sharon 73-52 in the quarterfinals (both games were played in Quincy), the Presidents jumped out to an early 13-5 lead against Catholic Memorial behind seven straight points from junior forward DeShawn Matthews. Junior guard Paris Amado dropped in two three-pointers for Quincy in the early going to give the Presidents a night point lead just 3:23 into the semi-final game.

The Knights quickly answered their early deficit with an 8-0 scoring run to tie the game at 13-13. The two teams traded baskets throughout the next five minutes of play, but with the score tied at 20-20 (with 6:28 left in the half) the Knights took over the game during the next three minutes. A 20-20 tie quickly became a 36-20 lead for Catholic Memorial, as the Knights went on a blistering 16-0 scoring run.

When the dust finally settled to end the first half, Quincy was facing the daunting task of having to come from behind. The score at halftime was Catholic Memorial 40 and Quincy 25.

But the Quincy Presidents were not one of the best teams in the Atlantic Coast League by accident. After Catholic Memorial upped their lead to 20 points early in the second half, Quincy had one more spirited run in them. Sophomore sensation Doug Scott, who was held to zero points in the first half, helped fuel the Quincy comeback bid in the final 16 minutes. Scott made his first bucket of the game with 10:09 left (a three-pointer) and would go on to score 19 points in the half.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

"Everything has to go right on a comeback," head coach Bob Fisher said. "We just didn't finish some layups we could have finished, but I think they knew they were in a ballgame."

Matthews led all President scorers with 21 points. Scott finished the game with 19 points and Steve Connolly chipped in 8 points.

The final score may have made the final outcome look a little more respectable, but in no way was the final outcome indicative of just how successful the season was for the Presidents.

The team finished the 2006-2007 season with a 17-6 overall record and ended the regular season in second-place in the Atlantic Coast League North Division (behind Whitman-Hanson High School). The team's trip through the post-season, which ended in the semi-finals, was the farthest a Quincy team had gotten in the last 30 years.

"Our kids had a heck of a year to get to the semi-finals," Fisher said. "For Quincy High School this is a great accomplishment for the kids... The seniors were special."

For a program that found itself at or near the bottom of its league standings just a few years ago, the influx of a talented senior class, a handful of promising underclassmen and a coach who knows how to get the best out of his teams, Quincy has shot up the ranks as one of the best teams in the area.

Since Fisher took over the program in '04-'05 the Presidents have gone a remarkable 51-14 and have two Atlantic Coast League regular season titles to go along with this season's semi-final appearance on their resume.

Although the team will lose seven seniors, it also will be in great shape next season, as the team will return 3/5 of its starting lineup. Graduating this year are seniors Steve Connolly (captain), Wendell Cosgrove (captain), Sean Boyd, Jared Tucker, Joe Pantano, Charles Dybaud and Matt Boyle.

Key players returning next season include juniors DeShawn Matthews, Kenny Francis, Lias Zhi Chao and Paris Amado, sophomores John Parry, Jean Baptiste Adams and Doug Scott (if you have not seen him play, make sure to check him out next year, he is that good). The only freshman on this year's roster was Robbie Bina.

season-high 22 points. Also playing well on defense were Courtney Peters, Uyen Vu and Erin Hockey. The team will play against Abington at home on Saturday, March 17.

Seniors Training For Olympics

Spring training for Senior Olympians has begun.

"Each Friday morning, adults 55+ are invited to come down to check out the Senior Game activities," reports Sharron Beals, Executive Director of Beechwood On The Bay. "On some Fridays, our Basketball Hall of Fame friend, George Burke, coaches basketball."

"We call it 'Fitness for Fun'," said Maryann Mahony, the Senior Center's Coordinator. "All are invited—no cost."

This year's Senior

Olympic Games (May 7-14) will expand to all eleven South Shore communities and beyond. Registrations are expected from New Hampshire and Rhode Island as well.

A kick-off breakfast with Dr. Wayne Wescott has been planned for April 4th. Those who wish to learn more about fitness and the Olympic Games are invited. Reservations are needed. There is no cost for the breakfast—but seating is limited.

To register for the 9 a.m. breakfast, call Beechwood at (617) 471-5712.

Registration packets for the Senior Olympics will soon be available at these locations: Beechwood On The Bay, the City Hall Information Booth, the Recreation Department, the Council on Aging, the Quincy Sun and The Quincy Business Association.

For more information on the Senior Olympics and/or other Senior Center activities, call (617) 471-5712.

Baby Boy Needs Bone Marrow Transplant

Danielle Thibeault To Host Benefit Dinner March 30

By SEAN BRENNAN

In a selfless act of good will, Quincy resident Danielle Thibeault will be hosting a benefit dinner at the Quincy Sons of Italy to help raise money and awareness for Giovanni Gughelmo.

Giovanni is a baby boy who is in dire need of a bone marrow transplant. He possesses a rare disease, NEMO, which is confirmed in only 60 children worldwide and at the moment he is under the care of doctors at Children's Hospital-Boston. To continue living, he needs a bone marrow transplant within the next five months.

Thibeault, who is planning on running April's Boston Marathon in Giovanni's name, is hosting the benefit dinner and Boston Marathon Sponsorship event in order to support Giovanni and his family.

"I read his story (which can be found in the Boston Herald archives) and wanted to learn more about him and his family," Thibeault said recently. "I decided to go to a bone marrow drive that was being held for him in South Boston. I met his father at the drive and decided since I was already planning on running the Boston Marathon, that I would run and raise money in Giovanni's name."

"I don't have a set fundraising goal for the benefit dinner or the marathon, but I am hoping once the word gets out, people will donate to his cause. I am doing this because he deserves to live."

The dinner at the Sons of Italy in Quincy will take place on March 30 from 7 p.m. to midnight. Tickets for the event are $30.

The dinner will have a DJ, possibly some celebrity guests and a raffle. Thibeault is asking local businesses to consider providing any of the items listed below to help her cause:

- Sponsoring her in the Boston Marathon.
- Providing in-kind donations for the Giovanni benefit dinner.
- Provide a monetary donation to assist with the dinner.
- Hanging a copy of the Benefit Dinner poster in their store window front.

If any resident or local business would like to donate to the cause, you can contact Danielle Thibeault at (617) 529-5169 or reach her by email at dthibeault@hotmail.com.

To learn more about Giovanni or to become a bone marrow donor, visit www.helpgiovannigughelmo.org.

Fire, Police Charity Hockey Game Raises $20,000

The Quincy Fire and Police Departments got together last Saturday night to play a friendly game of ice hockey.

The 1st Annual Charity Hockey Game, which was held at the Quincy Youth Arena, raised nearly $20,000 to benefit the Officer James Cochrane "S-6" Scholarship Fund.

The money raised for the James Cochrane Foundation will go toward scholarships for a graduating senior from Quincy and North Quincy High School.

Detective William Ward and firefighter Kevin Ferent presented Cochrane's widow with a memorial plaque that held the ceremonial puck. The puck was fitted with a sticker representing the S-6 unit. This was the unit Cochrane spent most of his police career in.

The event is scheduled to continue next year for another Quincy-based charity or family in need. The hope is to hold the charity game next year to benefit DOVE, a Quincy shelter for abused women and their children.

The Quincy Police Department defeated the Fire Department, 8-6.

Knights Of Columbus Golf League Meeting March 19

The Greater Quincy Knights of Columbus invite interested golfers of all levels to participate in the year's golf league.

An organizational meeting will be held on Mon., March 19 at 7 p.m. at the council hall located at 340 Hancock St., North Quincy. Any interested Catholic man (18 and older) is eligible.

Nine holes of golf are played every Monday night at the Furnace Brook Golf Club, with tee-off starting at 4 p.m. The league starts on a date TBA in April and continues through the summer. Annual dues for the golf league are $100, which includes two banquets and a year-end tournament. Greens fees are paid each Monday. Last year the fee was $26 with a cart.

Membership in the K of C is mandatory to join the league and membership applications will be available on March 19.

The K of C is the largest Catholic men's organization focusing on charitable works and a commitment to church, family and community.

For more information, contact Grand Knight Patrick McDermott at (617) 594-0640 or via email at patrick.mcdermott.91@bc.edu.

Houghs Neck T-Ball League Registration March 23-24

The Houghs Neck T-Ball league will be holding open registration for Quincy youngsters on Friday, March 23 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Sat. March 24 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Registration will be held at the Houghs Neck Community Center, located at 1193 Sea St. in Quincy. Players will be accepted from 3 to 7 years of age. Players must be three by Jan. 1, 2007.

Games will be played at Labrecque Field on Sea St. Sat. mornings at 9 a.m.

Registration fee is $25. Coaches and helpers are needed. For more information visit www.houghsnecktball.com.

future applications will be put on file for possible openings that may open at another date.

You Auto Know

by Bill Starkie and Kevin McGroarty

DOES YOUR VEHICLE HAVE A NAME?

Many people are so attached to their vehicles that they give them names and assign them personalities. According to researchers at Colorado State University, more than half of the students surveyed identified their vehicles by gender and about one-third gave them names. It may seem a bit eccentric to assign personalities to automobiles, but researchers say that this behavior may reveal something about the drivers themselves. Specifically, people who assign personalities to their automobiles may exhibit more aggressive driving behavior. This may be due to the fact that these drivers have a more heightened attachment to their vehicles and general driving sensibility. These drivers want to protect and defend what is theirs. After all, friends look out for one another.

We can appreciate dedication to vehicles. Some of us at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO have been known to name their cars themselves. We care for your car as if it was one of our own vehicles. Your safety and satisfaction are important to us. We are located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, and our phone number is 781-843-1550. Open Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm.

HINT: People who assign their automobiles names and personalities are likely to be greater adherents to preventive maintenance because they anticipate the needs of their "loyal friend."

Mad Science To Explain Special Effects In Movies

Quincy youngsters will explore the intricacies of special effects in movies through demonstrations and hands-on activities Saturday, March 17, when Mad Science of Greater Boston holds a workshop at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

Registration, limited to Quincy residents only, may be made by stopping by the Children's Room in the Main Library or by calling 617-376-2411.

The workshop, "Movie Effects," will demonstrate how the special effects are achieved through science and technology, including how the concept of 3-D was pioneered using red/blue anaglyph glasses.

The children will put their own movie making skills to the test by creating their very own mini-animation booklet to take home.

There will be two sessions of the workshop March 17, the first at 10 a.m. for youngsters age 7 and older and the second at 11:15 a.m. for ages 4 to 6.

The program is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Tax Assistance For Low, Middle Income Payers

The Council on Aging will again sponsor the AARP Tax Aide Program to provide free, personal income tax assistance to low and middle income taxpayers.

Special attention is given to those 60 years old and older.

The assistance will be provided, by appointment, each Monday beginning Feb. 12 and lasting through the tax season at the Richard Koch Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

For an appointment, contact the COA at 617-376-1508.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

How often do you express a doubt? How often do you have doubts about your abilities or doubts about other people? It is healthy and wise to have doubts at times about certain things, but when doubts become chronic and cloud simple reasoning, then doubting has deteriorated to a sickness of skepticism.

We all know people of poise and serenity; we see them with all the trappings of faith and dignity and we doubt whether these persons ever have a doubt about anything. They seem so sure of themselves . . . But, they too have doubts at times.

To doubt is only human. This was true from the days of the Psalmists and through the days of Thomas and is true today. When we find ourselves gripped with uncertainty, we are bound to have doubts. But promiscuous doubting should not be.

Doubts torment us only because we have too little faith. This is true whether it applies to people, science, religion or anything else. Obviously then, the best way to reduce doubts is to increase faith. Sounds simple? It is . . .

Mayor, Health Department Recruiting Medical Reserve Corps Volunteers

Mayor William Phelan and the Quincy Health Department are continuing to recruit volunteers for the Quincy Medical Reserve Corps, cadre of trained medical and non-medical professionals prepared to assist officials during an emergency.

Training on Behavioral Health Disaster Response-Psychological First Aid will be held for Medical Reserve Corps members March 22 in Quincy. Liam Seward from the Department of Mental Health will discuss behavioral health response to a disaster or emergency. This interactive program covers the long-term behavioral health effects of disaster and intervention techniques. Anyone interested in becoming a part of the Medical Reserve Corps may attend the training, and CEUs will be offered for physicians, nurses, paramedics and EMTs.

Nearly 2500 volunteers already have been recruited through orientation sessions held last year to recruit volunteers. Quincy recruited 163 volunteers at two recruitment seminars held last December.

"Getting volunteers trained is a key component in preparing Quincy to be able to respond to any type of emergency," Phelan said. "While nurses initially were recruited, anyone interested in joining the MRC is invited to attend. Participants enjoy connecting with co-workers, local officials, neighbors and friends."

"We were excited to see so much of a response from the community," said Alison Minkoff, Region 4B assistant emergency preparedness coordinator who oversees MRC in the region. "We're looking forward to the training and seeing more new faces."

You do not have to attend an orientation to attend the March 22 training at City Hall, second floor conference room at 6 p.m. To RSVP to this training, or for more information on the Medical Reserve Corps contact Alison Minkoff at 617-665-3871 or aminkoff@challiance.org.

Broad Meadows Wins Top Prize In Coats For Kids Drive

For the second year in a row, Broad Meadows Middle School has won the top prize in the 12th annual Coats for Kids drive.

Students under the direction of teachers Donna Miller and Maureen McKenna collected more than 500 coats and delivered them to Anton's Cleaners.

After cleaning, the coats will be distributed to needy youngsters around the city.

For its win, Board Meadows will receive $1,000 in furnishings from Jordan's Furniture and the entire school will be treated to an ice cream sundae party.

A member of the Boston Bruins will visit the school. Citizen's Bank and Package Supply Corporation also donated prizes.

Unions Unite At City Hall Protest

Over 1,000 Rally For Contracts, Benefits

By LAURA GRIFFIN
More than 1000 city workers, including teachers, firefighters, police, custodians and secretaries, rallied at City Hall Plaza Monday afternoon to demand action on their contracts and protection of their current health insurance benefits.

School bells rang, whistles and horns blew, and chants of "No Pay Cuts" resounded as city employees from 16 unions formed an ever-expanding circle around the plaza's granite ball, then up and down the sidewalk on Hancock Street.

"Most of us are stalled. Some of the units haven't even started to talk," charged Paul Phillips, president of the Quincy Education Association (QEAs) which represents the 900 teachers in the public schools and at Quincy College. The unions still negotiating contracts represent 2,100 employees.

The main purpose of the rally was to "break the logjam and begin real negotiations." For all of the unions, Phillips said, "The issue is the same, benefits. We have to bargain. We are waiting for the city to do some negotiating."

Mayor William Phelan and his opponent, Tom Koch, both issued statements Tuesday regarding Monday's rally while taking issue with one another. Phelan said in part, "It is difficult to negotiate with the work force because at all times the taxpayer must be our primary consideration."

City Reaches Agreement With Superior Officers

The City of Quincy and the Quincy Police Superior Officer Association have reached a contractual agreement, Mayor William Phelan's office announced Tuesday.

The 49 members of the Superior Officer's Union comprises sergeants, lieutenants and captains within the Quincy Police Department.

The agreement, the Mayor's office said, calls for the members of the Superior Officer's Union to pay 85% of their employee benefit package in Fiscal Year 2008, 80% of their employee benefit package in Fiscal Year 2009, and the doubling of the employee co-payment to $10 in Fiscal Year 2010. The employee salary compensation package works out to an approximate 13% raise over four years.

"I am pleased to hear that our bargaining team and the Superior

Rabies Clinic Set For April 21

The Quincy Health Department will hold a rabies immunization clinic Saturday, April 21, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Quincy Animal Shelter, 56 Broad St.

The clinic, which will be held rain or shine is offered at a cost of $10 for each dog and cat in an effort to encourage pet owners to have their animals immunized against the disease.

Residents must bring proof of immunization from the previous year to obtain a three-year shot.

Rabies is an infectious and contagious disease transmitted from exposed wildlife to dogs and cats who in turn can transmit it to humans through bite wounds.

The disease is considered 100 percent fatal if not treated. Exposed cats and dogs that are not vaccinated must be either isolated for three months or destroyed.

Pets must be vaccinated once over three months of age and re-vaccinated within nine to 12 months after the first vaccination. Thereafter, the dog or cat may be vaccinated once every three years.

In Tribute To George DePaulo

Sterling Students Ship Over 3,000 Items To Troops In Iraq

By LAURA GRIFFIN

American soldiers in Iraq are already enjoying the 3000 plus items collected by students at Sterling Middle School during the George De Paulo U.S. Troop Drive last month.

E-mails and letters from the front-line describe soldiers delighted with the T-shirts, the shaving cream, the moleskin for sore feet, the sweatpants, sunglasses, and phone cards chosen from the 47 different items in the CarePacks collected by Sterling's students and packed by 20 volunteer teachers.

Over in Iraq, when those soldiers unwrapped their packets, they not only got special gifts, but notes from the students wishing them well and offering their support.

The soldiers, also, learned about another soldier of a half century past named George De Paulo, a decorated veteran of World War II and a special hero to the Sterling School community.

Through this gift drive, students not only wanted to remember American soldiers in battle, but, also, to honor De Paulo as Sterling's own special hero.

De Paulo recently retired from his job as Sterling custodian after serving that school for over 45 years, the Quincy Public School for just under 60 years, and the City of Quincy for 61 years, officials believe it's a record for both the City and the school system.

Rather than have parties and ceremonies marking his retirement, De Paulo chose to have the students run a United States Troop Drive for the soldiers.

Tucked into each soldier's packet is a note from the Sterling School which describes De Paulo, "The items in this package...are due to the life works of a great man...."

"This man is an ordinary man who lived his life honorably as he served his country, his community and, most importantly, his family. He embodies the truly good qualities in all men which is precisely what makes him great."

As a WWII soldier, De Paulo came home a decorated hero awarded the Purple Heart, Bronze Star, a Presidential Unit Citation and four Campaign Stars.

At the height of WWII from 1942-1945, De Paulo served as a rifleman in the Infantry. It is that battlefield service of over seven decades past that makes him identify with the troops in Iraq.

As a result, Sterling's students rallied to the cause, tapping family and friends and shopping for soldiers with cash gifts. The Quincy Elks were major donors to the drive.

Reached by telephone last week, De Paulo declined to be interviewed at all, but his family, friends and work associates told his story anyhow.

To the Sterling community, De Paulo is their hero because his ordinary life was, in fact, extraordinary. He was far more than their school's custodian; he was there every day by 4:30 a.m. working to keep things right with a smile and encouragement. Sometimes, he still stops by.

Sterling's Principal Earl Metzler and Vice Principal Christine Barrett kicked off the drive with a letter that began, "The Sterling Eagle is about to take flight in honor of our very own "Hero" George De Paulo."

Metzler and Barrett then described De Paulo as "a man we can all look up to and only hope to emulate....George has never stopped living the values the Army instilled in him many years ago. Values such as loyalty, duty, respect, service, honor, integrity and personal courage are only a few attributes."

De Paulo turned 85 in December but still rises around 3:45 a.m. each day, according to Mark Holleran who teaches Grade 8 Social Studies at Sterling. Now, De Paulo concentrates on his wood-working projects at home but still stops by at Sterling on occasion. "I wish I had his energy," said Holleran who is less than half his age. He added that, like the Sterling students, he's learned a lot from De Paulo who seems to be able to do everything, "He's been like a second father to me."

E-Mail Glitch At City Hall

They've got e-mail at City Hall; they just can't always get to it.

Ward 3 Councilor Kevin F. Coughlin told the City Council Monday that there were glitches in the city e-mail system last weekend, and after the Council meeting David Murphy, the Mayor's Director of Operations, agreed.

Murphy acknowledged that widespread problems are occurring sporadically in the city's system with e-mail and internet connections, but added that the city's technical team is working on it with Comcast. The problem affects external e-mail connections, blocking incoming and outgoing messages.

"Comcast is having some problems providing stable connections for the city," Ron Donovan, the City's Chief Information officer, said on Tuesday, adding that there were three Comcast technicians working on equipment at City Hall at that very moment.

"We lost connections last Friday and we lost it again over the weekend," Donovan said, adding both City Hall and the elementary and middle schools are in the system.

Donovan said that there is absolutely no security issues involved in the current problems but added, "What we've lost is productivity." All the e-mails were simply delayed and stored and, later, recovered.

As an example, Donovan said that the nurses in the middle school could not access the health applications until the connections were stabilized. The nurses' data base could not be accessed during any of the periods the system was down.

"A number of departments conduct business through e-mail," Donovan said, citing the Mayor's office, auditing, and purchasing departments. "E-mail is critical today in anybody's business."

Donovan said the City will work with Comcast for the short term in solving the problems but may be shopping for a new internet provider for the long-term.

Actually, Ward 6 Councilor Brian F. McNamee had a different solution which he offered at Monday council meeting. He said you can't depend on e-mail, adding "The assumption is that they're bullet-proof but they (systems) are down for a few hours and the e-mail goes over an electronic cliff."

"Voice mail is much more reliable than e-mail," said McNamee.

LAURA GRIFFIN

NORTH QUINCY HIGH School students recently helped raise money for charity. School Store employees sold school t-shirts and donated $1 for each sale. They also placed a memory tree in the store where faculty and students could place an ornament on the tree in memory of a loved one during the holidays for a donation of $1. Their combined efforts raised over $450. The students chose the Jimmy Fund as their charity. The donation will be in memory of Patrick White who lost his battle with cancer last year as a ninth grade student at North.

Free Legal Clinics At Quincy District Court

Lawyers in Norfolk County will offer free legal advice at five evening clinics scheduled on specific Tuesday evenings each month from April to August.

The clinics sponsored by the Bar Association of Norfolk County will be held at Quincy District Court from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on the following Tuesday evenings: April 10, May 8, May 22, July 10, and August 14.

At these clinics, attorneys offer free private on-on-one confidential consultations on any or all legal issues. No appointments are necessary as the service is on a walk-in basis depending on the legal issue.

The attorneys who volunteer are experienced in different fields of law. For further information, contact Adrienne C. Clarke at 617-471-9693.

Over 200 Residents Submit Ideas For City Improvements

More than 200 Quincy residents submitted suggestions through the "Mayor's Suggestion Box" column in the recent "Quincy View" newsletter, his office said Tuesday. The "Suggestion Box" was designed to allow residents to offer input into ways the City can improve services and/or save money.

One winner will be chosen from the entries and will be featured in the next edition of the "City View" newsletter. The winner will also be invited to lunch with Mayor William Phelan to further discuss their ideas.

"I want to thank everyone that took the time to offer helpful suggestions," said Phelan. "Through our 'Neighborhoods First' initiative and our newsletter, we have created an on-going dialogue with residents on how best to improve our neighborhoods and our city. I was encouraged to see that many of the suggestions are projects that we are currently working on."

Suggestions included: exploring wind energy possibilities, creating a dog park, adding traffic signal improvements, addressing safety issues along Sea Street, improving bicycle lanes, improving ferry service, revitalizing downtown Quincy, combining mailings to save costs, website improvements, enhancing community service opportunities with City government and many more.

A winner will be selected and announced next week, Phelan said.

"Is it too late for me to refinance?"

(The surprising answer? Probably not!)

If you just go by what you hear or read in the mainstream media, you might think that the refinancing "window" has slammed shut. But that's a simplification that's simply not true. Here are the facts: Mortgage rates are still bouncing around near 50-year lows. So if you want to refinance for whatever reason – to be mortgage-free before you retire, to pay for tuition, to consolidate other loans and debts or just to lock in a low rate before the window does close – you still have time. But possibly not much. So don't wait. Come see us or call 617-471-0750.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 20, 1345, the Black Death (bubonic plague) is created from what University of Paris scholars call "a triple conjunction of Saturn, Jupiter and Mars in the 40th degree of Aquarius." The plague, carried by fleas that usually traveled on rats, killed an estimated 25 million people.

• On March 23, 1836, in hopes of keeping pace with the furious march of technology, the U.S. Mint unveils its first steam-powered press. The new-fangled contraption helped crank out coins more efficiently.

• On March 25, 1901, the Mercedes automobile is introduced by Gottlieb Daimler at in Nice, France. After seeing a Daimler car win a race two years previous, businessman Emile Jellinek approached Daimler with an offer to buy 30 of them. Jellinek requested that the cars be named after his daughter, Mercedes.

• On March 24, 1934, the debut of radio program "Major Bowes' Original Amateur Hour" launches a national craze among amateur performers. Families sold their homes and youngsters ran away to audition in New York, hoping to win and pull themselves out of Depression-era poverty.

• On March 22, 1947, President Harry Truman issues an executive decree establishing a sweeping loyalty investigation of federal employees in every department and agency. The program resulted in the discovery of only a few employees whose loyalty could be "reasonably" doubted.

• On March 19, 1952, the 1 millionth Jeep is produced. The name "Jeep" is reportedly derived from the Army's 1941 request that car manufacturers develop a "General Purpose" vehicle. "Gee Pee" turned to "Jeep" somewhere along the battle lines.

• On March 21, 1980, President Jimmy Carter informs a group of U.S. athletes that, in response to the December 1979 Soviet incursion into Afghanistan, the United States will boycott the 1980 Olympics in Moscow. The U.S. boycott had no impact on Soviet policy in Afghanistan, as Russian troops did not withdraw until nearly a decade later.

Corned Beef And Political Ribs

Photos On Pages 16, 17

You could say there were two main courses at the Quincy Partnership's 11th annual St. Patrick's Day Luncheon.

Corned beef and cabbage.

And the roasting of Mayor Bill Phelan and his challenger, Tom Koch.

With a few jabs, zingers tossed back and forth by and at other political figures for desert.

It was an afternoon of laughs for the near 300 who filled the Quincy Elks Turrell Room last Friday.

The event was co-emceed by City Clerk Joe Shea and real estate manager-developer Dan Flynn, both of whom got in their own potshots.

Flynn got the crowd's immediate attention when he looked around and asked, "Anyone see Joe Shea?"

At that, a young lady stood up and exclaimed, "Someone stole my pocketbook" and pointed to the windows.

Everyone turned to look and there was a figure in Superman-like costume streaking through the parking lot.

Minutes later, Shea emerged with the pocketbook after "retrieving" it. (But was that figure running in the parking lot really Joe Newton impersonating Shea, impersonating Superman?)

Anyway, it set the fun stage.

Phelan mentioned the new fountain donated by the Quincy Partnership for Merrymount Park, adding "at the formerly known Dick Koch complex."

The complex was named in honor of Koch's late father, who served as park and forestry executive director.

When it came Koch's turn at bat, he told Phelan: "Let's make a deal. If you don't change the Koch complex name, when I'm mayor I won't change the name of Tobin Towers."

That seniors facility was named for former Mayor Arthur Tobin, Phelan's father-in-law.

There were quite a number of bumper stickers on cars in the parking lot and on the podium.

"I hope bumper stickers don't vote," Phelan mused.

Flynn, clearing the bumper stickers "so they won't distract you," held one up for the crowd to see.

"Nothing seems funny to me," Phelan said.

But he and his brother Ged as "Crazy Guggenheim" ala Frankie Fontaine teamed in a crowd pleasing routine, with His Honor as the straightman.

Phelan recalled that some wanted to build the new Quincy High School on a toxic waste dump.

"I went to a high school on a toxic waste dump," Ged as "Crazy" said, apparently illustrating the effects toxic waste can have on students.

But, he added, he couldn't be too crazy because Police Chief Robert Crowley "gave me a gun permit."

Ged finished the routine with a stirring "God Bless America" in tribute to those serving overseas, with the crowd standing and joining in.

"The Phelans are playing the patriotic card," Flynn quipped.

Koch said Phelan should have realized he was going to run for mayor when he gave him advice such as:

• Just keep telling people taxes aren't going up. Nobody will even notice.

• Don't even worry about the police chief and the union—they're just hitting a little rough patch. Deep down, they really love each other.

• Forget recycling, contracts, building a high school or fixing fire houses, all we need is a newsletter.

• When all else fails, in (Tom) Large we trust. If that doesn't work, blame Sheets.

Shea did his popular Johnny Carson "Amazing Sheazack" with Flynn in the Ed McMahon role.

Q: William J. Phelan, Phelan/Tobin, Wink.

A: Three names for the new Quincy High School.

Q: Pens, notebooks, a phone call from Dad.

A: The easiest way for Mike Bellotti to get through law school.

Q: Excedrin, Tylenol, Councillor Kevin Coughlin.

A: Two headache remedies and why you would take them.

Q: Quincy Center Concourse, new Quincy High School, Gov. Deval Patrick.

A: Three things that sounded good in the beginning.

Q: A broom from Curry Hardware, Mayor Bill Phelan, a lottery snowbrush.

A: Three things likely to fly off the handle this year.

Q: The best place to find Tom Koch signs.

A: Newbury Avenue, Sacred Heart's parking lot, Joe Canavan's trunk.

Q: Taxes, mayoral favors, Jay Davis' chin.

A: Three things that will double this year.

State Treasurer Tim Cahill acknowledged:

"I wish I had a brother as funny (as Ged Phelan) with me." (You could have used him, Tim).

Cahill did have a display of funny photos of "separated at birth" figures. The top tickler was one of Phelan and Howdy Doody.

Shea showed a photo of Koch in a Liberty Tax Man Uncle Sam costume waving at passing motorists in Quincy Square.

So that some people who are concerned over Koch giving up a good paying job (park commissioner) to run for mayor needn't be concerned.

Sheriff Mike Bellotti in his usual top form, praised Koch for his "savvy" but noted that Koch had run for city councillor, Norfolk County treasurer and is now running for mayor.

"If he loses," said Bellotti, "the only thing left to do is run for governor."

And, from his good news/bad news routine:

Good news: Governor Deval Patrick has his own line of clothing to support the local fashion industry.

Bad news: It looks great, but it comes apart at the seams.

Good news: Our patriotic mayor is going to show his support of our men and women in harm's way.

Bad news: Chief Crowley is out of a job.

Bellotti also got in a few humorous "long distance" telephone calls.

Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis, looking over the crowd: "It's great to be on Jim Sheets' reunion team."

He also had a solution to the feud between the police union and Chief Crowley over 13 cruisers being on patrol duty on all shifts.

Davis called council colleagues to the podium and with a nod from Phelan,

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 real photo postcard showing the old slate quarry that was off Aphorpe Street in Norfolk Downs. Actually two separate quarry holes, the site was surrounded by Billings Road, Aphorpe, Warwick and Marshall Streets. The house shown here is number 15 Warwick St. First opened in 1687, this ancient Quincy quarry was the source of thousands of slate gravestones found throughout the region. The quarry was filled in the late 1940s to eliminate the danger to children. It had been a favorite spot for ice-skating in the winter and carp fishing in the summer. The site is now zoned open space. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Revaluation, Master Plan, Trash Major Issues

By FRANK McCAULEY

The City Council has a number of major issues to deal with over the next few months. Among them:

Revaluation – Several orders are now pending in the council's finance committee, including: an appropriation order of $70,000 to hire an outside firm to start work on the revaluation of all real and personal property in the city. A second order would put this issue on the November ballot. A third would require the council to take a position on the issue.

Master Plan – Within a month, members of the city council should receive copies of the city's Master Plan and zoning studies.

Rubbish Disposal – Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa is considering that the city take and prepare an incinerator site in the Cashman's Quarry area of West Quincy.

COUNCIL TABLES

CONFLICT OF INTEREST ISSUE

The City Council ordinance committee tabled action on a proposal to classify members of the unpaid city boards as "special employees" under the conflict of interest law. The proposal was made by Ward 6 Councilor Richard W. Barry. At present, all city employees, including unpaid ones, are classified "regular" employees, prohibiting them from doing any business with the city. As "special" employees, unpaid board members would be restricted from doing business with the city only in areas over which they have jurisdiction.

MARSHLAND REZONING DRAWS OPPOSING VIEWS

Conservation of marshlands or retention of a valuable industrial site were the alternatives placed before the planning board as it considered a proposed zoning change for the Montclair marshes. Ten people spoke in favor of the proposal while 17 recorded their opposition. The Planning Board took the matter under advisement.

READERS FORUM

She Backs Coughlin's Proposal On Recycling

Recently, several Quincy city councillors dismissed a recycling proposal by Councilor Kevin Coughlin. When pressed for their reasons for the dismissal, they indicated that it would be a "burden" and that people were too busy and no one wants to be forced to recycle.

Furthermore, they did not consider the incentive-based portion of the proposals, an alternative to the mandate. Progress for improving recycling in Quincy was halted in its tracks.

Yet consider the alternatives. Not a day goes by that we do not hear about global warming and the carbon footprints we all leave on the environment. No one seems to be saying, it's all right, no worries, continue as you were. Instead we are bombarded with the importance of taking action now; not tomorrow, not later, but now.

Sure we're all busy, but we'll be a lot busier later trying to fix the issues that could have been prevented had we but acted. We hear so many negative things on the news, things we feel powerless to influence or stop. This is one area in which a small contribution by one becomes a substantial one when done by many.

We complain about our taxes, about funds that are cut for certain jobs or programs. It's always about juggling the money. With recycling, we have an additional benefit in that it saves the city substantial money. Talk about a win-win situation: you do good for the environment and you save money.

Still not convinced? People name their children after themselves. Benefactors donate art or hospital wings. All so that their legacy will live on. What legacy do we intend to leave for our children and future generations of Quincy residents? Will anyone applaud our efforts to remain firm and not be told what to do, even as our landfills become more and more engorged with recyclable waste?

If you are concerned with the recycling problem, please, consider recycling your trash; it's easy and requires little effort. Finally, contact your city councillors and tell them of your concerns (617-376-1340).

He Agrees With Koch On Brochure Mailing

As I read the front-page news story (Gloves off in Mayoral Race, March 15), I apparently viewed that recent four-page color brochure included in this year's annual city census mailing much the same as mayoral candidate Tom Koch, who saw the brochure as "a clear misuse of public money for political purposes." And like Koch, I agree that it "may end up being legal but there's no question that it is inappropriate."

Koch's Ethics Commission complaint is being viewed by the Phelan administration as negative politics, but is it? All Koch wants to know is did the mayor violate state ethical standards in sending out the brochure in question. He has a right to question the timing of the brochure and its contents and why tax dollars were used to create and distribute the flashy look how great Quincy is thanks to me "Quincy View."

son for the mayor, told The Quincy Sun that Koch's action "says more about the Koch campaign than the Phelan administration. This tells you where this (Koch's) campaign is going." Boy, is Largey sounding like Karl Rove on this brochure.

Phelan hints he is eager to start campaigning "on the issues." Says Mayor Phelan, "Quincy is moving in the right direction and I can't wait to start talking about it.

I'm willing to talk all day about the good things we have done."

Who isn't willing to talk all day about good news? The question is, is the mayor ready to put up his 3-terms to date against a strong challenger who thinks things could still be better?

By the way, if the "Quincy Views" brochure was governmental, how come it didn't come inside my auto excise tax bill?

I'm also so happy that the mayor is touting a "more customer-friendly" city website. Why go all the way down to City Hall to pay taxes and fees when you can dish out your money online. Ah, customer friendly. Since when did citizens become customers? This ain't K-Mart, this is our government and we deserve better.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Gloria Robertson's Artwork
Featured In New Exhibit

New works by Quincy artist Gloria Robertson are on display through April 11 as part of the Marion Art Center's "Fiftieth Anniversary Decorative Arts Show."

Two of the artist's pieces, titled "Water Flowers" and "Inspirations by Matisse," are featured in the main exhibit, and several other pieces by Robertson and other decorative artists will be also on display.

"This exhibit is a terrific celebration of the many different, and often unexpected, ways that decorative artists bring beauty and color to homes, businesses, and lives every day," said Robertson. "I'm very happy to be a part of this show and am thrilled that the Marion Art Center is so supportive of decorative arts and the artist community."

and on-site for commercial and residential clients. A graduate of the Rhode Island School of Design's decorative arts program, she has also studied at the University of the Arts in Philadelphia, the School of Visual Arts in New York City, and Brockton's Fuller Museum of Art.

Celebrating its 50th Anniversary this year, the Marion Art Center is a non-profit cultural organization founded in 1957 that promotes visual and performing arts throughout southeastern Massachusetts via its two art galleries, theatre and auditorium, classes, and art camp.

Marion Art Center is located on Buzzards Bay in the charming village section of Marion, Massachusetts. Learn more at www.marionartcenter.org.

Crane Library Planning
For 125th Anniversary

"I cannot guarantee that the building, when completed, shall conform to (your) ideas of beauty and taste," said the architect, H. H. Richardson, to his patron, Albert Crane.

It did and come Friday, June 8, from 7 to 9 p.m. the Thomas Crane Public Library, named for Albert's father, will celebrate its 125th anniversary with a party at 40 Washington St.

The library was dedicated May 30, 1882 with the principal oration delivered by Charles Francis Adams Jr., great grandson of John Adams, future mayor and member of the board of trustees.

The various committees planning the celebration have scheduled a meeting Monday, April 9, at 7 p.m. in the Community Room of the Main Library.

Mabel Biagini will provide the musical entertainment at the celebration and an exhibit of paintings of the Fore River Shipyard by Quincy's Mary Smith will be open in the atrium.

The Wollaston Wine & Spirits Co. has agreed to supply the wine for tasting — 25 varieties — a cash bar will be available and portions of the library will be open for viewing and socializing.

The subcommittees organizing the program include event, tickets & sales, ad/program, raffle, mailing list and publicity.

Funds raised by the event will be used to support the programs sponsored through the year by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Anyone wishing to participate in the planning for the celebration should contact Harold Crowley at 617-471-6881.

Quincy High School Drama Club
To Present The Musical 'Grease'

Quincy High School's Drama Club will present its version of the classic rock-n-roll musical "Grease" in the Lloyd H. Hill Auditorium beginning Friday, March 23 at 7 p.m.

Other performances are scheduled Friday, March 30 at 7 p.m.; Saturdays, March 24 and 31 at 7 p.m. as well as matinees on Saturdays at 1 p.m.

Tickets are $10 in advance and $12 at the door.

Call 617-984-8782 or e-mail qhstheatre@aol.com.

In the show, the "bad boy" Danny Zuko (portrayed by Jeff Ohlson), and the "good girl" Sandy Dubrovski (Alicia Woodberry) face an array of obstacles while trying to reclaim their summer loving. While Danny and Sandy struggle to salvage their relationship, Rizzo (Lilian Sticco) and Kenickie (Lawrence Furbish) go through a string of breakups and make-ups; Frenchy (Kristen Cummings) drops out of school to become a beautician; Sonny (James Fay) tries to escape Ms. Lynch (Tina Hicks/Paige Neumann) while bouncing from one girl to the next, Rodger (Brendan Paine) and Jan (Kayla Dolan) find romance underneath a full moon; Doody (Zack Dwyer) learns that is means to be in a gang, and the head cheerleader, Patty Simcox (Meghan Hardee) tries to get Danny's attention.

Rotary Club's Kids Classic Auction To Be Held March 28

The Quincy Rotary Club will hold its annual Kids Classic Auction to benefit a scholarship fund and other charities Wednesday, March 28, at 6 p.m. in the Neighborhood Club, 27 Glendale Rd.

The goal is $50,000, most of which will go to scholarships for graduating seniors at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools.

Other Rotary-supported programs include Boy Scouts, YMCA, Salvation Army, Quincy Youth Hockey, Red Cross, Quincy

Medical Center, Jimmy Fund and the Dianne DeVanna Center.

Dan Flynn will be the auctioneer and Rotarian Marty McGovern, the newly appointed manager of the Neighborhood, promises a memorable evening of fine wine and gourmet dining.

Rich Barry, the committee chair and vice president, said the auction will include some 100 items worth about $30,000, most of them unique one-of-a-kind prizes.

They include a golf package with Luis Tiant at Granite Links, gift certificates to Quincy's finest restaurants, Red Sox tickets, sports memorabilia and trips to far away places.

Members of the committee include Richard Barry, Dan Flynn, Mary Beth Curran, Lynne Houghton, Karyn Smith, Bruce Wood, Marianne Peak, John Sharry, Bob Kachinsky, John Spillane, Mary Jo Cicchetti, Mary Hurley, Kao Li, Ruth Crocker and Jay Eckblom.

Rotary's Interact Club is assisting in setting up the items for exhibit.

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Ursula's Corn Pudding

It was Christmas with the cousins when some of us gathered at our cousin's Gen's beautifully decorated home on a Sunday in December.

Some of us brought a favorite recipe to go with her delicious buffet ranging from Lasagna, meatballs, sausages and on and on.

One of the dishes that were brought in was a corn pudding by my cousin Ursula.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees

Corn Pudding

- 1 egg (beaten)
- 2 cups milk (Ursula used skim)
- 4 tablespoons flour

- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 packages frozen corn niblets (or 2 cans)
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine

In a bowl mix the egg, milk, flour, sugar and salt until blended. Stir in the corn.

Pour in a slightly greased shallow casserole dish. Dot the top with the butter or margarine.

Bake for 15 minutes. Then stir and bake for another 20 minutes or until inserted knife comes out clean.

It's a delicious side dish and so easy to prepare. We cut it into squares to serve.

'An Inconvenient Truth' Screening, Discussion At Library Sunday

A free screening of the Academy-Award winning documentary "An Inconvenient Truth" will be held Sunday, March 25 at 1:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Following the movie, there will be a discussion with local officials and environmental activists centered on Quincy's response to the global warming issue and steps to save on energy costs.

In the critically acclaimed film, former Vice President Al Gore presents an eye-opening and compelling view of the future of our planet, cutting through myths and misconceptions about global warming and urging that citizens act now to save the earth.

After the screening, scheduled to take part in the discussion are members of the Quincy Environmental Network, Green Start, the Massachusetts Climate Action Network, Mayor William Phelan, and Quincy City Council Environmental and Health Subcommittee members Leo Kelly and Kevin Coughlin.

The event is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library and the Quincy Environmental Network, in cooperation with the Quincy City Council Environmental and Health Subcommittee.

For more information about the program, call 617-376-1301 or visit thomascranelibrary.org.

FIRST GRADE STUDENTS in Andrea Curtin's classroom organized the sock and underwear drive for the Boston Health Care for the Homeless. Aiden Foley and Luca Smith are shown marking the tally board as another pair of socks is collected to help the homeless.

Squantum School Collects New Socks, Underwear For Homeless Kids

A first grade class at the Squantum School has collected over four hundred pairs of new socks and underwear for area homeless children.

"The school's sock and underwear drive has been an overwhelming success," said first grade teacher Andrea Curtin, whose class organized the collection. "It's been an important educational experience as well, with the children learning about homelessness and... they've really enjoyed the collection part as well."

First graders speaking about the collection shared the same feelings. MaryKate Moriarty said, "I feel good helping the homeless." Samantha Striffler said she felt, "super happy." Antonia Alvarado "liked helping people." Spencer Smith and Max Storch both agreed, "Donating socks and underwear for the homeless made us feel proud."

During the two-week drive, which ended Feb. 15, the children collected new socks and underwear. The entire school has gotten involved. One kindergarten, Aiden Foley, decided to forgo presents at his recent birthday party and instead asked friends to bring new socks and underwear for the drive, according to Principal Donald Houghton.

The Squantum School's collection is part of a larger annual drive organized by Boston Health Care for the Homeless Program, (BHCHP), an organization that delivers medical care to homeless patients in the Boston area. The organization's staff members will distribute the socks and underwear collected by the Squantum School at the family shelters where they deliver care. School nurse Maureen Spillane was instrumental in starting the drive at the school.

Community groups and schools are welcome to do their own drives for Boston Health Care for the Homeless Program. For more information, please contact Leanna Varga at lvarga@bhchp.org or 617-414-2140.

BHCHP provides health care to more than 9,000 homeless men, women and children annually. With clinics in three Boston hospitals and more than 70 community sites, teams of doctors and other clinicians offer comprehensive care in places familiar to homeless persons, including shelters and soup kitchens, on the streets, in the backstretch of Suffolk Downs Racetrack and at the Barbara McInnis House, a 90-bed medical respite care facility.

Holleran described an "awesome" man who "never gets angry, never sat down and would do anything around the building."

Despite his retirement, De Paulo still checks by, once in a while, at the Sterling Middle School to see if the heat is working and things are still shipshape for the school's 300 students, according to Holleran.

"He loved his job with all his heart," said Holleran.

In recent years, Holleran has worked with his mentor on a Holocaust presentation for Sterling students and for Quincy High School students.

Holleran said that, after 9/11, De Paulo wanted the students to know about the Holocaust. De Paulo and his unit with Allied troops liberated one of the Nazi concentration camps. "He doesn't want it to ever happen again."

During the Veterans Day assemblies, De Paulo tells of the freed prisoners "coming up and hugging him." De Paulo, also, describes the camp's barracks with bedridden prisoners so emaciated that the soldiers couldn't tell if they were alive or dead.

De Paulo's been in battle and he knows firsthand that soldiers in the field need support and kind words from home.

Through the Sterling drive, the soldiers not only got pillows and phone cards, hand warmers and sun block and peanut butter and jelly squeeze, they also got a boost from the 10, 11, and 12-year-old youngsters who inserted letters in each packet.

Many of the letters are filled with questions about the heat, the food, and conditions but they all echo the words of Alysha Dunbar from Grade 6, "I am writing to thank you for all that you've done."

Alysha told her soldier that she was on the volleyball team and while they didn't win the championship this year, "There's always next year."

Grade 8 student Lizzie Feenan told her "service member" that "I know I speak for everyone when I say we can sleep much more soundly because you are fighting for America.... I hope you return home super soon."

After praising the soldiers "selfless acts of courage and bravery," Grade 8's Courtney Hyman promised

"You and all of the other service members are in my prayers. Thank you for being courageous and strong."

"Thank you again for serving our country," wrote Grade 6's Pat Dowling after asking what the weather was like in Iraq. "Over here in Quincy, it is very cold."

De Paulo and the students have already heard back from some of the soldiers including the nephew of one of Sterling's teachers. One of the most touching thank you's for De Paulo arrived from the soldier son of fellow custodian Mike Campanelli.

The Sterling School opened as South Junior High School in 1927 and De Paulo was one of its early graduates. He has worked with every one of the nine principals in Sterling's history.

Married for over 50 years, De Paulo and his wife Mary live in Quincy and have three children, Mary Beth Flora of Quincy, John De Paulo of Winchester and their daughter Kathy Scribi, a secretary at Sterling.

Hot Lunches At Beechwood

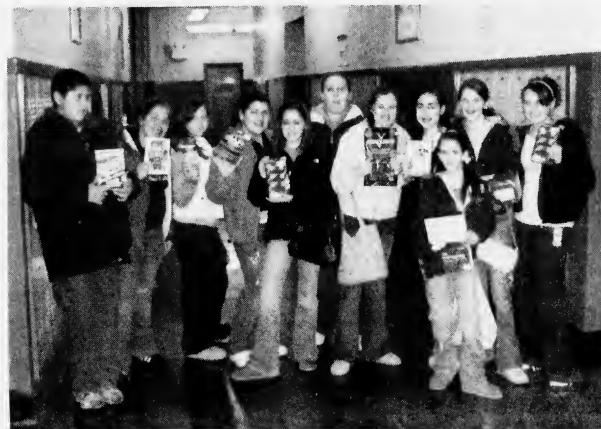

Two days a week, seniors can enjoy hot lunches at Beechwood Community Life Center for only $2. The sit-down lunches are scheduled Wednesday and Thursday at noon.

"Ours are sit down dinners provided through South Shore Elder Services and are served by wonderful volunteers," said the Center's Maryann Mahony. Interested seniors may call 617-471-5712.

EIGHTH GRADE CLASS officers Jamie Shaughnessy, Julia Bettiol, Giulia Murphy and Winni Akoury accept a large donation from the Quincy Elks for the De Paulo Troop Drive. Shown with the student officers are Paul Tracey, Paul MacDonald, Jim Folk and Ben Wilcoxon.

Officers have reached an agreement," said Phelan. "We continue to negotiate in good faith with all of our unions and I appreciate the hard work that was done by Roberta Kety, David Grunebaum, Captain Paul Keenan, Lt. John McDonough, and Sergeant Bina. I also want to thank all the members of the Superior Officers' Union for acting professionally throughout the process."

The City has also reached an agreement with the employees of the Library Department. Their agreement also involves a gradual rollback of the City's share of employee benefits to 80%. Their salary compensation package amounts to roughly 9% over three years with other staff upgrades included.

"We will continue to negotiate with all of our City's bargaining units in an effort to recognize their hard work and value to our city," Phelan said. "However, we must balance the concerns of our taxpayers and the enormous burden placed on our taxpayers by swelling employee benefits costs."

Beechwood Center Collects Donations For Food Pantries

Beechwood Community Center is a popular drop-off point for donations to Quincy's food pantries and shelters all year long, according to Frances Shields, Beechwood's Building and Program Manager.

According to Shields' figures, the center collects some 225 items weighing some 150 pounds 52 weeks a year. "Children, families, seniors and residents from all Quincy neighborhoods contribute to this important and ongoing effort," said Shields, adding that the March donations are designated for the Interfaith Social Services.

The drop-off site at Beechwood opens each morning five days each week at 7:30 a.m. On Tuesdays and Thursdays, the Center is open until 9 p.m. On Monday, Wednesday and Friday, the Center closes at 5:30 p.m.

Hot Lunches At Beechwood

Full balanced hot lunches are served to seniors at the Beechwood Community Life Center, 440 East Squantum St., each Wednesday and Thursday at 12 noon.

The meals are provided through South Shore Elder Services by way of volunteers. The cost is $2. Call 617-471-5712 for reservations.

Councillors Want Action On Double Telephone Poles

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Doubled up telephone poles are a hazard to drivers and pedestrians, particularly for the handicapped and those with baby carriages, and the poles are a blight on the city landscape, according to city councillors.

At Monday's City Council meeting, members urged a Verizon official to move faster on the 223 double poles in Quincy, improve their communication lines and notification process and meet with city officials to devise a removal plan.

Council President Douglas S. Gutro told Verizon's Regional Director Richard B. Colon that some of the city's doubled up poles have been in place for two years or longer.

Ward 5's Gutro called the two year delay "disgusting" and cited state law which requires such poles to be dismantled in 90 days. He asked why Verizon officials can't act faster and said he would not vote on a new pole installation until he sees action, "I am not going to support any pole replacements."

Colon warned that such a position would penalize the city's residents or businesses seeking new connections and needing new telephone poles.

On March 6 on Gutro's recommendation, the City Council supported a legislative initiative by the Massachusetts Municipal Association that would fine companies $1000 for each a double pole left standing after 90 days.

At that time, councillors also voted to ask that Verizon officials attend this week's council meeting.

"We're not sticking our heads in the sands," Colon said, reporting on the progress that has been made. He stated that there are 10,000 telephone poles in Quincy and fewer than one half percent are double poles. "Our commitment is firm."

In fact, Colon presented a report showing that 126 double poles had been removed since January, 2006. Those removals leave 223 doubled poles still standing and the company is actively working on 20 poles at this time.

Colon then showed the status of each of the remaining 223 poles on a graph which indicated that the Quincy Fire Department has fire alarm attachments on 100 of the remaining 223 poles.

Using the chart, Colon said that Verizon can not act until all of the attachments are removed. However, Verizon files no formal written notification to any of the attaches, a fact that disturbed some councillors like Ward 6 Councillor Brian F. McNamee.

McNamee said that Verizon should be sending out notices, first, second, and third times. "I get phone calls regularly regarding double poles. Verizon is the custodian. Why aren't you more clearly monitoring them?"

McNamee concluded that Verizon had nothing to lose by delays on the problem as it doesn't cost the company anything. "There's no leverage."

That wasn't always the case, according to Quincy Fire Department Fire Alarm Superintendent Bill Griffin. In the past, Griffin told councillors that his department got carbon notices indicating that attachments had to be removed and provided information on other attaches.

Griffin also said his unit, which once employed five workers with four signal maintenance technicians, is now down to three persons. At this time, one maintenance worker is sick. Now, the department only has two workers, including Griffin.

"We're a small department," Griffin said, "We do what we can." With two full-time workers, Griffin estimated that the city could remove the 100 boxes in six months.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin F. Coughlin said he gets most of his calls regarding double poles on Beale Street, a busy connector in the city. He cited Colon's graph showed four of the poles did not have fire department attachments on them.

Even when the poles are removed, Verizon leaves unkempt and, possibly unsafe, conditions, according to Councillor James H. Davis, 3rd who described one pole that was repaired in his ward. Davis said the sidewalk "was ripped up and has never been fixed."

Colon said that Verizon fills in gaps with asphalt after telephone poles are replaced.

"Can Verizon take the leadership?" Davis asked, suggesting a paper trail rather than the current data-based system. "They're (attaches) not getting the notice."

Colon agreed to meet with Griffin and city officials to iron out a plan.

Four's Restaurant Plans To Add Sidewalk Cafe

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board continued a hearing Tuesday regarding the Four's Restaurant, 15 Cottage Ave. who are seeking to alter the premises by adding a sidewalk cafe.

The board said they wanted to review the plans more thoroughly. The hearing will be held March 27.

Ed Morris, representing The Sydney Group, Inc. doing business as the Four's told the board that the plan is to have 20 tables placed outside the back of the restaurant in the Hancock parking lot, which will seat 70 patrons. He said there will be a hostess outside at all times to obtain seats for the customers.

Morris said the front of the building which faces Cottage Ave., will remain the same. Morris said a temporary fence would be installed around the perimeter of the lot.

Health Commissioner Drew Shee, and acting chairman said the precedent to open sidewalk cafes began last year with several restaurants in the city applying for the license.

Marlin Manning, executive director of Quincy Business Association said it was time for the city to "step up to the plate" and making sure that the area of the sidewalk cafes be made "more attractive."

LICENSE BOARD BRIEFS

Lincoln-Hancock School Students Collect Cans For Food Pantry

Youngsters are never too young to learn to share and 88 youngsters at Lincoln-Hancock Community School learned their lesson well by sharing their food recently with Quincy's less fortunate through the Quincy Food Bank.

All 88 of the school's second graders brought canned goods to school to celebrate their 100th day of school in early February, according to the project's organizer Grade 2 teacher Carolyn Eckhardt who said she got "100% participation from all four (second grade) classes."

And all the food is badly needed. "We always need the donations," Mary Bradley, Director of the Food Bank at 1 Copeland St. said this week, noting that the Food Bank easily serves 300 families a month.

"We wanted to do something to give back to the community," Eckhardt said, adding that this is the second year that they've matched the

Underage Sales of Alcohol - Too Convenient

Teens are purchasing alcohol from off-premise stores around the city. The offending stores are licensed to sell beer and wine only and are making underage access to alcohol far too convenient. We're talking about 15 and 16 year old children. Last time anyone checked the legal age to purchase alcohol was 21 years old. Do the math...

The evidence is well documented at the local licensing board. The stores range from East Squantum Street, to Franklin Street, Centre Street-twice. This is a disturbing trend. Residents are concerned and should be.

The police department, particularly, Lt. Peter Turowski, must be commended. Their efforts in addressing the problem are admirable, more can be done to help the police. City officials can take this opportunity to evaluate the policies and see if there are possible solutions to slowing down underage sales. Inexperience is a common theme.

As public officials, the local licensing board has a social responsibility to the residents of the city, the property owning, the tax paying, registered voters of Quincy. That responsibility includes: improving public safety, impeding underage access to alcohol, and enhancing the quality of life in our neighborhoods. That social responsibility is being relied upon by the many concerned residents in Ward 5.

Concerned residents in Wollaston have made their feelings known to public officials. The application for beer and wine license at West Elm Variety, located on West Elm Avenue, has been met with overwhelming opposition by homeowners in the neighborhood. Councillor Doug Gutro has facilitated two neighborhood meetings and the licensing board has held their customary public hearing. The issue is currently pending a vote by the board.

The concerned residents of Wollaston have faith in our city leaders and are confident that they will take the appropriate action to address the well documented concerns, which go far beyond the potential for underage sales. The recent information on this trend with underage purchases of alcohol is cause for great concern, but the other issues in West Elm Variety's beer and wine application are far more difficult to control.

The geographic location of the store alone presents some serious issues. First, it is in the middle of a busy and congested T-shaped intersection where the parking is tight and the roadway even tighter. West Elm Ave is an emergency artery for emergency response vehicles responding to crisis in the neighborhood. Further congestion with additional parking and additional delivery trucks, coupled with the existing traffic of cars, delivery trucks, MBTA and school buses, will negatively impact emergency response time. The buses are already stopped and blowing their horns for minutes to get cars moved and be able to proceed. Seconds save lives. Next, parking is at premium. There are multiple bus stops, residential driveways, a fire hydrant, a guardrail, and handicapped ramps surrounding the intersection, but notice no crosswalks. Third, West Elm Ave is already burdened with volume off Hancock St, off Quincy Shore Drive, and off Billings Rd. Fourth, the store is about 500 feet from Wollaston Beach, a popular teen hangout in the summer, an area where police jurisdictional issues are a hot topic. Overflow beach parking further complicates the neighborhood parking situation. Lastly, there is plenty of beer and wine available at multiple locations and outlets on and around Hancock Street. A little over a 1 minute drive timed by one local resident.

It must be noted that the residents of Ward 5 Precinct 5, where West Elm Variety is located, soundly defeated ballot question 1 in November 2006. That initiative would have expanded the sale of wine in convenience stores across the state and into our neighborhoods. Those residents who choose to exercise their right to vote have already said "NO" to the expansion of alcohol availability in this family neighborhood.

A review of the timeline tells the story. April 2006 - West Elm Variety withdraws initial application for beer and wine license due to overwhelming neighborhood opposition. November 2006 - Voters in Ward 5 Precinct 5 lead the city in opposition to question 1. March 2007 - West Elm Variety reapplies for the beer and wine license and is met with even stronger neighborhood opposition. We all want to support the neighborhood store, but without alcohol.

The City of Presidents? The Birthplace of Forefathers? A Launching Pad for Democracy? Well, The People of 5-5 have spoken, We Voted, "NO" to expanding alcohol into our neighborhood, and it was a landslide.

Councillors Take Quincy's Concerns To Washington

City Councillors Doug Gutro and Kevin Coughlin went all the way to the top last week in the never-ending search for solutions to Quincy's concerns.

They spent their time at the Congressional City Conference in Washington, where they attended workshops, listened to speakers and button-holed those in position to bring immediate help.

"There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that when one is given an opportunity to plead your city's case in a face-to-face fashion with your congressman or U. S. senator, you can and will help your community," said Council President Gutro.

"Councillor Coughlin and I have brought home some fresh ideas and new relationship that we hope will bring quality of life benefits for all Quincy residents."

Coughlin and Gutro met with Congressman Bill Delahunt and Senator John Kerry to discuss issues of potential transportation funding, support for renewable energy initiatives and prospects for economic development.

They heard speakers like Transportation Secretary Mary Peters, Senators Hillary Rodham Clinton of New York, Norm Coleman of Minnesota, Christopher Dodd of Connecticut and House Majority Leader Steny Hoyer of Maryland.

"This was a singularly unique and valuable opportunity to actively engage with, share ideas and learn from municipal leaders around the country facing all the same challenges we face in Quincy," said Coughlin.

They include "rebuilding aging infrastructure, balancing key budget busting items like pension, healthcare and energy costs, providing the best resources for our first responder fire and police personnel and taking a proactive role in environmental concerns."

The speakers offered their views on what to expect from the 110th Congress and seminars addressed such crucial issues as public safety programs, federal funding for roads, affordable housing, pensions, healthcare and alternative energy sources.

The Congressional City Conference is the annual winter meeting of the National League of Cities, a resource and advocate for 19,000 American cities, towns and villages.

Why 50% Of Homes Listed For Sale Don't Sell The First Time And What to Do About It

Quincy - If your home has just come off the market and hasn't sold, don't get discouraged. The reason your home did not sell may have nothing to do with your home or the market. In reality, your home may have been one of the more desirable properties for sale.

So Why Didn't Your Home Sell?

Last year almost half of the homes listed for sale never sold at all, and many sellers found that there was a tremendous amount a homeowner needed to be educated on to sell their home for top dollar in the shortest time period.

Don't risk making the wrong choices and losing both time and money on your investment. Before you hire a realtor, know the right questions to ask to save you time and money.

Industry experts have prepared a free special report called "How to Sell a House that Didn't Sell" which educates you on the issues involved.

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report call 800-611-0351 and enter ID#1012. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Call now to make sure your home sells next time you list it for sale. www.southshorehomeinfo.com

In his statement, Koch challenged Phelan to solve the rising health care cost problem by "pursuing solutions." The full text of both statements appears below.

Phillips said that QEA officials were actually engaged in a bargaining session while the rally was going on. He noted that it was the 20th meeting of city and union officials.

"We're all in the same boat," said the president of the firefighters' union Ernie Arienti, one of the major organizers of Monday's rally, the first ever to bring the city's 16 union members together for one cause. "We need to all work together."

Arienti, also, said protection of health insurance benefits is the major issue and that union members want the public to "realize it's not a little thing. We have given up things. We've taken cuts. Every time there are cuts in the city, it's always the employees" who bear the brunt," Arienti said.

At this time, the city covers 90% of most employees' health insurance costs, a percentage that's higher than many other municipalities. The city librarians signed a contract last October which included staff upgrades across the board, percentage raises, an increase in the value of sick leave buy-back in return for increasing their contribution to health insurance to 20%.

When addressing the rally, Phillips said that city workers have regularly chosen better benefits over salary increases and that Quincy's public employees' salaries reflect the lower pay scales. "God knows you don't get rich being a teacher."

In the past, Mayor Phelan has pointed out that employee benefits and health insurance now cost the city more than $38 million or more than 15% of the city's budget.

Near the end of Monday's rally, Arienti and Phillips and other leaders addressed the protestors near the City Hall entrance. All remarked on the solidarity of the city unions coming together for one protest.

"Never before have the city unions all come together," said Bruce Tait, president of the police patrolmen's union before urging the workers to "stand together and stay the course." Tait claimed the city has a multi-million reserve fund at the same time that officials are attempting to cut benefits.

Speakers also included Mary Beth Phillips who represents the para-professionals in the schools, Pam Maher, the secretary's union, Carol Block, the supervisors' union and Dominic Venturelli of the Public Employees Association.

The following statements were released by Mayor Phelan and his opponent, Thomas Koch.

Statement by Mayor Phelan

Quincy residents are well-served by the public employees that work for the city. Our public safety departments are second to none and I genuinely respect them and all city employees. It is difficult to negotiate with the work-force because, at all times, the taxpayer must be our primary consideration.

"There is no city or town in the Commonwealth that is as generous to its public employees as Quincy when it comes to benefits. We pay 90% of health insurance costs and require a mere $5 co-payment. This is out of line with other municipalities, and it is out of line with what the public at large pays for its health care costs. And it comes at a price: taxpayers foot the bill for these benefits. In fact, it takes the yearly tax bills of four average taxpayers to pay for the benefits package of just one city employee."

"Our position in these contract negotiations is merely to ask that the employees begin the process of bringing their benefit packages into line with what virtually every other taxpayer lives, works, and raises families with. Municipal health insurance costs are growing at unsustainable rates, impacting taxpayers at both the state and national level.

"I have been an active member of a group that, for the past two years, has been working to address rising health care costs as the state level. As a member of the Municipal Health Insurance Working Group, an initiative facilitated by the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, I have been working with other municipal leaders, employee unions, retired municipal employee groups, designated state legislators, and executives for the Group Insurance Commission to find common ground related to municipal health insurance reform.

"Tomorrow, March 21st, I will be addressing a State House hearing on the work of the task force. Our work has been endorsed by the governor as a key element of his municipal relief package.

"It is critical that we work together to address the looming issue of runaway health insurance costs. We owe it to the Quincy taxpayer."

Mayor Phelan's Director of Operations Dave Murphy said, "Tom's (Koch) comments are a political ploy that show a lack of understanding of the larger health care crisis. People in both the public and private sector are struggling with this issue and Mayor Phelan does not intend to give away the store, as was done by the prior administration."

Statement by Thomas Koch

"The mayor has said, in his own midterm address, that health care costs have skyrocketed under his tenure.

"If the mayor worked together with all the stakeholders over the last several years, any number of ideas could have been discussed to address rising health care costs but, instead of pursuing solutions, he assigns blame, proclaims he's taking a stand and then leaves the root problem virtually untouched.

"That's not leadership."

got Crowley to join them.

The solution: Make the councillors junior police officers with badges and handcuffs to help man the 13 cruisers.

Davis held up a bulletproof vest for him to wear, prompting Flynn to tell him: "It's going to be a little snug."

Norfolk County Register of Probate Pat McDermott, didn't get the laugh-o-meter running but had Irish eyes smiling with a Frank Patterson-like rendition of "Galway Bay."

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee with a bit of dry humor offered the reason why people like to watch the city council meetings on cable television:

"To see if Mike McFarland has broken his vow of silence. To see if Kevin Coughlin is going to quote himself. To see if the clicker is broken. It's free."

Even members of the Quincy Partnership weren't spared in the ribbing.

As the snow set in, Flynn announced that the snow shovels at Bob Curry's hardware store that had been on sale at 50 percent off, just went back to full price.

He also referred to the Jordan Furniture store commercial that anyone buying a piece of furniture would get their money back if the Red Sox win the World Series.

Mark Bertman, Flynn said, had an offer to top that one: if the Celtics win the NBA championship things will be 5 percent off at Rogers Jewelry.

All in fun. And for a good cause. Proceeds will help the Quincy Partnership to continue its civic and cultural projects such as:

Commissioning of the bronze statues of John Adams, Abigail Adams with John Quincy Adams as a boy, uplifting historic sites, proving those inviting "Welcome To Quincy" signs at the entrances to the city and the new Granite decorative fountain for restored Merrymount Park.

Koch Official Campaign Kick-Off April 12

Mayoral candidate Tom Koch will hold his official campaign kick-off Thursday, April 12 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in the Granite Links ballroom at Quarry Hills.

"It's going to be a great way to celebrate our hometown, the grassroots energy of this campaign, and all of our shared hopes for a better tomorrow," said Koch. "It'll be a fun, family-oriented event where people can see some old friends and hopefully meet some new ones. I'm really looking forward to it."

it."

The event will feature entertainment, including a DJ and refreshments for the family. Tickets are $20, and can be obtained by calling (617) 472-1306 or by visiting www.kochforquincy.com.

"I can't think of a better way to really start spreading our message of respect, responsibility, and a positive new vision for Quincy than this type of community-wide celebration," Koch said. "We're off to a great start, but it's going to be along and challenging road, and we really want to use the event as a springboard to launch the campaign."

Koch, first appointed to a public service job by Mayor Francis McCauley in 1988, resigned his job as the Executive Director of Parks, Forestry and Cemetery in January to run for mayor, giving up a job once held by his father because he felt so strongly that "we can do better for Quincy," he said.

Billard Club License Suspended By Board

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

While planning to appeal 10-day suspension by the License Board for serving alcohol after hours on New Year's Eve, Guy Jolly, owner of the Renaissance Billiard Club, 1585 Hancock St. faces another suspension.

At Tuesday's meeting, the License Board suspended Jolly's license for 14 days with seven days to be served for purchasing alcohol from a package store rather than a wholesale liquor distributor.

Lt. Peter Turowski, liquor agent for the board said Jolly had not paid a bill to wholesale distributors for liquor for more than 60 days.

According to the Alcohol Beverage Control Commission, (ABCC) when a person is in arrears they must pay cash, and are not allowed to use a credit card. Jolly had purchased move then three gallons of liquor from Shop & Save. The law says no more than three gallons can be purchased.

Turowski said he observed Jolly emptying his car with cases. When asked what the boxes contained, Jolly said they were cases of beer. However, when Turowski entered the Renaissance, he found several bottles of alcohol containing whiskey, vodka and others.

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele said he was bothered by the fact that Jolly lied to Turowski about the contents of the cases, and said "maybe he can't be trusted."

Atty. Louis Cassis acknowledged that Turowski's report was accurate, but told the board that Jolly had recently paid $30,000 for a new sprinkler system, plus other renovations made to a building "he does not own". Also Cassis said on top of all of this, the new concourse will take the building that houses the Renaissance. He said a list is made up by the ABCC concerning unpaid bills, and promised that Jolly, who owes a little more than $700 would be cleared up by next week.

He said as far as lying to Turowski, Cassis said Jolly "panicked a bit" and called it an "unfortunate lapse in judgement."

Police Chief Robert Crowley said "this case is something different" and said he would like to see Jolly's name off the list in two weeks and then report back to the board. Cassis promised that Jolly planned to pay the bill by next week.

Jolly may appeal to the ABCC.

Massachusetts Water Supply Topic At Historical Society

State Environmentalist Glenn Haas will discuss Massachusetts' water supply — past, present and future — Thursday, March 29, at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St.

The Bay State is considered "water rich" in comparison to other regions of the country but its water is not always located in areas where it is most needed.

Haas, an acting assistant commissioner in the Department of Environmental Protection, will discuss how our patterns of consumption have affected the water supply.

His presentation will reveal the value of regaining a natural balance in our pattern of water use and the surprising impact of simple decisions in the way each of us uses water.

Everyone is welcome and there is no admission charge.

FEMA Newsletter Features Quincy Pre-Disaster Moves

Quincy's efforts in the area of pre-disaster mitigation are featured in the Federal Emergency Management Agency's (FEMA) last quarterly newsletter of 2006.

The city is cited for helping more than 100 properties to move vital infrastructure such as electric panels and heating systems out of base flood elevation.

"We are trying to help folks with chronic flood problems avoid significant damage to their property infrastructure," said Mayor William Phelan.

"While we work with state and federal officials to alleviate the root causes of flooding problems, we can help homeowners avoid major damage during a flood event.

"I encourage Quincy residents with flood issues to seek information on this very valuable grant program."

FEMA has invested close to $3.5 million in Quincy projects and the city has submitted grants on behalf of eight additional Quincy homeowners for the current federal and state grant rounds.

The grants are administered through the city's Department of Planning and Community Development with oversight from the city's Housing Rehabilitation Office.

For more information on the pre-disaster mitigation grant program, contact Sean Glennon in the Planning Department at 617-376-1167.

Tax Tips From the Experts. ROTH IRAs

Many taxpayers are missing a valuable tax-sheltered investment opportunity by not contributing to a Roth IRA. The law allows individuals to contribute up to $4,000 annually to a Roth IRA; $5,000 for taxpayers over 50. For married couples the contribution limits apply to each spouse.

Unlike a traditional IRA account wherein your contribution is tax deductible and distributions are taxable as ordinary income when received, in a Roth IRA contributions and accumulated earnings on the account may be withdrawn free of federal and state income taxes. There are however two requirements for tax-free withdrawals. First, just like any other retirement plan you must be at least 59½ years old; secondly, your Roth IRA account must have been established for 5 years prior to taking a distribution.

Roth IRA contributions are allowed for single tax payers with adjusted gross incomes less than $95,000/$150,000 if married and filing a joint return. The amount of the contribution is phased between $95,000 and $115,000 of adjusted gross income if single and $150,000 and $160,000 for married and filing jointly.

Many middle class taxpayers, when reaching 72½, find they are not in significantly lower tax brackets than when they were working yet they are required to start taking minimum distributions from their traditional IRAs. A Roth IRA does not have a minimum distribution requirement. A Roth IRA also offers flexibility in case of an emergency. You can withdraw the contributions that you have made to your Roth IRA without income taxes or penalty at anytime. If you withdraw the earnings in the account prior to age 59½ you will pay income tax and a penalty but only on the earnings. When you make a premature withdrawal your contributions are deemed to be withdrawn first.

A Job Well Done

On Sunday, March 11, at approximately 4:12 p.m., Officers Bruce Tait, Tom Loughlin, James Flaherty and Sean Kelley responded to a Main Street apartment complex on a call of a "man armed with a knife." The officers learned that the suspect with the knife was making threats, and held the knife to the neck of a female.

LT. DAN MINTON

Officer Tait was familiar with the occupants because he had been there the night before and took out criminal charges against a female and her former boyfriend. Enroute to the call, officers learned the female victim fled to another apartment and the suspect was still in his ex-girlfriend's (the victim) apartment.

Officer Tait was the first on scene and was met by the victim in the vestibule of the apartment building, holding out a set of keys. She told Officer Tait, "He came back, he's in my apartment now and he has a knife." Officer Tait recognized the female victim as the same person he had an incident with the night before. He asked the victim if the suspect was the same man she had a problem with the day before and she said that it was and were boyfriend-girlfriend.

Officer Tait took the keys and made his way to her apartment, where he was last seen. The front door to the apartment was open about three inches. Based on training and experience and knowing the victim was out of harm, Officer Tait waited for the other officers to arrive. While waiting for backup, Officer Tait saw the door suddenly slam shut, then heard the sound of a dead bolt being thrown shut.

Due to the escalating situation, additional officers arrived, including Steven Kelly and Joseph Pacciorretti. Officer Flaherty covered Officer Tait with his service pistol drawn as the key was used to open the door.

Once the door was open, the officers entered the apartment with guns drawn. The officers cleared the living room, kitchen, and the bedroom areas of the apartment and then headed to the bathroom, where they could hear a shower running. Officer Flaherty reached the bathroom first, identified himself as a police officer and ordered a male out of the bathroom. The suspect dressed only in sweatpants slowly complied. He appeared dazed and inquired what was going on. The suspect was handcuffed and searched without further incident. He was transported to the Quincy Police station by Officer Sean Kelly and booked by Sgt. Goyette.

Officer Tait then interviewed the victim. It was not possible initially because the suspect was still at-large. The victim said the suspect appeared at her apartment door. She stated she left him in because she knew that he was wanted by the police and wanted to keep him there until the police arrived.

The victim said the suspect started taking his clothes off and brandished a small, black-handled knife. He said he would kill her if she called the police. The victim then attempted to flee the apartment, but the suspect grabbed her by the arm and stuck the point of the knife against the back of her neck. She stated she felt a "prick like a needle" and instantly froze. The suspect again stated he would kill her if she called the police, and continued disrobing.

When the suspect went to turn the shower on, the victim fled to another apartment to call the police. The apartment was searched and a black-handled knife was recovered. The victim identified the knife as the one used against her and was not in the apartment before he came in.

A search of the suspect's jacket revealed three capped syringes/needles, and a crack pipe made from a brandy "nip" bottle. These items were submitted to the Quincy Police evidence room for processing.

The suspect, a 36-year-old Boston resident, was charged with malicious damage to a motor vehicle and domestic assault and battery for the incident on March 10; and charged with armed assault with the intent to murder, assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, kidnapping, intimidation of a witness, domestic assault and battery and threatening to commit a crime (murder) for this incident.

The victim was offered an emergency protective order, but she declined, stating the suspect wouldn't be released before court anyway, so she would apply for one in Quincy District Court on Monday morning.

The victim stated the suspect has in the past possessed a .45 caliber handgun, but none was displayed or found.

Officer Tait called the Boston Housing Authority Police, where the suspect resides, to make them aware of the incident and possible weapon the suspect may have.

In closing, Officer Tait advised the victim that she should have called the police when the suspect first arrived and kept him outside of the apartment. When the victim let the suspect in, knowing that he was dangerous and a threat to her, (as recent as the night before) she put herself in grave danger. She was fortunate she had the opportunity to escape and call the Police.

As Officer Tait advised her: next time, leave him outside of the apartment and call "911" immediately. To all officers involved, Nice Work!

TELEMARKETING SCAM UPDATE: "Disabled Police Officers of America." Many local residents have been receiving telephone solicitations from the "Disabled Police Officers of America." Charity Navigator recently listed his Florida group in an article called "Lousy Charities Multiplying."

The article lists numerous groups in the article, describing them as "more concerned with lining their own pockets than doing good work." Keep in mind that many law enforcement agencies hire a telemarketing agency to solicit donations, then keep close to 80 percent of your money you donated.

National Poison Prevention Week

March 18-25 is National Poison Prevention Week, an observance that calls attention to the more than 2 million accidental poisonings that are reported each year at the 61 Poison Control Centers in the United States.

More than 90 percent of all poisonings occur in the home, and are a leading cause of death among adults. Children under 6 are most at risk from ingesting chemicals or medicines that, even if not fatal, can cause permanent injury. In 2004, about 85,000 children visited emergency rooms due to unintentional poisonings; 30 children died.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission and the American Association of Poison Control Centers offer these tips to lessen the risk of accidental poisoning:

- Separate cleaning products, medicines and food/beverages by placing in separate storage cabinets or in separate rooms.
- Keep chemicals and medicines in their original containers and close securely after use.
- Always clean up work areas promptly and store materials securely.

- Turn on the light when giving or taking medicine, to make sure you are using the correct dosage listed on the package.
- Avoid taking medicine in front of children, and never refer to medicine as "candy."
- When answering a phone or doorbell, take young children along with you so they do not have the opportunity to explore unsupervised.

- Teach the entire family how to responsibly handle cleaning products and medications, and urge older children to watch out for their younger siblings.
- Write and post emergency numbers in a visible place, including the number of the national Poison Control Center (1-800-222-1222).

The National Poison Prevention Week Council maintains a Web site with information on how to reduce the risk of poisoning at www.poisonprevention.org. Send questions or home-repair tips to home2000@hotmail.com, or write This Is a Hammer, c/o King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Jack Conway & Co. Realtors Walk For Hospice

Fourteen members of the Jack Conway & Co. Real Estate Firm of Norwell were among the more than 2,500 people who awoke early on Saturday, March 3 and helped raise almost $250,000 in the 16th annual Walk for Hospice of the South Shore at South Shore Plaza in Braintree.

Jack Conway & Co. Realtors is a longtime supporter of the hospice program, and the company was a "Pacesetter" sponsor this year.

"This is a wonderful organization of caring people who make what could be the most difficult time in a person's life a very dignified, and respectful period both for the patient as well as their family," said Chairman Jack Conway.

South Shore Hospice provides end of life care for individuals and families regardless of their ability to pay.

Shore was founded in 1981 and is the first Medicare-certified hospice program in the region. Staff members provide 24-hour care in the areas of pain management, respite care, support groups and bereavement groups.

For additional information call Hospice of the South Shore at 1-800-432-9995 or visit www.southshorehospital.org

Hints for Homeowners

Protect Your Home from Termites

(NAPS)—Termites could be eating you out of house and home and you might not even know it.

Termites are a problem in 49 out of 50 states. They cause homeowners an estimated $5 billion in damage and treatment cost each year, according to the National Pest Management Association.

That's and equivalent of thousands of dollars of damage each year per house. While most evident during the swarm season, termites work 365 days a year, 24 hours a day.

"Most people do nothing to treat for termites, which can put their homes at risk," said Lance Walheim, Bayer Advanced Garden Expert and author of more than 30 gardening books.

The good news: There is no reason why homeowners themselves can't kill termites. The destructive pests live in about 100 percent humidity, so a wet spring coupled with a damp, low-lying side of the house could spell trouble.

Spring is a great time to treat for termites, which season moves south to north through the country.

Contact your local county extension service to find out when the swarm season occurs in your area.

There are some measures you can take to prevent or tackle termites around your home right now. These help make your home less conducive to termites:

- Fix plumbing and roof leaks.
- Divert water at least 18 inches away from your house with properly functioning downspouts, gutters, and splash blocks. Also, check your irrigation system so it doesn't spray the sides of your home.
- Move firewood at least 10 feet away from the foundation of your home.

• Don't let mulch or soil touch siding on your home. Better yet, keep it about a foot away.

• Prevent wood from touching the ground outside, except if the wood is pressure-treated.

• Seal foundation cracks to help prevent moisture from entering your home.

• Hire a professional to conduct a thorough annual termite inspection.

• Sprinkle new Bayer Advanced Termite Killer granules around your home's perimeter and water in the granules. The special formula penetrates the soil to get to the termites with much less labor than other do-it-yourself products. Termites will be killed with one application.

Organizing Your Home To Maximize Space And Simplify Life

(NAPS) – Almost every homeowner has called on a handyman to take care of the little irritants around the house—a squeaky door, a dripping faucet, replacing a non-functioning ceiling fan. While these jobs certainly improve quality of life for a time, there are a few things a competent home improvement contractor can do that will enhance your quality of life long term.

“Organizing the home is an often overlooked home improvement project, because it doesn’t necessarily silence a squeak, halt a drip or light a room,” says Jim Rocchetta, vice president of marketing for nationwide home improvement contracting network Handyman Connection. “Still, the benefit of really taking a hard look around the house and getting things organized can be phenomenal and lasting; it’s essentially a matter of simplifying a homeowner’s life.”

The subject of home

organization frequently emerges when children enter the picture, says Rocchetta. For young families, adult-sized closets can offer a trove of storage options. Simple built-in wooden shelves offer an excellent hideaway for toys until children are old enough to hang their clothes. Cabinets, baskets or shelving built under beds or into corners can also help keep toys, books, shoes and other items off the floor and out of the way.

Throughout the rest of the home, look for storage spaces that could benefit from a few design enhancements. Deep kitchen cabinets, for example, frequently become “black holes.” Installing a lazy Susan or slide-out shelving keeps everything at arm’s reach and lets homeowners reclaim lost space. Do you have a cabinet that’s unnecessarily tall? Adding a shelf can double the amount of unusable space. How about that “junk drawer” just about every house has? Using well-designed dividers can separate the clutter and help you find what you need.

Tired of tripping over tools and boxes in the garage? Installing Peg-Board with heavy-duty hooks can be the perfect option for garden hoses, shovels and rakes. Metal shelving, readily available at most home improvement stores, will get paint cans, household chemicals and smaller tools off the floor. Sturdy hooks hanging from the ceiling get bicycles and other large items out of the way.

A Home Inventory Can Help Manage Loss

(NAPS) – Insurance experts say that having a detailed inventory of your possessions can make a real difference in the event your belongings are destroyed or stolen.

That’s because an up-to-date home inventory list can ensure a speedy settlement from your insurance company in the event of a loss.

An inventory can be simple to create. Start by going through each room of your home or apartment and making a list of all your personal property, including furniture, clothing, bedding and jewelry. Be sure to write the date you bought each item, if you know it, and how much you paid.

When you’ve completed your inventory, make copies and put the originals in a safe and put the originals in a safe place away from your home, such as a safety-deposit box.

The Chartered Property Casualty Underwriters (CPCU) Society urges consumers to follow these additional tips for maintaining a personal inventory:

- Supplement a written inventory with photographs or a video. Use a camera that date-stamps, or write the date on the back of each photo.

Let the person who is most familiar with the room describe each item.

- Don’t forget to take inventory of your basement, attic, garage, and storage shed. Include all patio furniture and recreational equipment.

- Pay particular attention to financial records. Make a list of all your bank accounts, brokerage accounts, insurance policies, etc., noting where the pertinent documents for each are located.

- Make at least two copies of the inventory. Leave one in a fireproof box and another in a safety-deposit box. If you have a third, give it to someone you trust in another city.

- Update the inventory every time you redecorate or make a new purchase.

- Contact your insurance company if you have any questions about your policy. Also, ask your agent about obtaining replacement cost coverage on contents, because this provision allows you to receive the entire cost for replacing lost items, regardless of depreciation.

“Above all, having a home inventory will save a lot of time in the event that you need to submit a claim to your insurance company. I recommend using a video camera to verbally and pictorially describe your home and personal contents,” says Robert E. McHenry, CPCU, chairman of the CPCU Society’s Claims Section.

To find an insurance agent that has the CPCU designation, visit www.cpcusociety.org and access the Agent & Broker Locator—a database of CPCU Society members searchable by location or company.

Safe Ways To Get Back In Shape

(NAPS)—Whether you're hitting the gym, Pilates mat or the treadmill to get back in shape, it's best to start with baby steps.

"People should take their time getting back into an exercise routine—otherwise they risk injury," says Gerald W. Clum, D.C., of the Foundation for Chiropractic Progress. He recommends warming up before exercising and working out with a partner or trainer.

Still, injuries can happen, regardless of how fit you may be. Even Sarah Harding, the reigning Mrs. Fitness USA and a spokesperson for the Foundation, worked with chiropractors to recover from a back injury she sustained while exercising.

"There's no way I could perform at this level without chiropractic care," says Harding. "Chiropractic works. It's as simple as that."

The Foundation is a not-for-profit group dedicated to increasing awareness of the benefits of chiropractic care. Its website features a free "Health Seeker's" calendar which can be easily downloaded—with steps you can take to achieve physical, mental, emotional and spiritual well being.

Red Cross Blood Drives March 26, March 30

The American Red Cross has scheduled two community blood drives in Quincy this month.

On Monday, March 26 from 1 to 7 p.m., there will be a blood drive at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St., West Quincy.

Another blood drive is scheduled Friday, March 30 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Ameriprise Financial, One Adams Place, 859 Willard

St., West Quincy.

For an appointment, call 1-800-448-3543 or visit www.newenglandblood.org.

To donate blood through the American Red Cross, individuals must be at least 17 years of age or older, weigh 110 pounds or more and be in general good health.

March has been declared Red Cross Month by the President of the U.S. every year since 1943.

American Cancer Society Encourages Men, Women To Get Tested Colorectal Cancer Is Largely Preventable

March is National Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month. The American Cancer Society uses this opportunity to raise awareness that colorectal cancer (commonly referred to as "colon cancer") - the third leading cause of cancer deaths in both men and women in the United States - is largely preventable.

In January, the American Cancer Society reported that cancer deaths dropped for the second year in a row. The study noted that there was a significant decline in colorectal cancer mortality. Although this is good news, the Society estimates that in 2007, in Massachusetts, 3,850 people will be diagnosed with colon cancer, and more than 1,180 will die, a number that could be cut in half if Americans followed American Cancer Society screening recommendations.

The American Cancer Society says increasing colon cancer screening among adults 50 and over represents the single greatest opportunity to decrease colon cancer death rates.

"Everyone over 50 has the wonderful opportunity to avoid developing colon cancer completely or to find the disease in an early stage," says Richard C. Wender, MD, national volunteer president of the Society. "Since most people with colon cancer do not have a family history of the disease, waiting for symptoms to develop is a tragic mistake."

"Symptoms can be a sign of more advanced disease. Finding and removing polyps before they turn into cancer, which can be done without surgery, can help us defeat this major cancer killer by preventing it altogether. The tests can also detect cancer in an early stage. If a cancer is found, treating it before symptoms develop dramatically increases the likelihood of a cure. When found at its earliest, most treatable stage, colon cancer has a 90 percent survival rate."

The decline in colon cancer deaths recently reported is largely attributed to early detection, which is why it's so important for everyone 50 and older to get tested.

Getting tested can stop the disease before it starts. Colon cancer tests can enable doctors to detect and remove hidden growths (called "polyps") before they become cancerous.

The tests can also detect cancer in an early stage. When found at its earliest, most treatable stage, colon cancer has a 90 percent survival rate. Early colon cancer often has no symptoms, which is why testing is so important.

Getting tested is especially critical for Americans age 50 and over as more than 90 percent of colon cancer cases are diagnosed in people over the age of 50.

In conjunction with National Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month, the American Cancer Society has just published a new book on colon cancer, QuickFACTS™ Colon Cancer. The book is designed to give people the many facts they need to know about colon cancer, in an easy-to-read format.

The book provides a detailed summary of colon cancer and then goes on to discuss risks factors, causes, prevention and detection, diagnosis and staging, conventional treatment options and complementary and alternative methods, life after treatment, and the latest research. The detailed explanations are written in easy-to-understand everyday terms.

QuickFACTS™ Colon Cancer (ISBN #0-944235-67-0, $7.95) is available at www.cancer.org/bookstore, by calling 1-800-ACS-2345 and in bookstores nationwide.

DENTISTRY for the 21st century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

GIVE YOURSELF TWO MINUTES

Two minutes can be a long time if you have holding your breath. Or, it can be a short time if you are eating dinner. The real question for dental patients is: Do you know how long two minutes is while you are brushing your teeth? The fact is that it takes at least two minutes to thoroughly clean your teeth, whether you are using a manual toothbrush or an electric one. It takes two minutes to remove the film known as "plaque," which contains bacteria that cause tooth decay, gingivitis, and, eventually, periodontal disease. Most of us only brush our teeth for one minute, which is not long enough to do an effective job.

One of the most important parts of tooth care happens at home. Brushing and flossing properly, along with regular dental checkups, can help prevent tooth decay and gum disease. We invite your questions about the health of your gums and teeth. We have the friendliest, warmest staff and environment. We have many years of experience and hundreds of satisfied patients. We are caring, compassionate, highly skilled professionals who are dedicated to providing you with high-quality dentistry and service. We are located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Please call 617-479-6220 and let us make an appointment for your next oral health appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Take an egg timer with you the next time you brush your teeth.

Best NQHS Wrestler In School History

Big Year In Wrestling For North's Phil Kelly

By SEAN BRENNAN

Sometimes bigger is best.

And in the case of North Quincy High School senior heavyweight Phil Kelly, that rings true.

His just completed senior season puts him firmly at the head of the class in terms of being the best wrestler to ever compete for the North Quincy Red Raiders.

Kelly, who weighs in at 285 pounds, has spent the last three winters dominating each and every opponent who dared to challenge him in the heavyweight division. He finished this season as the top dog for all of New England.

Kelly's accomplishments in the wrestling arena this winter included sterling 48-4 overall record, a Sectional championship, a State championship and a New England title.

"Phil lost three times before New Year's," head coach Dan Regan said last week. "But he went on a roll and won the Sectionals, won the States, lost in the All-States and came back and won the New England title. He is the first North Quincy wrestler to win a New England championship, and he is just the fourth Red Raider wrestler to become a state champion."

You may think that with his stellar performance on the mats and his physical size and strength, that Kelly may be intimidating or unapproachable, but that would be the farthest thing from the truth. He is equally as humble as he is modest, and according to his coach, that is what makes him so good.

"His best qualities are that, although he is so imposing, he is well-liked, modest and he carries himself in a respectful manner. The other kids look up to him for leadership, and he delivers by leading by example," Regan added.

Kelly's path to wrestling immortality started the winter of his freshman year.

Kelly, who had wrestled through the 6th grade, had stopped competing on the mats through the seventh and eighth grade, but he decided to get back into the sport once he got to the high school.

After a freshman campaign that saw him go 0-1 (there was a senior already at the heavyweight spot), Kelly finished his second winter with a 21-14 record. He followed up his sophomore season with a 41-14 record as a junior. Last summer Kelly did something that made him even more dangerous this winter, he started to lift weights. Adding that dimension to his practice routine and his past experience at the varsity level, and it is easy to see what made him one of the best wrestlers in the entire region.

"He is one of the best wrestlers as a heavyweight in the state," Regan said. "But it is not just because he is so good. Phil does everything the smaller wrestlers do at practice, which has helped him become so good. A lot of the heavyweights get out on the mat and try to stall, but Phil goes out there headhunting. He can leg wrestle, he can use the cross-wrist technique and he can wrestle from either the top or bottom. His different style, his quickness and his weight advantage is what made him so dangerous."

Kelly may be an imposing force as a heavyweight, but he is modest when discussing his personal accomplishments and the things he did to help the rest of his team.

"I love doing it (wrestling). You have to work hard all the time and it is all about you," Kelly said. "At the same time, if you do well, that means that the team has done well."

"I started wrestling my freshman year and did pretty decent at the jayvee level, and since there was a senior at the heavyweight spot, I only wrestled once at the varsity level. My sophomore season I went on varsity and I didn't win a duel meet until after Christmas, but then I started winning and ended up seventh at Sectionals."

Houghs Neck T-Ball League Registration Friday, Saturday

The Houghs Neck T-Ball league will be holding open registration for Quincy youngsters on Friday, March 23 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Sat, March 24 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Registration will be held at the Houghs Neck Community Center, located at 1193 Sea St. in Quincy.

The work ethic that Kelly brought to each and every practice and meets propelled him further and further up the heavyweight charts during his junior and senior seasons. After finishing in fourth place at the State tournament last year, Kelly came into his senior year on a mission.

"I spent the past summer wrestling with a local club team out of Franklin," Kelly said. "And with the lifting that I did, I got stronger and was able to overpower most of the opponents that I faced. I feel like I improved each year."

His coach agreed, "He is a great leader," Regan said. "He did well on the mats his sophomore season, but he didn't stop there. He has shown above average improvement over the years. And he did everything that we asked of him at practice, including all the drills that the smaller weight classes did"

The hard work and dedication paid off handsomely this season for Kelly. On top of the Sectional, State and New England titles (and a second-place finish at the All-States), Kelly was named as a Boston Globe all-star and an Atlantic Coast League all-star (three years running). He has also been named to a Patriot Ledger all-star the last two years, and undoubtedly will earn his third all-star appearance this year.

As the New England champion in the heavyweight division, Kelly has been invited to take part in the Senior Nationals on March 28 through April 1 down in Virginia.

His wrestling resume has also drawn the interest of some local colleges looking to have him become part of their collegiate programs. Kelly is deciding between WPI, Roger Williams and Rhode Island College.

Phil Kelly finished his high school career with a 109-35 record and North Quincy High School will soon be hanging its first individual New England Championship banner in the gym.

Now, that is big-time.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This is a good time to reassess important relationships, both personal and professional, to see where problems might exist and how they can be overcome. Keep communication lines open.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's not easy to bring order to a chaotic situation, whether it's in the workplace or at home. But if anyone can do it, you can. A pleasant surprise awaits you by week's end.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be careful that you don't make an upcoming decision solely on the word of those who might have their own reasons for wanting you to act as they suggest. Check things out for yourself.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A personal relationship that seems to be going nowhere could be restarted once you know why it stalled. An honest discussion could result in some surprising revelations.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) That unexpected attack of self-doubt could be a way of warning yourself to go slow before making a career-changing decision. Take more time to do a closer study of the facts.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A workplace problem needs your attention, now, before it deteriorates to a point beyond repair. A trusted third party could be helpful in closing the gaps that have opened.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A recent family situation could give rise to a new problem. Keep an open mind and avoid making judgments about anyone's motives until all the facts are in.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Rely on your always-sharp intuition to alert you to potential problems with someone's attempt to explain away the circumstances behind a puzzling incident.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Although you still need to do some snipping off of those lingering loose ends from a past project, you can begin moving on to something else.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) With your self-confidence levels rising, you should feel quite comfortable with agreeing to take on a possibly troublesome, but potentially well-rewarded, situation.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Travel is favored, both for business and for fun. The end of the week brings news about an upcoming project that could lead toward that promised career change.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might feel suddenly overwhelmed by a flood of responsibilities. But if you deal with each one in its turn, you'll soon be able to hold your head above water and move on.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a wonderful way of offering comfort as well as guidance. You would do well in the healing arts.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

From childhood on, every human being likes to be praised for effort and accomplishment. It is a human characteristic that creates confidence and tends to improve personalities. When a job is well done, recognition is appreciated. In the business world, financial benefits, better privileges and promotions speak well understood language of praise.

Unfortunately, however, in personal relationships, praise can and does spill over into compromise at times. It occurs when one praises with the expectation to be praised in turn. Such a compromise violates the principle of giving credit where and when credit is due.

An anonymous writer expresses the thought beautifully in these words: "It isn't enough to say in our hearts - that we like a man for his ways... It isn't enough that we fill our minds - with reams of silent praise... Nor is it enough that we honor a man - as our confidence upward mounts... It's going right up to the man himself - and telling him so that counts."

Christian Seder Meal At St. Ann Parish

St. Ann Parish will host a Seder Meal Sunday, April 1 at 4 p.m. in the school hall, 1 St. Ann Rd., Wollaston.

Why a Seder Meal?

When Catholics assemble to celebrate Mass, they not realize the Eucharistic liturgy has its origin in the Jewish Passover ritual. The unleavened bread and wine used at Mass, as well as the Psalms that are sung, were used at Passover meals in Jesus' day and are used by Jews today.

The Seder Meal on April 1 will not be a strict Passover meal. It will incorporate some of the rituals, some traditional foods and the retelling of the story of deliverance.

It is an opportunity to gather with other parishioners as they begin their journey in to Holy Week.

Along with the Seder ritual, a catered (turkey) meal will be served.

The cost is $15 per person, or $50 for a family of four.

RSVP to the rectory/Sister Pat no later than March 27, with the names and number of people who will attend the Seder Meal.

All reservations must be made in advance.

Quincy Community United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will have Sunday worship and Sunday school beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Adult Bible study begins at 9 a.m.

The Rev. Dr. Susan F.

Jarek-Gridden will conduct the service. Lector will be Kelly Cobble. Ushers are Linda and Paul DeGreco. Coffee hour hosts are Ginny Hawes, Jeanne Couillard and Dottie Hall.

A Safari pot luck supper will be held Saturday, March 24 followed by a slide show of Pastor Susan's trip to Africa. Contact the church at 617-773-3319 or further information.

All are welcome; the church is handicapped accessible.

Quincy Point Congregational Church

The sacrament of baptism will be celebrated at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

Angelina DeCristofaro

will play the flute and the Chancel Choir will offer a Lenten choral anthem. Deacon Adam McGhee will play the guitar to accompany young people from the church singing a contemporary song of faith.

Donations for the special Mission offering One Great Hour of Sharing will be dedicated.

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS
CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS PURCHASING DEPARTMENT
1305 HANCOCK STREET, QUINCY, MA 02169

In accordance with M.G.L. Chapter 30B, The City of Quincy requests proposals for furnishing and delivering to the City:

QUINCY COLLEGE LEASE OF CLASSROOM AND OFFICE SPACE APRIL 20, 2007 @ 11:00 A.M.
The City of Quincy, on behalf of Quincy College, the department of the City, is seeking to lease space in Quincy, Massachusetts, to be used as classrooms and offices in both the day and evening for credit and non-credit courses for Quincy College students. The City is seeking a site located in Quincy Center and within easy walking distance of Saville Hall, (24 Saville Avenue, Quincy, Massachusetts). The site must be easily accessible to the Quincy Center MBTA station and within one-half of a mile from Saville Hall. Quincy College is seeking a site between 35,000 and 45,000 square feet. A copy of the specifications may be obtained at the Purchasing Department, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, Massachusetts, 02169, after March 21, 2007, between the hours of 8:30AM to 4:30 PM.

Non-Price Proposals must be in a sealed envelope and price proposals must be in a separate sealed envelope. The outside of the sealed envelopes are to be clearly marked "RFP - NON PRICE PROPOSAL ENCLOSED" with time/date of RFP and "RFP - PRICE PROPOSAL ENCLOSED" with time/date of RFP opening.

Proposals will be received at the office of the Purchasing Agent until the time and date stated above, at which time and date they will be opened and registered. Late proposals, delivered by mail or in person, will be rejected.

The right is reserved to reject any or all RFP's or to accept any part of an RFP or the one deemed best for the City, and waive any informalities in the bidding, if it is in the best interest of the City to do so.

Council Members Debate Food Sales At Gas Stations

Milk and gasoline don't mix, according to Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly who said Monday that he opposes any changes in the city's ordinance prohibiting gas stations from selling groceries.

Kelly spoke as the Council's Ordinance Committee debated a request by the owners of Exxon Mobil at Furnace Brook Parkway to sell food at their gas station.

Other councillors expressed fear that a change in the city's ordinance would open the door for supermarkets and big box stores to install gasoline pumps at their sites.

"This is a concept that has been shown to work," Attorney Robert Fleming, Jr., told the committee when urging a positive recommendation. Fleming represented the station owners who have eliminated the repair business at their station and hope to balance that change with the sale of groceries.

Councillor Michael McFarland said that the combination of gas stations and grocery shops appears to be an attractive option in areas other than Quincy.

"We need to make life more convenient for people who live in the city," stated McFarland, noting that with 70,000 vehicles, Quincy residents no longer walk to shopping destinations.

McFarland added that working couples could purchase a few essential items on their way home from their jobs while, at the same time, they could fill their car's gasoline tank.

Chairman Jay Davis, also, said, "It's an issue of convenience. There is a benefit to our constituents."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond both raised the specter of supermarkets selling gasoline.

Coughlin noted that the idea of supermarkets selling gasoline has been "floating around."

"Even though this starts out as an opportunity to help a small business," Raymond said that approval could have "unintended consequences.... This really does open the door."

The Committee agreed to take up the issue again at a later date.

Police Chief, Sheriff To Hold Substance Awareness Night

Police Chief Robert Crowley and Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti will sponsor a substance abuse awareness night Tuesday, April 3, from 7 to 9 p.m. in Conference Room A at Quincy Medical Center, 114 Whitwell St.

Speakers at the event, entitled "Not My Child! — What Every Parent Needs To Know About Drugs," will be Dr. Daunce Cox, clinical director of Bay State Community Services, as well as recovering addicts, an inmate and a parent.

One of the goals of the evening is to increase public awareness of substance abuse and to announce the formation of a support group for families called "Parents Helping Parents."

Both Sides Need 'To Tone Down The Rhetoric'

Councillors Urge Crowley To Sit Down With Union

By LAURA GRIFFIN

City councillors urged Police Chief Robert Crowley to improve relations with the patrolmen's union before they voted 8-1 to approve his request to transfer $46,500 from the department's Personnel budget to Current Expenses.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond opposed the transfer after stating that he objected to moving money from the personnel line while the police department still has unstaffed cruisers on some early morning shifts.

Prior to their vote, several councillors said that the chief and the patrolmen's union which has repeatedly called for Crowley's ouster must begin talking.

"We don't get anywhere name-calling," said Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis.

In addition, City Council President Douglas Gutro suggested that Chief Crowley review his facts more carefully in the future in order to avoid misstatements and misunderstanding.

No one questioned the need for the funds of which

Council Wants Accurate Count On Bad Hydrants

City Councillors Monday directed Fire Chief Thomas Pettinelli to organize the correct data on the number and location of city's faulty and defective fire hydrants after learning that neither the Fire Department nor the Department of Public Works (DPW) has accurate records and there is no coordination between the two departments.

Councillors, also, asked the chief to choose a method for identifying faulty hydrants, such as a vandal-proof marker. Several weeks ago, councillors recommended that faulty hydrants be painted white. However, Pettinelli said that that system could attract vandals who might paint working hydrants white.

At Monday's joint meeting of the Council's Public Works and Public Safety Committee, Pettinelli also said there is no communication system between the department's different fire stations. He was encouraged to work with the DPW and also, to establish a system for notifying the entire fire

Mayor Appoints Community Preservation Committee

Mayor William Phelan Tuesday announced his appointments to the City's first Community Preservation Committee.

The Committee is charged with recommending appropriations to the Mayor from the Community Preservation Act funds.

The voters of Quincy passed a 1% surcharge on their property tax bills, with certain exemptions, in the November 2006 election. The surcharge first appeared on local tax bills in January.

The local fund is expected to collect approximately $1 million and the City of Quincy is eligible for 100% matching funds from the State.

The monies must be spent on open space acquisition/park enhancements, affordable housing efforts and historic preservation projects.

WILLIAM PHELAN

The Community Preservation Act calls for members of the Planning Board, Park and Recreation Board, Historic Commission, Conservation Commission, and Housing Authority Board to be represented on the committee. In addition, the City Council's local ordinance called for a City Councillor and three additional representatives to be appointed by the Mayor.

Appointed to the committee are: Steve Perdios, Maureen Mazzimas and Paul Kodad. City Councillor Jay Davis was recommended by City Council President Doug Gutter.

The following are the remaining members elected by the respective boards: P.J. Foley (Planning), Connie Driscoll (Park and Recreation), Martha King (Conservation), Susan Canavan (Historic District Commission), and Kevin Cotter (Housing Authority).

"I am eager to get the committee started and planning the best use of these funds," said Phelan. "There are some timely issues that I hope to work with the committee to address immediately."

The State match comes from the fees paid by residents on transactions at the various Registries of Deeds throughout the Commonwealth. Prior to 2007, fees paid by Quincy residents have been used exclusively in other communities that accepted the Community Preservation Act. Quincy is now eligible for a 100% match on local surcharge revenues.

"I want to thank the volunteers that will add their skills, talents, and time to this important effort," Phelan said. "The impact of this committee can last generations. I thank them for their service and I look forward to working with the committee and the City Council in accomplishing great things for Quincy with the Community Preservation Act."

'Gateway' Used Car License Hearing Continued To April 10

The License Board Tuesday continued to April 10 a request by Right Deal, Inc., for a Motor II used car license at 451 Quincy Ave.

Charlie Aihelo, appearing in place of his brother, Antwane, told the board that they plan to purchase the property from the owner, Harvey Kertzman.

Charlie said he was appearing alone because his brother, who was listed as the manager, was in California and Kertzman was in Maine.

"It's important that Antwane and Harvey come to the meeting," said Chairman Joseph Shea. "I want them here on April 10."

Police Chief Robert Crowley indicated that he may have an additional request for them when they do appear.

"This is the gateway to the city," he said. "It needs some sprucing up."

The License Board also:

- Approved a request by the Quincy Business Association for a general license to hold its 36th annual Summer Sidewalk Sale in Quincy Center Thursday, July 19, through Saturday, July 21.

- Approved a request by the Sons of Italy for a change in manager from Louis Arienti to Dennis Bertoni at the SOI Lodge, 120 Quarry St.

- Approved a request by The Sydney Group, Inc., doing business as Four's, for a sidewalk cafe at 15 Cottage Ave., subject to the approval of the State Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission.

Building Inspector Jay Duca said he inspected the property Monday morning and "everything looks good."

- Approved a request by Donald Ormond, doing business as The Coffee Break Cafe, for a common victualler's license in a kiosk inside Richard's Market, 243 Atlantic St.

Ormond, who operates two other Coffee Break Cafes in Quincy and one in Braintree, said he plans to open in two or three weeks.

- Approved a request by Firefly's Quincy LLC to pledge its license, which was granted in February, to Quincy 2000 Collaborative for a business loan, subject to the approval of the State Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission.

Attorney Richard Barry said Firefly's plans to open May 1 at 516 Adams St.

West Elm Variety License Approved By 3-1 Vote

One last hands-on test by Fire Chief Tim Pettinelli and one final visit by City Clerk Joe Shea and Health Commissioner Drew Scheele and it was done.

The License Board Monday approved the controversial wine and beer license for the West Elm Variety Store at 139 West Elm Ave., Wollaston.

The roll call vote was 3-1 with Scheele against, Shea, Pettinelli and Building Inspector Jay Duca for and Police Chief Robert Crowley sitting it out with a conflict of interest.

The license now goes to the State Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC) for review.

Only members of the License Board were permitted to speak before Monday's final vote. The last public testimony was taken March 6 when the pros and cons seemed to be equally divided.

"All arguments for and against the sale of alcohol are emotional," observed Shea.

The March 6 meeting was unprecedented in that it was attended by only three members of the board when Pettinelli was called away to a fire.

The fire chief was briefed and listened to a tape of the meeting he missed and, for good measure, he told his colleagues that he visited the West Elm Street area that very morning.

"I parked on the side of the street," he said. "Just then a ladder truck came down the street. A truck was turning down Billings Road. An elderly woman was turning into the street.

"It was a good test of safety in the intersection. The traffic issue is not as critical as some may think."

Scheele came out with a different view when he and Shea visited the area the same morning.

"There's too much traffic," he said. "The street is a tight squeeze. It's heavily traveled. It'll be worse when you get the big delivery trucks delivering beer."

Adams National Park Seeks Comments On Boosting Entrance Rates

The cost of visiting the Adams National Historical Park is going up and if you have any comment on it Superintendent Marianne Peak wants you to tell her before Thursday, April 5.

The park is seeking to increase the entrance fees from the current $5 to $7 per person and the annual family pass from $10 to $30, effective Thursday, April 19.

Public comments should be addressed to Marianne Peak, superintendent, Adams

National Historical Park, 181 Adams St., Quincy MA 02169 or e-mail to marianne_peak@nps.gov.

The Adams National Historical Park is allowed to keep no less than 80 per cent of the fees collected which are used to fund positions directly related to assisting visitors.

The National Park Service also offers a variety of federal passes, including those good for senior citizens and people with disabilities as well as annual passes, which anyone can purchase.

The Adams National Historical Park is open from April 19 through Nov. 10 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. For further information, call 617-770-1175 or visit www.nps.gov/adams.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 29, 1806, the first appropriation of $30,000 is made to build the first highway funded by the national treasury. The Great National Pike, also known as the Cumberland Road, stretched from Cumberland, Md., to Vandalia, Ill. Eventually more than $6 million was appropriated for the highway.

• On March 28, 1814, the funeral of Guillotin, the inventor and namesake of the infamous execution device, takes place outside of Paris. The guillotine was not an immediate sensation when it was first used in 1792. The crowds seemed to miss the gallows at first. However, the guillotine quickly caught on with the public, and many thought it brought dignity back to the executioner. It was used sporadically in France until the 1930s.

• On March 27, 1905, Thomas and Ann Farrow, shopkeepers in South London, are discovered brutally bludgeoned in their home. The Farrow case was the first time that cutting-edge fingerprint technology was used in a high-profile murder case.

• On April 1, 1945, after suffering the loss of 116 planes and damage to three aircraft carriers, 50,000 U.S. combat troops of the 10th Army, under the command of Lt. Gen. Simon B. Buckner Jr., land on the southwest coast of the Japanese island of Okinawa.

• On March 30, 1962, Jack Paar films his final episode of "The Tonight Show." Paar had hosted the show since July 1957, six months after Steve Allen stepped down. The unflappable Johnny Carson took over as host starting in October 1962.

• On March 26, 1970, the classic documentary "Woodstock," showing the 1969 concert that drew half a million people, premieres. The film won an Oscar for Best Documentary.

• On March 31, 1992, "Dateline NBC" premieres. In November 1992, the show caused a scandal when it was revealed that an expose on General Motors trucks was rigged to show a dramatic explosion.

One More Time . . .

(Henry Bosworth decided to take the day off. So he's running a column that appeared in September 1993. He says TV has re-runs all the time.)

Things I wish I could see, do, or hear once more. (But not necessarily in this order.)

- Take in a movie at the Lincoln, Strand or Quincy Theater.

- Sit down to a 45-cent luncheon special at the Howard Johnson restaurant downstairs at the Granite Trust. (Now Bank of America).

- Order a Coke with a dash of lemon at the Alhambra Tea Room.

- Plunk a nickel in the jukebox and get Glenn Miller, Tommy Dorsey, Harry James or Jimmy Dorsey with Bob Eberly and Helen O'Connell.

- Look at Monroe MacLean on one side and Jack Donahue on the other plotting strategy at the Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day football game.

- Hear former Mayor and Councillor Tom Burgin stand up and tell his colleagues: "It's time to fish or cut bait."

- Henry Prairie at Point Junior High School stressing: "Always give it (effort) that extra ounce."

- Percy Lane, punster, newspaper man and bachelor observing: "You don't have to be crazy to be a newspaper man, but it helps..." "Marriage is an institution, but who wants to live in an institution."

- Dorothy Lamour, at our second meeting 10 years later, pulling me down beside her at the Latin Quarter and kidding: "C'mon now, you're not a cub reporter anymore."

- Ruth Gordon, calling from her apartment in

New York City or her home on Martha's Vineyard all excited about her latest movie or TV show and asking me to keep an eye on her birth certificate at City Hall.

- President-elect John Kennedy in his father, Joseph's, home in the Kennedy compound a few hours after his slim win over Richard Nixon pouring drinks for and chatting with the press. When asked to explain what he thought made the difference between victory and defeat, he replied: "He (Nixon) stayed around too long in the South." And confessing he was going to play some golf when he got to Florida. "But don't print that, they'll think I'm another Ike."

- Watch Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa walking through City Hall turning off unnecessary lights.

- Ride a streetcar from Quincy Point to Quincy Square and for only a nickel.

- See City Clerk John Gillis in a new crew cut.

- Buy a suit or sport coat from Ray Josephine at Remick's.

- Or a TV set from Remo and Pete DeNicola.

- And a big band album from Jason Feldman at Jason's.

- Walk up the runway at Fenway Park and see Jimmie Foxx, Bobby Doerr, Joe Cronin and Ted Williams taking batting practice.

- Take a seat in the stands at Fore River Field and see Jay Desmond, Fran Desmond, Nick Malvesti, Clappy Wildridge, Joe Shapiro, etc. in action.

- Stop at the Quincy Arena to boo Ted Germaine or Tony Palapino.

- Get up at 4 a.m. for Quincy High School hockey practice at the Boston Arena. (I'm not so sure about doing that again.)

Montclair School Celebrates 'Read Across America'

Waldo and Willy Wonka walked the hallways of the Montclair School and quite a few Cats in the Hat raced around with Thing 1 and Thing 2 the other day, all in the interest of reading a book.

Members of the Montclair School community, including more than 200 students and their parents, celebrated "Read Across America," the nation's largest reading event, with a week of activities dedicated to the importance of reading.

The week kicked off with

an evening program, Salute to Reading," presented by magician Steve Rudolph, who encouraged students, parents and staff to explore how they think about books, the places they can take you and the characters you meet.

The following day, 75 students and staff members arrived at school dressed as characters from their favorite books, Waldo and Willy Wonka, the Cat in the Hat and Amelia Bedelia picking up after the Three Little Pigs, Cinderellas and Sleeping Beauties.

More than 60 members of the community, both students and staff, celebrated the 103rd birthday of Dr. Seuss and the 50th birthday of the Cat in the Hat with a birthday cake that was shared by all.

Tracey Phelan, the First Lady of Quincy; public school administrators, police, firefighters, Rotarians, state and local officials visited the classrooms to share their love of reading and discuss their favorite books with the kids, kindergarten through Grade 5.

Through the generosity of the PTO, all students received a book to help build their personal libraries at home.

Firefighter and author Bill Arienti ended the celebration with a sneak preview of the final draft of his next book in the Tales of Faxon series, "Leaper and Quills."

QHS Renewable Energy Advisors Meet Tonight

The Advisory Board of the Renewable Energy Integration Project at Quincy High School will meet tonight (Thursday) from 5:30 to 7 p.m. at the Three Seasons Restaurant in Quincy High School.

The citizens board has been put together by the Career and Technical Education Center to help develop science and construction trades courses that address renewable energy at the school.

Quincy High School was the recipient of a grant from the State Department of Education to assist in developing the curriculum with a target completion date of June, 2007.

The agenda for tonight's meeting includes the status of the curriculum, a review of quotes, a decision on components, specs to engineers and permitting needs.

Plans are to display the three energy sources — photo voltaic, solar thermal and wind — on the bridge between schools as a method of teaching students about renewable energy.

High School To College Subject Of Discussion

Outreach Counselor Elizabeth Fitzgerald will be at the Broadmeadows Middle School, 50 Calvin Rd., Tuesday, April 10, from 7 to 9 p.m. to discuss student transition from high school to college.

Some of the issues to be discussed include: What happens now? Where do I go for help? What to think about when planning post-secondary education. And suggestions for local colleges with support services.

Those planning to attend the event, sponsored by the Quincy Parent Advisory Council, should RSVP by April 5 to qpacsped@comcast.net or by contacting Andrea White at 617-479-8776.

An RSVP is needed to make sure enough material is available for everyone.

For more information about QPAC contact Toni-Marie Mahoney, president, at 6.7-773-4558 or tmahoney77@comcast.net.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 postcard view of St. Mary's Catholic Church on Crescent Street in West Quincy published by Drohan News. Some of Boston's most prominent Catholic prelates are woven into the history of this church's buildings. In 1841 Bishop Fenwick dedicated the wooden church on the right as the first Catholic Church south of Boston. It served parishioners all the way down to Plymouth. In 1901, Archbishop Williams laid the cornerstone for what is the basement of the present seam-face granite church in the center. And then in 1917, when the upstairs was built, Cardinal O'Connell dedicated that portion of the church. After serving the parish for 60 years, the original church on the right was named St. Joseph's Hall to honor Mary's husband. That site is now a parking lot. North Quincy students are honoring Patrick White, a classmate who lost his battle to cancer last year. Plus, students are trying to win a school visit from Red Sox infielder Kevin Youkilis.

The Rally Against Cancer coincides with the Sox home opener on Tues., April 10. Participation is as easy as putting on a Sox hat and T-shirt, and it is a great way to build team spirit in school.

To Rally Against Cancer, students must each pitch in at least $5 for the Jimmy Fund and then wear their favorite Red Sox gear to school on opening day. Plus, the top school wins a visit from Youkilis.

Dana-Farber in Boston is a world-renowned pioneer in discovering and developing innovative, effective cancer therapies for adults and children. Its fundraising arm is the Jimmy Fund, which also is an official charity of the Boston Red Sox.

To support either school or to register, just step up to the plate and visit www.jimmyfund.org/rally, or contact Charles Savicki at (617) 632-5420.

Quincy Farmers' Market To Offer CSA's For 2007

Quincy Farmers' Market will be offering shares for Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) in addition to its normal farmers' market operation, according to Anneli Johnson, market manager.

According to Johnson, consumers, restaurant owners, chefs and schools can order their produce or shares ahead of the season. Then, when the season is in full swing, they will have their weekly produce needs already purchased and ready to take home in a convenient reusable box that can be reused for the entire season.

The shares can include a variety of fruits and vegetables, along with custom ordered beef, lamb and pork produced on Stillman Farm in New Braintree and Hardwick, MA.

CSA's are considered a means for farmers to have the start-up money needed for seeds, planting and labor, before the season begins. Shareholders can pick up their orders at Quincy Farmers' Market on Fridays starting in July or make special arrangements with the farmers.

Brochures describe the CSA's are available at the Main Library on Washington St. and the North Quincy Branch Library. Contact Johnson at 617-479-1601 or Valarie Burrows at 617-479-8750.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Sale of Historic Site Proposed

By FRANK MCCAULEY

Historic Moswetusset Hummock in Squantum from where Massachusetts got its name, would be transferred to the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Council under a bill now pending in the State Legislature.

The K of C Council is seeking a site for a new home, which would have recreation and meeting facilities for outside groups.

The bill sponsored by Representatives Amelio Della Chiesa, Joseph E. Brett, James R. McIntyre and Charles L. Shea, is now before the Ways and Means committee.

The proposal met strong opposition from the Quincy Board of Managers of Historic Places and City Historian William Churchill Edwards who feel that a historic shrine should not be transferred by the MDC to any private organization. (Editors Note: It didn't happen.)

MEN'S CLUB TO HEAR COUNCILLORS

The Montclair Men's Club has invited Council President William C. Ellis and Councillors George G. Burke and John J. Quinn, to discuss local projects that the city is about to undertake.

QUINCY-ISMS

QHS's Production of 'Grease' Was 'Superb'

My granddaughter, Elia, daughter and I attended the matinee showing of "Grease" at Quincy High School on March 24.

My granddaughter loves plays. She even prefers Fairytale Theater productions to Disney.

We were not disappointed. She didn't even miss John Travolta, who is an all-time favorite of hers.

The production was superb. If you haven't attended a high school play, you're missing something great.

These young people put everything into their performances. The singing, acting, and dancing was terrific. The cast was gracious enough to autograph Elia's program for her. She loves that.

They should be commended for a show very well done.

QHS Early Ed Students Get Training In Kindergarten

Quincy High School students who are enrolled in the Center for Career and Technical Education's Early Education and Care Program recently spent a hands-on day with the system's kindergarten teachers.

The teachers, Lori Cahill and Ronnie Bowler, provided the students with background and insight as to what is happening system-wide in the Quincy Public Schools and the students assisted with lessons and activities.

The students were placed by Maureen Ajemian, the Early Education and Care teacher at Quincy High, who places her students in kindergarten classrooms where they spend two days a week during their junior and senior years.

Both Mayor William Phelan and Superintendent Richard DeCristofaro have made literacy a major goal for early learners in the Quincy schools.

The kindergarten teachers presented the students with an overview of the five components of reading: phonemic awareness, phonics, fluency, vocabulary and comprehension.

They also shared with the students the importance of instilling a love of reading in very young children by modeling good reciprocal teaching strategies while demonstrating a developmentally appropriate, hand-on approach to reading comprehension.

The Early Education and Care Program at Quincy High is a two-year major where students learn the knowledge and skills to become preschool teachers. Some colleges allow students to receive credit for their high school programs.

World War I Years Series To Continue At Library

The third of a three-part film series designed to revisit and understand the tumultuous events of a formative period in American history will be presented Tuesday, April 3, at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

The series is entitled "The World War I Years: America Becomes a World Power."

and the third session is devoted to "Modern War," and will examine the damage inflicted on the people of the world by the carnage of war.

Newbury College Professor of History Dan Breen will present a lively lecture, followed by a documentary film screening and discussion. No registration is required and participants may attend more of more sessions.

The series is made possible by National Video Resources and sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

For more information, call 617-0376-1301 or visit thomascranepubliclibrary.org.

Fast Food Industry Takes Hit In Movie At Library

The fast food industry is pilloried in the movie, entitled "Fast Food Nation," that will be shown Thursday, April 12, at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

Inspired by the incendiary bestseller that exposed the hidden facts behind America's fast food industry, the movie combines an all-star ensemble cast with interlocked human stories.

When a marketing executive for Mickey's burger chain is told there is a nasty secret ingredient in his food, he heads for the ranches and slaughterhouses of Colorado to investigate.

What he discovers is difficult to swallow. The picture is rated R.

The movie that is scheduled for showing Thursday, April 19, at 7 p.m. will be "Madenusa," a fable about the clash between old and new in a strange village in Andes Mountains of Peru.

Madenusa is a 14-year-old girl with a sweet Indian face who lives in an isolated mountain village, a strange place characterized by its religious fervor.

But everything changes with the arrival in the village of Salvador, a young geologist from Lima, who will unknowingly change the destiny of the girl.

The movie is recommended for ages 17 and over.

Both films are shown free of charge. For more information, call 617-376-1301.

Quincy Art Association Classes Start April 23

The Quincy Art Association will be offering classes for adults and children in all mediums, including new classes in portrait sculpture for adults and mixed media sculpture for children.

Classes start the week of April 23.

Identity Theft – Don't Let It Happen To You

By ANTHONY CARUSO

Consumers, guard your wallets and be alert!

Identity theft scandals have been making headlines recently, and awareness of the very real possibility that anyone, at any time, could have his or her personal information misappropriated is at an all time high. The best way to protect yourself is to be aware of your surroundings and to keep track of your finances.

ANTHONY CARUSO

What is Identity Theft?

Identity theft is when someone uses your personal information such as your name, date of birth, Social Security number or credit card numbers to impersonate you online, through the mail, over the telephone or even in person! This can lead to credit being obtained falsely or bank accounts being opened in your name – all without your knowledge.

As a result of these actions that you were not even aware of, legal action can be brought against you, with corresponding criminal records tainting your good name. Once this happens, it takes considerable effort and expense to restore your credit and financial history back to its original status.

How do identity thieves get the information they need to impersonate someone?

It's easier than you might think. Identity thieves can obtain your personal information by stealing records from businesses and institutions or bribing someone to provide that information, hacking into computer databases, soliciting personal information through online scams, or even digging through your trash.

How to avoid becoming a victim of identity theft.

- Protect your personal information. Review your bank statements and credit card bills monthly for any unusual activity; order and review credit reports on an annual basis. If you notice any discrepancies, contact your bank or credit card company immediately. You can request a free annual credit report through: HYPERLINK "http://www.equifax.com" HYPERLINK "http://www.equifax.com" HYPERLINK "http:// www.experian.com www.experian.com; and HYPERLINK "http://www.transunion.com" www.transunion.com.

- Buy a shredder. Shred all credit card and bank statements before throwing them out with the household trash. Personal shredders can be purchased for as little as $20 at your local office supply store.

- Guard your wallet. Limit the number of credit cards and other personal information that you carry in your wallet or purse. Keep a copy of your credit cards and contact information at home so that you can quickly access numbers.

- Beware of online and phone scams. Never share personal information about yourself or family members with anyone over the telephone or on the Internet. Do not respond to emails or phone calls asking you to provide or verify personal information about you, your bank or your financial accounts. Most financial service agencies, including banks, will tell you that they will never request such information from you over the telephone or via the Internet. Additionally, be aware of your surroundings when entering your Personal Identification Number (PIN) at an ATM.

What do I do if my identity is "stolen"?

As we learned in the recent TJX Companies, Inc. and Stop and Shop data breach debacles, even safe systems can be beaten by tech-savvy predators. If you have learned you are a victim of identity theft, take a deep breath and then follow these steps to ensure your accounts and credit will be safe.

Contact a major consumer credit reporting company. Contact TransUnion (1-800-680-7289), Equifax (1-800-525-6285) or Experian (1-888-397-3742) and ask to have a Fraud Alert placed on your credit report. The company you choose to notify will contact the other two agencies and request they update their files accordingly. Then, obtain a copy of your credit report from each agency and review it carefully for any charges you do not recognize. Report any discrepancies to the agency to request the necessary corrections.

- Close your accounts. Close all bank and credit accounts that you know, or even suspect, have been fraudulently obtained, accessed or otherwise tampered with. Your banks and credit card companies will assist you in filing written disputes for transactions that were not made by you.

- Notify the local and state authorities. Remember, it is important to notify the police in your own city or town as well as the police in the municipality where the fraud occurred.

- Notify the Federal Trade Commission. You may file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) online at HYPERLINK "http://www.consumer.gov/idtheft" www.consumer.gov/idtheft. The FTC may be able to refer your complaint to other government agencies for further action.

- For more detailed information and suggestions on how to prevent identity theft, or if you've become a victim and are looking for assistance, please visit the Bank of Canton website at www.bankcanton.com and click on the Online Fraud Prevention link at the bottom of the homepage. Or, you may contact the Federal Trade Commission, the Federal Government's primary agency for dealing with identity theft matters, at 1-877-IDTHEFT.

Senior Lunch Program Expands At Beechwood Senior Drop-In Center

Quincy's Senior Lunch Program at Beechwood on the Bay has expanded in direct response to seniors' communicated need, reports Sharron Beals, the Center's Executive Director.

"We have long provided a mid-week hot lunch and related social activities and programming (in partnership with the Nutrition Department at South Shore Elder Services)," explained Maryann Mahony, the Drop In Senior Center's Coordinator.

"However," Mahony said,

"many Quincy Seniors of advanced age, although still living independently in their own homes, have difficulties with food preparation and may not always prepare and eat a balanced and nutritionally sound diet."

"The meals available through South Shore Elder Services, are wonderful, carefully planned and prepared for the balanced dietary needs and tastes of older adults. We are pleased to now offer a full course hot meal every Wednesday and Thursday at noon. Cost is only $2.00, (less than 1/4 of actual value). On Tuesdays and Fridays, seniors are encouraged to bring their own lunch with Beechwood providing beverages and snacks.

Seniors must make reservations by Monday for Wednesday's lunch and Tuesday for Thursday's lunch.

For more information about Beechwood, Senior lunches or activities available at the "Drop-In" Center, call Maryann at 617-471-5712.

Songs, Stories Of Kurdistan Featured At Library Concert

Storyteller and singer Diane Edgcomb and singer and saz player Andrew Aytac will bring the folktales and music of Kurdistan to the Thomas Crane Public Library Sunday, April 22, from 3 to 4 p.m.

The performance will provide a rare glimpse into the world of the Kurds, whose homeland is in the Zagros Mountains at the headwaters of the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers in Iraq, Turkey and Iran.

A native of northern Kurdistan, Aytac was introduced to the saz, a guitar-like instrument, at an early age by his grandfather and uncle who were traditional players and singers. He began playing saz at the age of 12.

Edgcomb's lifelong interest in image-based performance, mythology and nature has led her to create a variety of unusual performance projects. She has been called a "virtuoso of the spoken word."

The performance for all ages is free and sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library. For more information, call 617-376-1301 or visit thomascranelibrary.org.

Koch Urges QHA To Correct Conditions At Tobin Towers

Mayoral candidate Tom Koch this week urged the Quincy Housing Authority to take immediate action to resolve what he called "intolerable" conditions in the Tobin Towers public housing building stemming from persistent problems with running hot water.

Koch recently met with the building's tenant association, which represents the seniors and disabled people who live in the Clay Street building. Koch said residents described to him repeated failures to maintain running hot water in the building several months after a major boiler malfunction.

"Hot water is a fundamental requirement of even the most basic level of humane living conditions, never mind what we should require and expect in one of our flagship public housing buildings," Koch said in a letter to Housing Authority Executive Director Jay MacRitchie.

"This is not routine maintenance that can be treated like a minor inconvenience to residents. This is an emergency, and it's incumbent upon your office to take whatever measures necessary to fully resolve the problem as soon as possible."

In talking with residents of the building, Koch said he repeatedly heard stories of complaints and concerns about hot water and other maintenance issues being brushed aside or even ignored.

"I cannot stress to you enough the importance of treating people with respect, dignity and openness," Koch said. "If a problem cannot be immediately fixed, residents should at least feel like their concerns are being heard. I can only hope that these problems are not systemic in all of our public housing buildings."

Koch said residents spoke candidly about other plumbing issues, including consistently back-up drains, and elevators that work properly only sporadically. He suggested that residents in Tobin Towers contact the mayor's office, saying that any suggestion that city hall has no role in Housing Authority matters is "misguided."

Koch noted that the mayor appoints four of the five members on the Authority's board of directors and actively lobbied for MacRitchie's appointment to the head job at the agency.

"These are not the kind of day-to-day maintenance issues that are often placed on the back burner in order to deal with more pressing issues," Koch said. "These are the pressing issues."

$32,000 will be used for repairs of cruisers and motorcycles, $8000 for vehicles, supplies, and $6,500 for professional services.

"We just cannibalized two cruisers today," Crowley said, then described the need for motorcycle repairs that insurance will not cover.

Raymondi suggested voting a transfer from the city's Free Cash line rather than "deplete the personnel line" that could cover that overnight shift.

During the meeting, Crowley provided data indicating that the department does not cover all 13 city sectors with cruisers 24 hours a day, seven days every week as recommended unanimously by the City Council on March 5.

The chief cited statistics showing low crime and call times after 2 a.m. and provided records showing a significant drop of almost one minute in police response time from 2003 to 2007. Crowley said that the cruisers are assigned the "way we've been covering for the last seven to eight years."

"I assumed that we had 13 sector cars around the clock," Raymondi said, noting that the $46,500 would cover several hundred officers' hours in overtime if needed.

Twice during Monday's session, the chief retracted earlier statements made that night regarding police issues. At one point, Crowley insisted that 10 cruisers and one "Impact Car" were on patrol during a specific shift and said that the "Impact Car" was not parked at the station during that shift.

However, one of the police captains attending Monday's meeting silently signaled the chief and provided the correct data to him at the podium. Captains Michael Miller, Anthony DiBona, John Dougan and Paul Keenan accompanied Crowley to the meeting, as did Lt. Charles Santoro.

After receiving additional information, Crowley said, "I misspoke; it was 10 cars." He explained that the "Impact Car" was, in fact, at headquarters that night and was assigned to chauffeuring duties.

"Before you speak, get the facts," Gutro suggested later in the meeting. "From this day forward, get as much clarity as possible." As for mending fences with the patrolmen's union, Gutro said, "It needs to happen."

At-large Councillor Joseph Finn said both sides need to "tone down the rhetoric."

Gutro cited the courage of the 50 plus patrolmen who demonstrated in City Hall Chambers on February 26.

NQHS Parents To Meet April 5

The North Quincy High School Parents Advisory Council will meet Thursday, April 5, at 7 p.m. in the Trophy Room at the high school.

COA In Need Of Bath Seats

The Council on Aging is in urgent need for bath seats for senior citizens.

If you have one to donate, call 617-376-1245.

"It sends a message," Gutro noted that 25% or more of the police department's workforce demonstrated that night.

"I was called a liar 12 times," Crowley said of that night. Crowley dismissed the numbers attending the meeting to show the union membership's support for their president.

Crowley described his efforts to meet with union officials but said that the union is demanding a transcript of their session.

"The sticking point is that they want a stenographer there," Crowley told the Council Monday, adding, "They don't set the rules."

"They can come in anytime they want," Crowley praised Quincy's officers, "They do a fantastic job, second to none. I want to open up communication."

In a March 21st letter to union president Bruce Tait, the chief promised that he and his command staff would be available for a meeting "to address any issues or misunderstandings that you believe may exist between management and labor."

Tait responded through a March 27 letter, saying that while union is "...committed to a meeting anytime, anywhere, we also remain firm that a stenographer will be present."

Several councillors agreed that, under other circumstances, the vote to transfer the $46,500 would have been a routine matter. For the current fiscal year, the department's Personnel budget totals $19,388,410 of which $14,243,000 had been spent as of March 1.

According to the chief's summary, the department will have an excess of $69,791 if the federal Department of Homeland Security pays the city its debt of $112,000.

Crowley told councillors that he was assured that Homeland Security would be cutting the check that very day. Without the federal payment, the department's Personnel budget may run into red ink.

The vote was taken at the Finance Committee meeting Monday and must be confirmed again at a formal City Council session.

Morrissey Urges Constituents To Apply For College Financial Aid

Qualified students are missing out on Financial Aid grants and low-interest loans, as well as private scholarships for colleges and universities, according to state Senator Michael W. Morrissey who recently urged students and parents to research the many opportunities.

Senator Morrissey said recently that more than $1 billion is available for college students through grants and loans from federal and state government agencies. In addition, he said there are millions of dollars also available through colleges and universities.

"Students and their families should be aware that funds exist to help ease the financial burden of attending college," Senator Morrissey said, adding, "It takes time and patience to uncover these sources and to get through the application process."

The first step in the process is to file the federal form called FAFSA or the Free Application for Federal Student Aid which can be accessed online at www.fafsa.ed.gov. Students heading for private colleges are likely to need the CSS PROFILE available online at <http://profile.collegeboard.com>. One on one guidance is also available at the TERI College Access Center located at Boston Public Library, Copley Square, 700 Boylston St., Boston.

Friendly Visitors Sought At COA

The Council is mandated by law to do background checks on all volunteers.

Live Auction April 7 To Benefit Quincy's Mini Fenway Park

Boston Red Sox fans are invited to join Sox legends, Wally the Green Monster and Shonda Schilling at the Fenway Park License Plate Auction on Sat., April 7, from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m., at the Fenway Park State Street Pavilion. The live auction will feature one-of-a-kind plates with the uniform numbers of celebrated Red Sox players and the years of Red Sox pennant-winning and world championship teams. The event culminates an online auction of the plates that began March 1 at the Red Sox website (www.redsox.com).

Honorary co-chairs of the event are Boston Red Sox legends, Luis Tiant and Carl Yastrzemski. The event kicks off at 7 p.m. with a buffet dinner, complimentary beverages and entertainment by "Street Magic," NESN SportsDesk reporter, Jayme Parker, will serve as the evening's master of ceremonies. Celebrity auctioneer, actor-comedian Tony V, and auctioneer Dan Flynn will begin the live auction at 8:30 p.m. The evening will conclude with entertainment by "Andrew and Expressions."

Proceeds from the auction as well as overall sales of the Fenway Park License Plate will benefit Mini Fenway Park; a half-sized replica of Boston's famed ballpark to begin construction in late spring. Funds will help support both capital and operations needs for building the facility and implementing its youth athletic development programs.

Sponsors of the Fenway Park License Plate include State Street Corporation, Enterprise Rent-A-Car, Dunkin Donuts and Payton Construction. "We are grateful to our sponsors, the Boston Red Sox, Major League Baseball, the Registry of Motor Vehicles, 3M Corporation, our volunteers, and the 1500 folks who have purchased the plate for helping to make it happen," said Ron Iacobucci, CEO of Kids Replica Ballpark, Inc., the organization spearheading the construction of Mini Fenway Park.

Bidding at the live auction will be on the 25 lowest numbered license plates from the online auction, which includes the following numbers: 1-22, 24-99, 406, 1489, 1967, 1975, 1986, 1903, 1912, 1916, 1918 and 2004.

Tickets for the event are $100 for standing room and $250 for reserved seating. Ticket holders will be treated to a dinner buffet, open bar with wine, beer and soda, and a deluxe gift bag. To purchase tickets or to participate in the online auction, go to <http://www.redsox.com/minifenwaypark> and click on "Charity Event."

Mini Fenway Park will be built on 12 acres in the Blue Hills Reservation in Quincy, MA located directly off Exit 8 on U.S. Interstate 93.

Tax Tips From The Experts. Advantages of Health Savings Accounts

As the cost of health insurance continues to rise and Massachusetts' mandatory health care on the horizon, the new health savings accounts (HSAs) may start to gain popularity.

An HSA is an IRA for health care costs. You get a tax deduction for contributions to the plan with distributions tax free if used for the health care. You must have a high deductible health policy. 2007 contributions are limited to $2,550 for single person coverage, $5,650 for families. IRS authorization is not necessary to establish an HSA but you must work with a trustee such as a bank, insurance company or other qualified financial service institution.

The benefits of an HSA are:

• You deduct contributions on your income other than your employer's make your HSA contributions. Contributions are deducted from your 1040. If you're self-employed, you deduct contributions from your 1040. If you're an employee, you deduct contributions from your 1040. If you're an employee, you deduct contributions from your 1040. If you're an employee, you deduct contributions from your 1040.

Qualifications for an HSA:

• A high deductible health plan (HDHP) described later in this article of the month. No other health coverage. Not enrolled in Medicare. Not claimed as a dependent on someone else's 2006 tax return.

If you meet these requirements, you are an eligible individual even if your spouse has non-HDHP family coverage, provided your spouse's coverage does not cover you.

The following table shows the minimum deductible and the maximum annual deductible and other out-of-pocket expenses for HDHPs for 2006.

Type of Coverage	Minimum Annual Deductible	Maximum Annual Deductible and Other Out-of-Pocket Expenses*
Self only	$1,100	$2,750
Family	$2,200	$5,400

department of the location of non-working hydrants.

The estimated number of faulty hydrants across the city changed from a few dozen to 300 at different times during Monday's meeting, dismaying councillors who repeatedly asked for the correct number and a accurate list.

As the meeting opened, Chief Pettinelli presented graphs indicating that some 300 hydrant were defective, had low pressure or no water. However, DPW Commissioner Stephen O'Donnell immediately offered a more updated list with only 19 faulty hydrants.

O'Donnell said that the original list included dozens of "no drain hydrants" which is a minor problem solved each Fall. Another list of over 100 faulty hydrants was provided by the firefighters' union. In many cases, the locations on the different lists did not match.

During his weekly televised press conference, Mayor William Phelan called the question of non-working fire hydrants "a non-issue."

"Writing a list is all it takes," the Mayor said, adding there may be a problem "...if they're not reporting them to the water department."

At Monday's meeting, several councillors referred to a recent fire in Quincy at which firefighters hooked up to a non-working fire hydrant.

"We're trained for the unexpected," Pettinelli said when discussing that incident.

Library Guided Tour April 7

A guided walk through the Thomas Crane Public Library, one of downtown Quincy's architectural gems, will be conducted Saturday, April 7, starting at 10 a.m.

The original building, which now houses the reference section of the library, is a masterpiece designed by the renowned architect H. H. Richardson in 1882 and recently restored.

The Coletti reading room, added in 1939, contains a carved brownstone bas relief and houses a monthly art exhibit inside.

The newest addition, a contemporary interpretation of Richardson's Romanesque style constructed in 2001, has everything from audiobooks to Internet computers to zoo passes.

All ages are welcome to join the free tours. No registration is required. Tours will meet in the ground floor atrium. Interpretation in Cantonese and Mandarin will be provided.

"Airing Out" Your Pipes

Q. When flushing the toilets, the pipes in the house make a banging noise for about 20 seconds. The noise stops when we run water from the faucets in the bathroom or kitchen. What is the cure?

—Rosemarie G., via e-mail

A. The banging noise you're hearing, also known as "water hammer," is a result of air being trapped somewhere in the plumbing system — most likely in the cold-water supply lines, since you're able to stop the noise by turning on faucets.

A home's pipes have lots of bends and turns and odd short stems that lead nowhere. This is not just so the pipes will get where they need to go; certain parts are deliberately placed in certain configurations to redirect air bubbles so they don't impede water flow or cause annoying problems like water hammer.

Even with this preventive planning, air can still get trapped in spots where it isn't supposed to be. This can occur after work is done on the plumbing, such as repairing or replacing pipes, faucets or other hardware. It can also occur due to high water pressure in the pipes, which can happen when the home's supply system is not designed to compensate for municipal supply feeds that might be delivered at high pressure.

You can attempt to "bleed" air out of the supply pipes first. Turn off the main water supply to the house. Locate the lowest faucet in the pipe system (the first-floor bathroom, or an outdoor spigot); then locate the highest faucet in the system (such as an upstairs bathroom). Open the lowest and highest faucets and allow all the water to drip out. When the dripping stops, close both faucets. Turn on the main water supply. Test the system by flushing the toilets a few times.

If this does not work, contact a plumber to inspect the water supply lines and measure the water pressure. He or she may recommend installing a pressure-reducing valve at the main supply feed, or a water-hammer reduction valve.

Send questions or home-repair tips to home@quincy21.com, or write This Is a Hammer, c/o King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Hints for the Home

New Vacuum Cleaner Closes In On Dirt

(NAPS) — When do three inches go farther than 30? When it comes to getting carpets and floors deep down clean. That's the philosophy behind a vacuum that features the industry's shortest air path for maximum suction.

Instead of moving dirt through a long hose and cup, the designers put the motor and dust bag as close to the intake as possible. Dirt travels just three inches from the nozzle to the bag, creating powerful suction and superior cleaning performance.

The shorter air path and increased suction pleases the 89 percent of Americans who said in a recent survey that powerful suction is the most important vacuum cleaner feature. The Intensity vacuum from Electrolux was created to respond to that consumer need and features a 12-amp motor and 3-inch air path, allowing for maximum suction all the way to the edges. In the same survey, Americans stated that the most important design feature in a vacuum cleaner is "convenient storage." This resulted in a compact, 16-pound machine designed with an adjustable, telescopic handle that folds down for easy portability and storage.

The vacuum's powerful two-motor system provides maximum performance on all floor surfaces. The design includes fingertip controls on the unit's handle that allow users to turn the power brush on for carpet and off for bare floors, while blue surface-indicator lights display the setting, making it easy to select the appropriate cleaning mode and transition from carpets to hard-surfaces. In addition, its edge-cleaning brushes reach dirt along baseboards and a HEPA filtration system lets the vacuum capture 99.97 percent of dust, allergens, pet dander and other small particles in the air.

An "optimum" indicator light along the back of the machine also makes vacuuming simpler. This feature glows a tranquil blue when all systems are running smoothly, reassuring users that their homes are receiving the best clean possible. When the vacuum's bag or filter needs changing, the light is replaced by a red light indicating the appropriate action.

There's a 21-foot cord that automatically rewinds for quick and neat storage, soft-touch grips for comfort, wheels and furniture guard for protection, and fingertip controls for maximum convenience and minimum bending. There's no assembly required. Intensity is ready to use right out of the box. Here are more hints to help you get the most from your vacuuming:

- According to the Textile Cleaners of America, over 80 percent of all loose dirt comes in through your front door. Reduce dust with a good doormat.

- Before you vacuum, pick up any large pieces of clutter, especially threads that can bind a vacuum's brush, and put up electric and window blind cords so they won't get tangled or sucked up in the vacuum.

- Start by cleaning the drapes and follow with the windowsills, backs of couches, pillows and lampshades, as dust falls down.

- Vacuum across the traffic pattern, three times for lightly soiled spots and about six times for more heavily soiled areas.

- Vacuum at least once a week. Walking on soiled carpet drives the dirt particles below the pile where they can damage the fibers.

For more information about the vacuum and retail locations, visit www.intensityvac.com.

Plan Now for Summer Energy Savings

If last summer's heat was brutal, it's not too late to think about air conditioning. Now is the time to find good deals, before the weather heats up.

If you have an old central air-conditioning unit with the ductwork already in place, upgrading could easily cut your utility costs in half. Not only are the new models more efficient but, if you buy an Energy Star model, your savings increase. Add in the tax credit you get for buying an approved model, and your savings go up even more.

Read up on SEER (Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio) and learn what is required for your home size (www.energystar.gov). Higher efficiency models will run between 14 and 22, with the higher numbers being more efficient. Compare models and warranties, and don't forget the noise levels: That will matter if the only place for the unit is under your bedroom window.

Look for the yellow Energy Guide sticker on the unit. It's required that the yearly cost of operating it as well as the annual energy consumption be printed on the side label.

If you don't need to upgrade your current air conditioner, keep it in good condition by scheduling the annual inspection as soon as the weather tops 65 degrees. (Any earlier and the coils can be damaged.)

If central air conditioning is not in your budget, consider some of the changes you can make to keep your house cooler:

- Install a reflective coating on your windows, or at the very least keep drapes closed on sunny windows. Windows can account for 40 percent of the heat buildup.
- Invest in a dehumidifier. You'll feel cooler at a higher temperature if the humidity level is lower.

- Install an attic fan to cool the ceilings in your upstairs. Better yet, consider a whole-house attic fan.

- Paint your house a light color. The exterior walls will absorb 70 percent to 90 percent less heat from the sun.
- Caulk windows and doors, just as you would for winter.

- Install awnings, louvers or solar screens. Solar screens block the sun but still allow you to see out.

The Five Most Dangerous Hazards In Your Home

(NAPS) – Increasingly, homebuyers are learning the inside story on how hazards found inside homes can pose threats to their health.

"These hazards are an important reason homebuyers need to have their home thoroughly tested by a home inspector," said Dan Steward, president of Pillar To Post, North America's leading provider of home inspection services.

Here are a few hazards to look for:

- Radon, a colorless, odorless, tasteless gas, can be present in surrounding soil or well water and seep into the parts of the home closest to the ground. The radioactive particles that radon creates can damage your lungs. The only way to know if your house has radon is to test the house. There are relatively inexpensive ways to do-it-yourself project.

- Asbestos is a fibrous material used in construction because it's durable and fire retardant, but it has also been identified as a cancer-causing substance. Asbestos can be found in insulation, around pipes and furnaces and in vinyl tiles and flooring materials. When it's removed, minute asbestos fibers are released into the air and can be inhaled through the nose and mouth. Once ingested, asbestos fibers can lodge in the lungs. Surveying the home and removing the asbestos should be done by trained professionals.

- Lead is a metallic element that, when ingested, can accumulate in the blood, bones and soft tissue of the body. High concentrations of lead in the body can cause death or permanent damage to the central nervous system, the brain, the kidneys and red blood cells.

Children are especially vulnerable since their bodies are still growing. Lead can be found in drinking water and in old pipes and can be airborne or present in lead-based paint. The only way to know for sure if your home's paint contains lead is to have it tested in a qualified laboratory.

- Hazardous wastes are potentially dangerous materials, such as pesticides or fertilizers, that were not properly stored or disposed of. Some hazardous wastes can cause death even when ingested in small amounts. Other hazardous wastes have been linked to elevated levels of cancer, permanent damage to organs, respiratory difficulties, skin rashes, birth defects and diseases that attack the central nervous system. Removal methods depend on the type of waste.

- Groundwater contamination occurs when hazardous chemicals seep down through the soil into underground water supplies. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control reports an average of approximately 7,500 cases of illness linked to drinking water in the United States each year. Faulty septic systems can also contribute to this hazard. The only way to know if your water is contaminated is to test it.

(NAPS) – According to design experts, our homes are unique reflection of who we are. Yet homeowners essentially want the same thing, a warm and welcoming place to spend time with family and friends.

Decorating styles changes, but one constant remains: The simple beauty of wood never goes unnoticed. The rich patina of mahogany doors redone to their original grandeur, the warm glow of refinished pine floor, and the flea market find restored to its original beauty are examples of projects that can be completed with a little expert guidance.

Looking for Décor Ideas?

One great source for creative wood-finishing projects is the 2007 edition of Minwax Wood Beautiful magazine. Filled with eclectic styles to suit a wide range of decorating tastes, the 36-page color magazine showcases stunning photos and imaginative before-and-after projects.

Update a Flea Market Find

Savvy homeowners might think twice before passing up that tag sale find when they see the gorgeous turn-of-the-century corkscrew bed that was rescued and restored with Minwax Wood Finish stain in English Chestnut. The resulting elegant antique creates a bedroom that radiates warmth and comfort.

Wood Beautiful provides specific details on how to create a fun and functional teen study area, find new life for kitchen cabinets as garage storage space or transform a weathered desk. These are just a few of the many projects in the magazine that will motivate do-it-yourselfers to tackle a variety of home-decorating jobs.

Do-it-yourselfers are encouraged to visit their neighborhood hardware store or home center during National Woodworking Month to pick up a free copy of Wood Beautiful.

The magazine is offered free online at www.minwax.com. The website also features extensive product information, wood-finishing tips and project ideas.

Coughlin Seeking QBA Support For Property Preservation Act

Ward 3 City Councillor Kevin Coughlin appeared before a recent general membership meeting of the Quincy Business Association (QBA) in support of the Property Preservation Ordinance he introduced in the Council in January.

The proposed ordinance would require a minimum level of maintenance and allow regulation of specific property conditions that may constitute a blight, nuisance, or hazard to the public health, safety or welfare.

"Neglected, abandoned and blighted properties, both in residential and commercial neighborhoods, have been a long-standing concern which has been conveyed at neighborhood meetings and which I have strived to address with this legislation," he said.

"If evidence of decay such as accumulated trash, broken windows, deteriorated building exteriors remains unabated in a neighborhood, it not only diminishes the value of adjacent properties, people who live and work in the area feel less confident of their environment and feel more vulnerable."

In a recent letter, Maralin Manning, executive director of the QBA, outlined her support for the ordinance.

"Blighted conditions that have been too long overlooked in the business area may now stand a chance of getting some TLC," she

"With the numerous non-resident property owner in the Quincy Center area there is no pride in ownership and hence blighted conditions have not only reduced the value of surrounding properties but have made it very difficult to sell this area as the choice place to invest in a business.

"I would very much like to impress upon you just how important this ordinance can be to business growth and implore you to move along as quickly as possible."

Coughlin said he found it "gratifying to have the support of the QBA and the business community in this endeavor."

"I hope to find support among my colleagues in the City Council and encourage residents who care about the conditions of their neighborhoods to let their voices be clearly heard."

Benefit April 22 For Traffic Victim Xiao Mei Chen Li

A benefit for the family of a Quincy woman struck and killed by a car in December will be held Sunday, April 22, from 1 to 4 p.m., at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 340 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Xiao Mei Chen Li, 47, mother of two Quincy school students, was killed while trying to cross Hancock Street Dec. 8.

Since that time, Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI), has been working with her husband, De Nuan Li, and has reached out to others in the community.

City Councillors Jay Davis and Brian McNamee and representatives of the Sterling Middle School, the Wollaston Lutheran Church and the Quincy Chinese Church of the Nazarene have joined in planning the benefit.

"QARI is very happy to assist the Li family and we are thrilled that so many in the community have offered to help them as well," said David Zou, vice president of QARI.

"We hope that many others will join with us to make the fundraiser a success and help the family get back on their feet."

The event will feature food, music and a silent auction. All proceeds will benefit the Li family. Donations may also be made directly to Eastern Bank, c/o Li Family Trust.

For more information about tickets and sponsorship, call the QARI office at 617-472-2200.

QHS Parent Advisory Council Meets April 12

Quincy High School's Parent Advisory Council Meeting will be held in the Pride Room at Quincy High School on Thursday, April 12 at 7 p.m. Parents and all interested persons are welcome to attend.

New Ramps To Link Crown Colony, Route 3

A $1.5 billion dollar roadway construction bond bill, approved this week by the House and Senate, contains $30 million in funding for an access ramp linking Crown Colony in West Quincy to Route 3.

The project is located at the existing highway interchange of Route 3 at Burgin Parkway/Centre Street and will include work on several streets, the widening of existing ramps and addition of two new ramps.

Roadway construction could begin as soon as July, 2008.

"The project is greatly needed to improve safety and access," said Sen. Michael Morrissey.

"The project will minimize the growing vehicle congestion on the off ramps leading to the Parkway and provide increased capacity for use around the area and vehicle access to the T Red Line and Quincy Center."

The project requires funding for three phases of construction: maintenance of the HOV lane, reconstruction of Route 3 and Burgin Parkway. It also calls for resurfacing Centre Street and guardrail safety work at all locations.

"By investing in this much needed project, the Commonwealth can retain 2,000 jobs while creating up to 4,000 new jobs," said Rep. Bruce Ayers.

"By appropriating funds at this time, the state will obtain 80 cents return on the dollar through federal assistance," said Rep. Ron Mariano.

7 Deadly Mistakes That Will Cost You Thousands When You Sell Your Home

Quincy - A new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9 Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market. The fact of the matter is that fully three quarters of homesellers don't get what they want for their home and become disillusioned and - worse - financially disadvantaged when they put their home on the market.

As this report uncovers, most homesellers make 7 deadly mistakes that will cost them literally thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable.

In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar."

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report, call 1-800-611-0351 and enter ID #1000. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

COULD YOU HAVE DIABETES? CHECK YOUR FEET!

More than 5 million people have diabetes and don't know it. This situation can lead to serious diabetes-related complications for unwitting patients, including eye, kidney, and heart disease, and the risk of lower-limb amputation. The feet often show the first signs of diabetes, so regular foot exams, either by yourself or when you visit your doctor, can alert you to trouble. Peripheral neuropathy, nerve damage to the peripheral nerves that run to the extremities, is often caused by diabetes and leads to symptoms in the feet. Check for the following warning signs: Redness, numbness, swelling, inflammation, hair loss, and/or cold to the touch sparked by a lack of blood circulation. Early detection of diabetes can prompt potentially lifesaving treatment.

It is estimated that 15 percent of all diabetics will develop a serious foot condition at some point, including infection, ulceration, or gangrene. In an effort to prevent complications of diabetes, Congress has enacted The Medicare Therapeutic Shoe Bill to provide proper footwear and inserts to qualifying individuals. Find out more about this program at 999 North Main Street, Randolph, in the MEDICAL OFFICE BUILDING, where we urge all diabetics to consider podiatric care as a very important component in managing their diabetic condition. Office hours are also available at Quincy Medical Center and Milton Medical Building. Please call us here in Randolph at 781-986-3668 for an appointment.

HINT: Experts predict the rate of diabetes worldwide to double in the next 25 years.

BRITTANY NORTON, a senior at The Woodward School for Girls, helped lead her undermanned team to a 15-5 record and a second place finish in the Independent Girls Conference. Norton reached the 1,000-point mark in her last high school game.

Star Forward Excels As Point Guard

Brittany Norton Leads Woodward To 'Great' Season

By SEAN BRENNAN
Imagine being the most complete player on your high school basketball team.

You are a player who has a legitimate shot at reaching the coveted 1,000 point scoring mark and you have spent your entire high school career playing at the forward position, scoring points at will and carrying your team through the thick and thin of the long season.

You are a two-time Patriot Ledger Honorable Mention all-star, an Independent Girls Conference all-league player, an Independent Girls Conference MVP and the bona-fide star of your team.

Now imagine that in your final year you are asked to completely change the way you play.

Your team's starting point guard goes down with a season-ending injury and another starter is also lost to injury. Your small team is down to two starters and a handful of inexperienced jayvee players, and you have to pick up the pieces and move forward for the good of your team and your school.

Do you think you could do that?

Well, Brittany Norton did just that and more. Norton who is a senior at The Woodward School for Girls was on pace to easily surpass the 1,000 point mark (in three years), and she had a team that finished in first place in the Independent Girls Conference her sophomore year, second her junior year and was returning the majority of that team this winter. But then things beyond her control changed, and not only did she respond to all challenges, but Norton took a team of untested players to a 15-5 overall record and an 11-3 league record and a second place finish in league play.

Norton was asked to move from her forward position, and away from the basket where she had scored 751 points in two years (372 her sophomore year and 379 her junior year), and into the point guard spot. She did and had what her head coach considered her best year to date.

"This year we had three girls go down to injury including two starters," head coach Bob Giordano explained last week. "We had one of our starting forwards and our point guard hurt, but Brittany stepped up when we needed her the most. She is our best player and our impact star. She had led us in scoring for two years and was named a team captain her sophomore year. But never once this season did she question me; she never looked at her stats. She is by far the strongest and smartest hoops player I have had. She led an overachieving team with one bench player to a great season."

Norton, who is originally from West Roxbury, has been playing basketball since she was six years old. At the age of 10, Norton joined her first AAU travel team and began to hone her skills on the hardwood. After a year at

Beechwood Seniors Training For Olympics

Quincy and South Shore seniors know that spring means "training" for the Quincy Senior Olympics. The Olympic competitions in May and senior fitness activities are already underway at Beechwood On The Bay.

Quincy's Senior Olympics are sponsored by the City of Quincy (through the Mayor's office) and Beechwood On The Bay and the 10-day competition are already scheduled with the Mayor's Torchlighting ceremony scheduled for Mon., May 7. Registration begins April 2.

"We encourage interested seniors (55-95) to participate with the approval of their physicians," said Maryann Mahony. "It is important to begin 'readiness' activities now. Walking, stretching, yoga and other activities are recommended (and available at Beechwood). George 'Trigger' Burke is our basketball coach each Friday morning beginning April 6."

On Wed., April 4, long-time fitness advisor and friend, Dr. Wayne Westcott will be guest presenter at a morning breakfast at the Center. Seniors can pre-register for that 9 a.m. breakfast.

Call Maryann Mahony for more information about Beechwood's walking groups, co-ed volleyball games, yoga classes and "Friday Fitness Fun" at (617) 471-5712.

AWARD RECIPIENT - Ashley Faiella of Quincy, a senior at Archbishop Williams High School, with Principal Mary Lou Sadowski. Ashley is a recipient of the 2007 Boston Bruins Ice Hockey Sportsmanship Award.

and off the ice that brings honor to self, team, school and community

The award presentation took place at TD North Garden during a recent Boston Bruins game. Ashley is a senior forward, and Assistant Captain and Catholic Central League All-Star. She has been a four-year starter and leader on the team. She has played hockey since the age of 12, and has also been a Captain of her school's Softball Team

Joseph Francis, Athletic Director at Archbishop Williams High School, said, "Ashley is an outstanding athlete and exemplifies the best in sportsmanship. In addition to her excellent athletic abilities, she maintains honor roll status in her academics.

"She is always one of the first players in line to shake her opponents' hands and congratulate them on a good game. She has always been quick to praise her teammates for their outstanding play, but seldom does she seek fame for herself. We are extremely proud of her accomplishment."

In addition to her hockey and softball excellence, Ashley was the 1998 citywide Karate Champion for sparring. She has achieved academic excellence in U.S. History, World History, English, Spanish, theology and Contemporary Music. She has been on the honor roll every term during her high school years, and is on the principal's list, as well as being a National Honor Society Candidate.

Her plans for next year include college; she is currently looking at several schools, including Suffolk University and the University of Rhode Island.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

by Andrea Wyatt
M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

Vacation Fitness

Spring break is here, and for many of us this means taking a vacation.

Finding the time, equipment and motivation to continue to be active while away from your normal routine can be just as difficult as when you initially began.

A vacation during spring break does not have to mean a break in your fitness routine. The key to maintaining your fitness sanity on vacation is to maintain overall good habits and not bring home any unwanted ones as a souvenir.

The following tips can be used during any break in your normal fitness routine:

- Develop a Plan B. When planning your initial everyday fitness routine, anticipate and prepare for changes affecting that routine. Let's be real: The odds of you maintaining your current fitness routine uninterrupted for more than a few months are pretty low. Having a Plan B that can be used if your situation changes will allow you not to miss a beat.

For example, if you use a fitness facility for cardiovascular workouts such as running, your Plan B might include a predetermined route around your neighborhood that can give you the same workout without the use of the gym. If you're away on vacation, your cardio Plan B might involve a day of walking through an amusement park or city.

- Bring the gym with you. Resistance bands, water-inflated free weights or your favorite fitness video all can be easily carried with you wherever you go. Don't forget that one of the best forms of resistance training uses your body weight.

Body weight exercises such as push-ups, crunches, lunges and squats don't require much space to complete and are great exercises.

- Pack with your fitness program in mind. If you seriously plan to stay active while you are away, don't forget the appropriate clothes and shoes, keeping in mind the climate of the location you will be visiting.

- Use your time wisely. The point of going on vacation is to have FUN, not to worry about how many crunches you did or didn't do that day. Find activities that are not only fun but will keep you physically active. Try new and challenging activities. You never know — the change in activity and routine may introduce you to something you may want to continue when you get home.

- Remain sensible with your nutrition while you are away. Enjoy yourself, but make wise choices.

The bottom line is to use what you know, keep moving, be creative and have fun. As fitness becomes more and more a part of your lifestyle, you will find spring break a great chance to enjoy fitness even more.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Children's Health Update

A Simple Way To Combat Childhood Asthma

(NAPS) — Although instances of asthma have steadily increased in the United States, there are steps parents can take to protect their little ones.

For some children around the country, the problem may be coming home on their backs, legs and mouths of a certain six-legged bug-the cockroach.

It is estimated that more than 5 million children have asthma. Normally for those with asthma, attack triggers can include cold air, exercise or allergens such as pollen and animal dander. But for asthmatic children, cockroaches may be among the biggest triggers in the home.

According to the American Academy of Allergy Asthma and Immunology, cockroaches are not just an unwelcome visitor in the home-a protein they produce is a primary trigger of asthma symptoms, especially for children living in densely populated, urban neighborhoods.

Studies show that up to 98 percent of urban homes have cockroaches, according to the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America. Symptoms of the cockroach allergen can include mildly itchy skin, a scratchy throat or irritated eyes and nose. In addition, roaches can hide anywhere in the home, according to pest control experts at Combat, a brand that markets roach and ant bait and gels.

Children exposed and sensitized to the cockroach allergen have significantly more asthma symptoms, more caretaker-interrupted sleep, and more school days missed than children who are not exposed to cockroaches, according to the Journal of Allergy and Clinical Immunology.

While cockroaches can be found in even the cleanest homes, there are a few good ways to cut down on the chance of a cockroach infestation in your home:

- Keep food and garbage wrapped up and out of the way.
- Don't leave out dirty dishes, food or crumbs.
- Wash and clean kitchen floors and countertops often-at least once a week.
- Make sure to seal any porous entryways inside, such as vents and drains.

- Fix any water leaks and clean up standing water.

Sometimes, preventative measures aren't enough. That's when you may want to consider using roach baits and gels. Brands like Combat offer a number of different products that can be used to keep your home cockroach free and are available at most mass retailers.

Compared to sprays, which are only temporary deterrents, cockroach baits and gels last longer, kill the nest, are cleaner to handle, and the contained pesticide prevents exposure to family and pets.

Helping Americans Live A Healthier Lifestyle

(NAPS) — Inactivity is blamed for everything from child obesity to rising health care costs. To help reverse this trend, a variety of companies and organizations are encouraging people to spend time active and outdoors.

And people may be getting the message. According to a recent study by the Boulder, Colorado-based Outdoor Industry Foundation (OIF)-a nonprofit founded to encourage healthier lifestyles through outdoor recreation-participation in outdoor activities is growing.

"Two million more Americans got active in the outdoors in 2005 than they did in 2004," says the OIF's Michelle Barnes, whose foundation has a searchable database of more than 100 outreach programs working to get America active.

The study found that participation increased across the 22 outdoor activities monitored, from 159 million (Americans age 16 and older) in 2004 to 161.6 million in 2005, and that in 2005, one in four Americans age 16 and older (59.5 million) took a vacation specifically to participate in an outdoor activity. But there is still room for improvement.

While participation increased, total outings decreased by 11 percent, from 8.3 billion to 7.3 billion.

Several companies are taking steps to encourage outdoor outings, be it hiking, biking or camping. One example is Richmond, Calif.-based Mountain Hardwear, which recently launched the Mission Project to promote outdoor activity. By setting up a blog (blog.mountainhardwear.com) and awarding prizes for posting tales and photos of adventures, the company helps motivate people to set goals for and achieve outdoor accomplishment.

"We just want to encourage more people to get outdoors," says Paige Boucher of Mountain Hardwear.

As part of the program, people set a goal involving outdoor recreation, take along and test Mountain Hardwear gear and then tell fellow adventurers about it on the Mission Project blog.

The company will award prizes to the top submissions.

Device Provides Fast Cholesterol Results At Home

(NAPS) — Learning your cholesterol levels could help reduce your risk of life-changing conditions such as a heart attack or stroke. Knowing your levels can prompt you to get the treatment you need.

According to the American Heart Association, almost 107 million American adults have high cholesterol. In addition, 23 percent of Americans do not know their cholesterol level, according to the Centers for Disease Control. Because high cholesterol does not have any symptoms, it is important for all adults, and especially those with known risk factors, to have their physician review and monitor their cholesterol levels.

Fortunately, there are ways to take a more active role and track your cholesterol levels at home between doctor visits. CardioCheck® enables you to measure total cholesterol, HDL ("good") cholesterol or triglycerides, quickly and easily.

Guidelines established by the National Cholesterol Education Program for adults state that total cholesterol levels of 240 mg/dL or higher are considered exceptionally high risk. Borderline-high risk levels range from 200 to 239 mg/dL and anything under 200 mg/dL is considered desirable.

The battery-operated system is easy to use. Simply insert the strip into the meter, prick a finger with the included lancet, place a drop of blood onto the color-coded test strip with the accompanying pipet, and in about two minutes you will have the results.

The analyzer can store up to 30 results for future comparison and tracking. Plus, it can be programmed in multiple languages.

GUM DISEASE AND TOOTH LOSS A LOSING PROPOSITION

Gum disease, not tooth decay, is the leading cause of tooth loss among adults. Tooth loss related to periodontal (gum) disease has much to do with the fact that the mouth is a breeding ground for bacteria, which continuously form a sticky film called "plaque" around the teeth. In gingivitis, the first stage of periodontal disease, the gums become inflamed. Left untreated, gingivitis can result in the gums pulling away from the teeth, thereby creating a pocket that traps more bacteria lying beyond the reach of the toothbrush. Eventually, the infection can erode the bone that holds the teeth in place. With regular exams and treatment, gum disease and its associated problems may be averted.

You may not even be aware that you have gum disease because often there is no pain. If you have concerns or questions about any subject relating to the well-being of your teeth and gums, call us at 617-479-6220. Please don't let unwarranted fears keep you from maintaining your dental health. Your chances of needing expensive treatment in the future because of neglect today are a far greater concern. They key to dental health is routine preventive care. Trust is the cornerstone of a good and safe dental practice. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. It is estimated that three-quarters of adults over age 35 have some form of gum disease.

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, March 10, at approximately 3:00 a.m., Officers James Borden and Jeff Brooks were dispatched to Beach Street to assist Fallon Ambulance Paramedics with a victim who suffered a head injury. The officers, paramedics and firefighters arrived on scene and were directed to the apartment where the female victim was. The officers noted the victim was bleeding profusely from a serious head injury and she appeared to be intoxicated.

There was also another female and male in the room and they appeared to be highly intoxicated. As the paramedics attempted to diagnose the severity of the injuries, the male (suspect) kept talking to the victim, interrupting the paramedics. The suspect was advised numerous times to allow the paramedics to examine the female, but he kept closing in and interrupting.

Officer Brooks advised the suspect that the female lost a large amount of blood and she was having a difficult time focusing on the conversation with the paramedics. The suspect kept repeating, "She just broke up with her boyfriend. I'm all that she has." To show how serious the head injury was, when the paramedics asked her what day it was, she responded "Wednesday," but it was actually Saturday.

As the paramedics asked the victim numerous questions about her medical history and what happened, the suspect continued to interrupt by answering all the questions for her. When the firefighters said they were going to get a board to transport the victim on, the suspect became agitated, adamant that the victim was fine.

The victim then began insisting that she did not want to go to the hospital. Officer Brooks attempted to explain the need to get the victim help because it was obvious to all professionals there that she was not capable of making a conscious decision. Each time the officer attempted this, the suspect began yelling, overriding the officers' voice.

The female in the room then began the same type of disorderly behavior, which increased the confusion and chaos. Officer Brooks sternly warned the male and female to cease because it was upsetting the victim, but the male suspect continued.

The officers then placed the suspect under arrest for disorderly conduct, and he was transported to the station for booking. The male suspect was a 25-year-old man from South Boston. With the suspect out of the way, the paramedics prepared the victim for transport to Quincy Medical Center.

Nice work!

As a side story, as the officers, paramedics and firefighters were leaving the apartment with the victim on a stretcher, the female "friend" yelled that she would be filing a complaint against the officers because they did not read the suspect his rights. What she was referring to was the Miranda Rights, which is commonly heard on television shows when someone is being arrested.

Part of the "Right" is, "You have the right to remain silent." If the suspect had complied with the officers numerous requests to be quiet, the suspect would not have been arrested. There is a misconception that someone under arrest must immediately have his or her rights read to him or her. If the officer is going to question the suspect after placing him/her under arrest, then Miranda Rights need to be given.

In this case, the officers, along with firefighters and paramedics, were the witnesses and did not need the suspect's account of what occurred. As far as filing the complaint, this never occurred.

RECENT SCAM: An unemployed Quincy resident posted his resume online and a few days later, he received a call stating that he met the qualifications of this company but they needed more information; his date of birth, social security number and checking account number. He was told that he was being considered for a position cashing traveler's checks, and as a commission, keeping 10% for himself.

The victim provided the information and was sent the traveler's checks, which he cashed and forwarded the money. A few days later he learned the traveler's checks were bogus and he was out the sum of the check, minus the 10% he kept for himself.

In this case, the victim made many mistakes such as giving out his personal information and not investigating the company hiring him. The most glaring question is why someone would need to have someone else cash in the checks in the first place. This should send a message that it is either a scam or illegal.

MERCHANTS BEWARE: There have been incidents on the South Shore recently with attempts to cash in fraudulent traveler's checks. One incident occurred this week at the Stop N' Shop in Quincy. According to Manager Rick Ramos, the clerk examined the check and immediately became suspicious. The Quincy Police Department responded and arrested the defendant. As a merchant, be sure to compare signatures on the checks, examine the checks themselves for authenticity and ask for identification.

BREAKING AND ENTERING/PAST, 6:04 p.m., 433 Sea St. Dwelling.

BREAKING AND ENTERING/PAST, 6:18 p.m., 11 South Central Ave. Dwelling.

BREAKING AND ENTERING/PAST, 6:37 p.m., 40 Main St. Dwelling. Door forced but no entry.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

If you were to die tomorrow, would your family know what to do? Is your insurance paid? Are premiums paid? Are Bankbook, Social Security, V.A. and other important documents all together and does your family know where they are? Is your will current and available? Do you have a list of names, addresses, phone numbers of your brokers, insurance agencies, accountants and lawyers? Does your family know your wishes concerning the type of service you desire?

These are but a few of the many details you may require. We at the Deware Funeral Home have literature to help you make certain decisions you might wish to make. Please feel free to call us for printed forms on pre-planning and/or pre-financing or drop by for free copies. Our offices are always open to you and there is no question about funeral service which will not be answered simply, honestly and in strict confidence. This involves no cost or obligation, of course.

PALM SUNDAY and HOLY WEEK SERVICES

Community United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will celebrate Palm Sunday April 1 with a palm presentation.

At the beginning of the 10:30 a.m. worship service, Sunday school students and teachers will bring the palms to the altar; the palms will be distributed at the conclusion of the service.

Some of the church's lectors will then present a reading of Christ's Passion. This will be followed by the stripping of the altar.

After the worship service, a spring brunch will be held. Tickets are $10 in advance; $12 at the door.

Quincy Community United Methodist Church is located diagonally across the street from the Wollaston T stop. The building is handicapped accessible.

For more information, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Passover Seder At United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold a Passover Seder Supper Thursday, April 5.

The reading of the Hagadah will begin at 6 p.m. "Because Passover and Holy Week coincide this year, Quincy Community thought holding a Seder would be a way to honor Christianity's Jewish roots."

said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the church.

The meal will be pot luck, so everyone is asked to bring a salad, main course, or dessert to share.

To ensure the table is set properly, reservations are required. Reservations may be made by calling the church office at 617-773-3319. Deadline is Monday, April 2.

The church building is handicapped accessible through its front entrance at the door nearest the flag pole.

Sacred Heart Parish

Sacred Heart Parish, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy, announces the parish's celebration of Holy Week.

Palm Sunday of the Lord's Passion begins the most sacred week of the liturgical year with Masses at 4 p.m. Saturday, March 31 and on Sunday, April 1 at 7:45 a.m., 9 a.m. (with Children's Liturgy of the Word) 10:30 a.m. (adult choir), 12 noon at Star of the Sea Church, and at 5 p.m. Palm branches will be distributed and blessed at all Masses on Palm Sunday.

Tuesday of Holy Week features a complete Jewish Seder Supper in the parish's lower church on April 3 at 7 p.m. Donations are $10 per person and reservations are needed by calling the parish office at 617-328-8666. Bruce Fader, a past president and current leader at Temple Beth David in Canton and friend of Sacred Heart Parish, will lead the service.

"Popcorn, Movies and Discussion," a monthly adult faith formation series, will be held on Wednesday, April 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the convent building. The Holy Week movie presentation is The Passion of Christ.

The evening Mass of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated at 7:30 p.m. on Holy Thursday, April 5 followed by Eucharistic Adoration in Our Lady Chapel until 11 p.m.

The Liturgy of Good Friday will be celebrated at 3 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Good Friday, April 6.

The annual Fr. Cornelius J. Heery Good Friday Memorial Walk to benefit Por Cristo will take place at 9:30 a.m. and will travel 5 miles around the North Quincy/Wollaston area.

The solemn Easter Vigil will begin in the darkness of Holy Saturday night, April 7 at 8:30 p.m. with the blessing of the new fire and the procession of the paschal candle into the church.

During the Triduum ("the Three Days" from sunset on Holy Thursday until sunset on Easter Sunday evening), the parish will celebrate the Liturgy of the Hours, the Church's official daily prayer with morning prayer at 9 a.m., mid-day prayer at noon, and night prayer on Holy Thursday at 10 p.m. and on Good Friday at 9 p.m. Our Lady of Good Chapel, will be open throughout the Three Days for private prayer.

Easter Sunday masses on April 8 will be celebrated at 7:45 a.m., 9 a.m. (with the children's choir), 10:30 a.m. (with adult choir) and at 12 noon at Star of the Sea Church in Squantum. There is no 5 p.m. Mass Easter Sunday.

Fontbonne Academy, she transferred to Woodward and did not expect to play for the basketball team, but a chance encounter in the school gymnasium with Giordano changed all that.

"When I first got to Woodward I was scared and was not going to play basketball, but one day I went and played a pickup game with coach and that was it," Norton said. "I knew right away that I wanted to play and so I went out for the team."

Norton dominated in the post her first two seasons as a forward. Not only was her skill set above average, but also her basketball IQ and mental toughness stood out.

"She is as intense in practice as she is on the court playing a game," Giordano said. "Brit has an unique mental toughness every minute of every game. Nothing phases her on the court. She has never asked to be the leading scorer, she just wants to win and will do whatever it takes to get it done. Her basketball IQ is unmatched and she is probably our best defender and best rebounder."

And this year she was the team's best leader. The 2006-2007 season was going to depend on how she responded to this new challenge, and Norton took it on herself to get the most out of the year and her teammates.

"We showed a lot of heart this year," Norton said. "We ran on what was left, be it in practice or in a game. We were always moving and the girls were intense all season long. It turned out great."

Woodward's final game against Chapel Hill Academy marked Norton's last opportunity to reach the 1,000-point plateau (she needed 15 points). According to Giordano, Norton never once wavered from the team-first concept, but he and her teammates wanted her to finish her high school career with that milestone.

"She got her points all season long within the concept of team first," he said. "Her desire was to win, but we wanted her to get her 1,000."

Norton played her final game to win (they did) and in the process scored the 15 points she needed to become just the third 1,000-point scorer in school history. She finished her high school career with exactly 1,000 points.

Brittany Norton has been accepted into Simmons College in Boston and plans to play basketball at the collegiate level.

Years from now, Norton will lauded for her devotion to her team and school first and herself a distant second.

Not a bad legacy to be remembered by.

Easter flowers
In the United States, white lilies are popular at Easter. But for Britain and Russia, the pussy willow, too, symbolizes Easter, as does the narcissus for France and Italy. In Germany, bouquets of red flowers symbolize the blood of Christ.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Put your restlessness to good use by indulging the Arian love of exploring new places and seeking new challenges. There also could be a new romance waiting to be "discovered."

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A surprise message from someone in your past could lead to a long-awaited reunion with a once-close friend. Also, look for a workplace problem to be resolved in your favor.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your self-confidence is rising, and that should be a significant factor in helping you adjust to a new social situation, as well as adjusting to a series of changes in the workplace.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Turnabout could be lots of fun when someone who previously accepted your tender, loving care without question now suggests that he or she wants to start taking care of you.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Put the lessons you learned from past disappointments to work in planning your future. The way ahead opens to opportunities "purportedly" suited to the adventurous Lion.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good time to renew contacts with family members and/or old friends who somehow slipped off your personal viewing screen in recent years. Travel is also favored.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Most problems surrounding that recent personal situation have been resolved, and that means you should move on to other things that are important to you.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Spend this weekend recharging your physical and spiritual energies. When you return to your workaday world, you'll be ready to take on that new project.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Be careful how you advise a troubled friend. Even your wise counsel could be misunderstood. Better to suggest that he or she seek professional help.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Family problems once again dominate and, once again, everyone seeks your guidance in these matters. Later, you can indulge in some much-needed relaxation.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Some mixed signals create confusion in the workplace. Best advice: Ask for explanations before you attempt to deal with any of these matters on your own.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A patch of roiling water in the workplace could be threatening, but stay the course and you'll soon be clear of it. Then go out and have a great time with loved ones.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your extraordinary leadership qualities mark you as someone people can turn to for guidance in difficult situations.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Brudno Family Donates $20,000 For Scholarships W. Quincy Square Named For Maj. Charles Bifolchi

By TOM HENSHAW

Major Charles L. Bifolchi and Capt. E. Alan Brudno, both Quincy boys who were casualties of the Vietnam War, shared the spotlight Thursday as their old comrades observed Vietnam Veterans Day in their hometown.

The intersection of Willard, Robertson and Quarry Streets in West Quincy was dedicated to the memory of Major Bifolchi, who was listed as missing in action for 38 years until his remains were identified last year.

Capt. Brudno, who was a prisoner of war in North Vietnam for seven and a half years and took his own life after his release, was

Would Curb Non-Resident Vehicles In Neighborhoods

Coughlin Urges Permit Parking In Districts

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Quincy residents and their visitors are being squeezed out of parking spaces by commuters and non-resident employees clogging neighborhood streets, according to Ward 3 Councilor Kevin Coughlin who believes "that establishing permit parking" zones would ease the problem.

At a recent Ordinance Committee meeting, Coughlin urged his colleagues to support "Parking Permit Districts." Such districts would limit parking to residents, their families and visitors with city-issued stickers on their vehicles. On-street parking could be limited in such areas to certain days or hours.

Such zones could eliminate non-resident parking in residential areas by screening out commuters and non-resident employees, according to Coughlin who proposed that only cars with resident or visitor stickers could park in such zones.

"I have a number of neighborhoods where people are anxious to have this implemented as soon as possible," Coughlin said this week of his proposal for permit only parking zones. He expects the Ordinance Committee to consider the proposal again later this month.

Coughlin cited the Montclair and Wollaston sections as examples of neighborhoods where two-hour and four-hour parking signs aren't enough to discourage commuters who simply go to another block.

Originally, two-hour parking and four-hour parking signs were intended to ease the parking congestion in problem areas. While limited parking may discourage non-residents, such zones, also, punish residents and their visitors who have to watch the clock at their own curbs, according to Coughlin.

Coughlin cited several examples where residents or their visitors got tagged in two-hour parking zones designed to spare their own neighborhoods from all-day parking by commuters.

Coughlin's proposal involves a number of steps required to identify a problem area. Some of those steps are outlined here:

Under the plan, residents themselves could petition for a "parking permit district" by gathering certified signatures from 50% of the residents or owners of property in their district. Petitions could also be submitted by the city's Planning

Former NQHS Student Killed In Afghanistan

Army Spc. Christopher M. Wilson, 24, of Bangor, Maine, who spent a year as a student at North Quincy High School, March 29 in a grenade explosion in Afghanistan.

An infantryman assigned to the 10th Mountain Division's Company A, First Battalion, 32nd Regiment, he had been in the Army since September, 2002, and in Afghanistan since March 2006.

A native of North Dakota, he was raised in Chicopee and spent the 1996-97 school year at North Quincy High. He leaves a daughter, Jayden, 4, with lives in Bangor.

Three other soldiers were wounded in what an Army spokesman described as a firefight in Korengal Outpost in eastern Afghanistan.

New Craig Ave. Dwelling For Donnelly Family

New Home Rises In Hours At Site Of June Explosion

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Nine months after an explosion ripped apart their Craig Avenue home, Robert and Angela Donnelly watched as their brand new home rose before them in eight and one half hours.

The project began at 7 a.m. March 22. As the Donnellys and their relatives and friends cheered, giant cranes swung each of four modules into the air, then carefully arranged them, like kids' wooden blocks, on the new foundation and, then, atop each other.

By 3:30 p.m. that day, the major construction was over. The Donnelly's spanking-new five-bedroom Colonial stood with its roof intact, sparkling silver appliances in the kitchen, pine kitchen cabinets, vanities installed in the 2 1/2 baths, and even a touch of blue siding at their new front door.

Before 4 p.m., Robert and Angela did their first walk-through of their new home. Later that week, Robert described the experience as "awesome, just awesome."

"It's amazing," Angela said near tears on that Thursday as her new home rose before her eyes. "Everything's already in it."

A few feet away, Robert, also, watched, describing himself as "Really excited. This is the light at the end of the tunnel. There's an end."

The family expects to move into the new house in six weeks when all the finish work is completed. As for the couple's four children, "They're very very overwhelmed," said Angela.

For the Donnelly's, they are near the end of a harrowing nine months that began on June 28 when a blast, caused by flammable liquid dumped into the city sewer system, destroyed their home.

"It was an horrific event that happened to these people," Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond said, recalling that they were "literally blown out of their home."

At the time, Fire Chief Timothy Pettinelli said, "We can not say for sure what was introduced into the sewer system, where or by whom." Pettinelli said that the substance could not be identified as the vapors were so volatile as to be destroyed by the flames.

Even the original foundation imploded so a new foundation was built for the modular structure.

"Somebody poured a solvent into the sewer drain," Mrs. Donnelly said recalling the explosion. She was at her job as an adjuster for Workmen's Compensation when vapors seeped into her basement and were then ignited by the pilot of their hot water heater. Three members of the family, including her husband, were home.

"He got blown out the back door," said Don Bernier of Rockland, recalling the ordeal endured by his brother-in-law. Bernier was on hand to watch the construction.

Robert suffered burns over his head, back, legs and arms as well as broken sternum, hip and arm and spent more than two months recovering. He is employed in maintenance at Schepens Eye Research Institute in Boston.

Amazingly, Donnelly was the only one injured of the three persons in the house at the time so, for the family, there was a true miracle. "God must have been watching us," he said.

Less than 300 feet away from their new Colonial stands the 2 1/2 bedroom trailer which has been home for the six Donnellys and their two dogs since the explosion.

It's been a tough squeeze for the parents, daughter Marisa, 20, and three teenagers, Joshua, 13, Christopher, 19 and Cassandra, 17, as well as Zeus, a 225 pound Mastiff and Mr. Beefy, a 60 pound English bulldog.

"We wouldn't have missed this," said sister-in-law Jennifer Damon of Weymouth, who joined the Donnellys on construction day. "They've been living in that small trailer. It was tough watching them, especially having a real small Christmas."

Before the trailer was in place, things were even worse.

"I ended up splitting everybody up," said Angela. Her husband was in a hospital while the Red Cross placed her in a motel for two nights and her children stayed with friends as did the dogs.

"It was tight, but at least it was family," Robert Donnelly said of the past year and of living in the cramped trailer. He added, "Our family did grow stronger."

Both Donnellys credit Councillor Raymond with helping them cut through the red tape and confusion during their ordeal. Raymond called for an investigation into the blast in early July in an effort to help the Donnellys and the neighborhood.

"My concern was that the city was not responding aggressively enough," recalled Raymond. Both the Donnellys and nearby residents needed assurance on the safety of the area.

After the probe, Chief Pettinelli determined that the Craig Avenue neighborhood was "in no immediate danger."

Leaving Quincy was never an option for the Donnellys. After the investigation, they learned they could rebuild in the neighborhood where they had lived for six years and which they had grown to love.

"We love Quincy," Angela said last week. "We really love the neighborhood. The schools are great, there's a lot of sports and activities for kids and everybody knows everybody."

With their home insurance coverage, the family decided on a prefabricated home. The sections were built in Pennsylvania, then transported and erected by Savoie Modular Homes, Inc. of Boylston. The company moved them on flatbed trailers on Wednesday night to a rented area of the Fore River Shipyard, then put them in place Thursday morning.

Asked about the landscaping, Angela said that insurance doesn't cover that but they will hydroseed.

So, after the trailer is moved and the mud is gone, the Donnelly's will even have a lawn this summer and that fulfills a wish for their niece, five year old Lexis Damon.

"I wished the house would be here," she said.

Almost in the blink of an eye, her aunt and uncle's two-story house was right there.

THE FIRST OF FOUR modules constructed for a new Colonial home for the Donnelly family on Craig Ave. floats above the foundation built two weeks ago. The Donnelly's original home on the site was destroyed in an explosion last June. The prefabricated house was put in place in 8 1/2 hours.

THEIR FIRST TOUR of the interior of their new home brings smiles to Robert and Angela Donnelly and three of their four children, Marisa, 20, Cassandra, 17 and Joshua, 13. Not shown in the photo is son Christopher, 19. The Donnelly's watched last Thursday as workmen put the house together from four modules in 8 1/2 hours. All of the kitchen and bath appliances as well as the interior stairs to the second floor and the roof were already installed before placement. The new Colonial that features 4 bedrooms, one study and 2 1/2 baths replaces their former house which was destroyed by an explosion last June.

ONE WEEK LATER, the Donnelly's new 5-bedroom house is completely covered with Colonial blue siding and double navy blue shutters on its windows. To the left is the trailer which housed all six Donnellys and their two dogs.

City-Wide Street Sweeping Underway

The Spring street sweeping program is underway and will continue through June 7.

DPW Commissioner Stephen O'Donnell said that to ensure that all streets are properly cleaned, residents should make every effort to remove all motor vehicles from their street on the day it will be swept.

Signs will be posted mid-day the day before the sweeping to inform residents.

The sweeping started Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in Precincts 4 and 5 in West Quincy's Ward 4.

It will continue in Precinct 4, Ward 4 today (Thursday).

The remainder of the schedule, which will be in effect weather permitting:

State Awards $248,900 To Housing Authority

The Quincy Housing Authority (QHA) has been awarded technical assistance and emergency capital improvement bond funding of $248,900 by the State Department of Housing and Community Development.

The money will be used to supplement the QHA's operating reserves and replacing the emergency generator at the Tobin Towers housing complex in Wollaston.

"Improved housing in Quincy is a top priority," said Rep. A. Stephen Tobin, "and these funds will help us achieve that goal."

"This funding is critical to the Quincy Housing Authority," said Sen. Michael Morrissey. "The new emergency generator is an integral part of continued improvements to Tobin Towers."

3 Quincy Figures Charter Asian American Assn. Members

Twenty members, three of them familiar figures in Quincy, have been sworn in as charter members of the newly formed Asian American Association, dedicated to political advocacy for Asians throughout Massachusetts.

Members of the commission include:

Tackey Chan of Quincy, chief legal counsel and legislative director in the office of Sen. Michael Morrissey. A graduate of Boston College High School, Brandeis University and New England School of Law, he is a founder, former board president and current treasurer of Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI).

Kao Li of Weymouth, the founding executive director of Quincy Asian Resources, Inc., and currently in financial services for Harbour Planning Group, LLC. A fish biologist by training, he was born in Taiwan, grew up in Libya and came to the United States as a foreign student.

Paul Shaw of Norwell, vice president of Outpatient Services at South Shore Mental Health in Quincy and a member of the board

The adjustable rate mortgage that got you into your house might not be the right loan for you now

A fixed rate mortgage is a locked-in sure thing. No more getting panicky about rising interest rates or dealing with annual adjustments that make your original "great rate" not so great after all. With a fixed rate, you get stability and an absolute guarantee of what your principal & interest payment will be next month, next year and until the day you pay it off. Taxes, water & sewer and the cost of living generally only keep going up. But your monthly principal & interest payment can stay the same for the next 30 years. And with fixed rates still near historic lows, you may even be able to lower your payment or take out some cash. People who switch to a fixed rate are glad they did! Is switching right for you? Moments in time

• On April 7, 1891, American showman P.T. Barnum dies in Bridgeport, Conn. Though he was gravely ill, the 81-year-old showman's sense of humor hadn't deserted him. He requested that a New York paper run his obituary before he died so he could enjoy reading it, and the paper obliged.

• On April 6, 1917, the United States formally enters the First World War. By the time the war ended on Nov. 11, 1918, more than 2 million American soldiers had served on the battlefields of Western Europe, and some 50,000 of them had lost their lives.

• On April 4, 1933, the dirigible Akron crashes in New Jersey, killing 73 people in one of the first air disasters in history. The Akron was the largest airship built in the United States when it took its first flight in August 1931.

• On April 5, 1949, "Fire-side Theatre," one of TV's first dramatic series to be filmed rather than broadcast live, debuts. The show ran until 1958. For the first year, each film was only 15 minutes long, but later the time slot expanded to 30 minutes.

• On April 3, 1957, the American Civil Liberties Union announces it will defend Allen Ginsberg's book "Howl" against obscenity charges. The poem's racy language, frank subject matter and lack of form offended some conservative readers.

• On April 8, 1974, Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves hits his 715th career home run, surpassing Babe Ruth's legendary record. Aaron was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame in 1982.

• On April 2, 1987, the U.S. government allows individual states to increase the speed limit on rural roads from 55 mph to 65 mph. Since 1973, when President Nixon set a federal maximum speed limit of 55 mph, no cars were allowed to exceed this speed.

Gore's Not Coming

A Gore won't be coming to town. Apparently his crusade against global warming is getting to be a full-time job.

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly last month sent a letter to the former vice president inviting him to meet with his Environmental and Public Health Committee at City Hall to speak on the issue.

"Whenever you are available, the meeting will be held at your convenience," Kelly told him.

But, Gore can't make it because of the "demands on his time."

A staff member, Stacy Maciusk, responding for Gore in a "Dear Leo" letter writes:

"As you may know, Mr. Gore recently released a documentary film and book and he is traveling extensively in promotion of both. He is writing another book called 'The Assault On Reason' which will be published in May.

"Mr. Gore is also engaged in a campaign to educate the American people about the climate facing our nation and indeed, the world.

"He is in the process of training several thousand messengers all over the world to help him in this mission and learn to give his slideshow on climate change in their own voices. As a result of the related demands on his time, Mr. Gore will be unable to participate in your event."

She thanked Kelly "for thinking" of him.

Kelly is disappointed Gore can't make it but says he understands.

"I think he is doing a great service warning about global warming," Kelly says.

Kelly's City Council Environmental Health Committee will meet April 26 in the second floor conference room at City Hall with Mike and Cindy Cotter of the Quincy Network on the issue of global warming.

And he hasn't given up about getting Gore here. He'll invite him again later.

SOME MOVEMENT ON the political front:

Nick Puleo, president of the Ward 5 Community Association, who has been thinking of running for the school committee, has made his decision. He's running. And will make an official announcement shortly.

Puleo is senior budget analyst for the powerful state Senate Ways and Means Committee.

This will be his debut as a candidate but he's no stranger to the political scene. He was Councillor Joe Finn's campaign manager two years ago.

Incumbents Vice Chairwoman Elaine Dwyer, Linda Stice and Dave McCarthy are expected to seek reelection.

AND, Jennifer Logue is "considering" running for one of the three council at-large seats.

She's the daughter of former Mayor Frank and Sandra McCauley, but made a name for herself as the first and efficient executive director of Discover Quincy.

She served a year and a half in that post before returning to WGBH as senior publicist in January of last year.

She is also a former member of the Tourism Council and the Board of Voter Registrars.

The council has been all-male again since Alicia Gardner stepped down two years ago after serving one term in the Ward 6 seat.

Only four women have been elected to the council in Quincy's 118 years as a city.

The other three: Edna Austin (1943), Joanne Condon (1977) and Patricia Toland (1981).

At-large incumbents Joe Finn, John Keenan and Mike McFarland are up for re-election.

TOM KOCH has his mayoral campaign kick-off coming up Thursday, April 12, 7 to 10 p.m. at the Granite Links Golf Club, 100 Quarry Hills Drive. Donation, a grassroots $20.

DID YOU HAPPEN to catch Charles Gibson's recent visit to Congressman Bill Delahunt's Washington, D.C. apartment as an ABC "World Wide News" segment?

Delahunt and three colleagues are roughing it in a dinky apartment that looks like one you would find four college freshmen in.

Gibson found the apartment a bit unbelievable for "four of the most powerful men in Washington."

That remark shows how much Delahunt has grown in stature and influence since going to Congress.

But that apartment sure is cramped quarters. No wonder Delahunt looks forward to coming home to Quincy whenever he can.

Blood Pressure Clinics Free For Seniors

Weekly blood pressure screenings for elders will be held every Monday from 10 to 11 a.m. at the Council on Aging office, 83 Saratoga St., North Quincy.

Gail Crawford, a registration nurse, will donate her time and talents to assisting senior citizens in having their blood pressure taken weekly.

Appointments can be made but walk-ins also are accepted. For more information, call 617-376-1506.

QPAC Meeting April 10 At Broad Meadows Middle School

Outreach Counselor Elizabeth Fitzgerald will be the guest speaker at the QPAC to Special Education meeting held at the Broad Meadows Middle School, 50 Calvin Rd., on Tuesday, April 10, from 7-9 p.m.

Fitzgerald will discuss transitions from high school to college for special education students. This seminar is targeted towards high school special education students receiving Special Education services via a 504-plan or an IEP.

Some of the issues to be discussed include: What happens now? Where do I go from here? What to think about when planning post-secondary education; and suggestions for local colleges with support services.

Those planning to attend the event should RSVP by April 6 to qpacsped@comcast.net or by contacting Andrea White at (617) 479-8776. An RSVP is needed to make sure enough material is available for everyone.

Nominations for the 2007-2008 QPAC to Special Education Executive Board will be accepted at this time. Anyone interested in running for office should attend this meeting. Elections will be held at the May 8 meeting.

For more information about QPAC to Special Education contact Toni-Marie Mahoney, president, at (617) 773-4558 or at tmahoney77@comcast.net.

READERS FORUM

Fr. William Mullin: He Will Be Missed

I would like to share my thoughts on the recent passing of Fr. William Mullin.

He was a gentleman, though strong and firm in his devotion to peace, civil rights and social justice matters. A founding member of Pax Christi, Fr. Mullin fervently opposed violence of any kind.

While at several parishes in Dorchester and Roxbury during the busing crisis, Fr. Mullin led discussions to her parishioners' concerns while speaking on the justice issues at stake.

Among his many activities and advocacies, he was involved in the epic battle to prevent I-95 from extending through and eviscerating Fowl Meadow and several Boston neighborhoods. And he did much, much more to inspire many of us who were fortunate to know him.

To me, Fr. Mullin was a supreme example of a determined clergyman, who strove successfully to lead a Christian life in our difficult world and to share with us the ways to follow in his path.

I will miss him very much.

Breaking the Law

I am a World War II veteran and 88 years old. It is my duty to answer to Mr. Michael Jovanovic's article in The Quincy Sun about illegal immigrants.

Mr. Jovanovic does not know the meaning of illegal.

In the Webster's New World Dictionary, the word "illegal" means against the law, unlawful, illicit, not authorized or sanctioned by rules.

What happens to an American citizen when he/she steals, kills, speeds on our roads, cheats, rapes or uses drugs? We have to pay a price of jail, fines or prison because what we did was illegal.

Why are illegal immigrants being treated differ-ently? They get free health care, food stamps and welfare benefits. Still people speak out for them. Why?

I fought in World War II to protect this country's freedom AND my country's laws. I did not fight so people could enter this country and stay illegally.

My parents came to this country from Italy. They did this legally. I am proud of them. I am not proud of Mr. Jovanovic!

Quinn Predicts No Increase In The Tax Rate

By FRANK MCCAULEY

The City Council Finance Committee has been wrestling with the city budget for the past 90 days. Finance Committee Chairman John Quinn predicted additional cuts of about $1.5 million and no increase in the tax rate.

1973
34 Years Ago

The budget covers 18 months instead of the usual 12 because all

Massachusetts cities and towns are converting from a calendar year to a fiscal year, starting July 1st to June 30th.

The current tax rate is $152.40 per thousand.

PETITION DRIVE UNDERWAY AGAINST SOUTH QUINCY M.B.T.A. STATION

A petition drive with a goal of 20,000 names is underway in opposition to the proposed South Quincy M.B.T.A. station and parking facility.

The petitions being circulated by the South Quincy Civic Association will be presented at a public hearing on the proposed station, to be held April 26 at Sterling Junior High School.

The station would have a 1750 car parking garage and a new expressway ramp system connecting the station with routes 3 and 128. Cost of the project is set at 15.8 million.

Christmas Parade Theme Contest Now Underway

The 56th Christmas Parade is still eight months away, but the popular "Theme Contest" that plays a significant role in its planning, preparation is now underway.

George White, Festival Committee Chairman, said that the contest is the first and very important step in the planning and preparation of the very significant event.

"The themes submitted for committee consideration offer a wide range of ideas that challenges the imagination of the float builder as they determine their float presentation approach," White said. "This is the 49th year that the general public has had the opportunity to submit an appropriate theme."

All entries must be received by April 27th. This contest is simple to enter. Just mail your entry to Ms. Carol Flynn, 79 Freeman Street, North Quincy, MA 02171.

The theme winner receives a gift of appreciation from the Christmas Festival Committee; and is invited to ride in an open convertible along the approximate three-mile parade route.

The Christmas Parade traditionally takes place the Sunday following Thanksgiving. This year's parade is Nov. 25, beginning at 12:30 p.m. sharp. Rain date is the following Sunday Dec. 2nd.

An estimated 200,000 people attended last year's parade.

Each and every year it is always a difficult Christmas Festival Committee decision to select a winner. Keep in mind the deadline for entries is Friday, April 27th.

The winner will be chosen the first week in May.

Drummer Steve Gadd Skills Clinic At Quincy High April 10

Legendary Drummer Steve Gadd will demonstrate his skills and offer tips at a Drum Clinic Tuesday, April 10 at Quincy High School.

Observers expect hundreds of Gadd's admirers, young and old, to attend as Gadd is considered one of the most in-demand drummers in the world. Gadd will also meet and greet his fans that night.

"Gadd is a legend and most adults who know music know him," says Peter Volpe, owner of DiCenso's Drum Shop at 51 Franklin St., South Quincy and South Shore Music Co. of Weymouth.

The Avedis Zildjian Co.,

Yamaha Drums, Vic Firth Drumsticks and Remo Drumheads are sponsoring the program. Representatives of the world famous Zildjian Cymbal Co. will be on hand with some cymbals available at special pricing, as well as signed cymbals and give-aways.

Volpe said that Gadd provided background drums on tours and on thousands of recordings for such stars as Paul Simon, James Taylor, Chuck Mangione, Eric Clapton, Chick Corea and Steely Dan.

According to Volpe, Gadd set the mark for other artists through his versatility, his broad spectrum of studio recordings and his world tours. Gadd provided the beat for songs like Paul Simon's "50 Ways to Leave Your Lover" and "Late in the Evening."

During the clinic, Gadd will demonstrate some of his techniques and answer questions from the audience. Doors open at 7 p.m. for the 7:30 p.m. clinic.

Tickets are available in advance of the clinic for $18 by calling 617-479-1280 or online at www.dicensos.com. Tickets sold at the door will be $25 each. More information about Steve Gadd is available online at www.drstevegadd.com.

Chair Yoga, Gentle Yoga Classes At Beechwood Center

Two yoga classes for seniors, "Chair Yoga" and "Gentle Yoga," are now available for senior citizens each week at Beechwood Community Life Center, 440

East Squantum St. with instructor Ellen Murphy.

Murphy, a Certified Yoga and Fitness Instructor, teaches Chair Yoga every Wednesday starting at 9 a.m. and Gentle Yoga each Thursday evening starting at 6:30 p.m.

According to Murphy, Chair Yoga offers an alternative to traditional hatha yoga while providing the same benefits through breathing, muscle and joint exercises. In this class, the chair is the yoga mat. Chair Yoga is designed for seniors and others who may have limited movement.

The Gentle Yoga class is appropriate for all levels of fitness, according to Murphy who says, "Just begin where you are." Murphy teaches the sitting, standing and other basic yoga postures designed to work each muscle and joint in the body. Each class includes the closing period of rest and relaxation.

Interested persons may contact the Center at 617-471-5712 for more information or for registration details. Each six week class costs $25.

Open House April 29 At Woodward School

The Woodward School for Girls, one of the top private girls' schools in the area, will hold a Spring Open House Sunday, April 29, from 12 noon to 2 p.m. at the school, 1102 Hancock St.

"Girls thrive at Woodward," said Eileen Shaw, the school's board chairwoman, herself a graduate of Woodward.

"Ninety nine per cent of our students go on to college. Our students are routinely accepted into colleges such as Boston College, Emerson, Holy Cross, Wellesley, BU and Simmons.

"The challenging college preparatory curriculum provides students with the skills to succeed when they graduate from Woodward."

The Woodward School for Girls was founded in 1894 by a bequest from Dr. Ebenezer Woodward, the city's leading physician until his death in 1869, to balance Adams Academy for boys.

Its graduates include the first woman accepted at Harvard Law School, the first female Georgetown Law School graduate, an Air Force jet pilot and countless professional women.

Research by the American Legislative Exchange Council indicate that small school size is linked to higher SAT scores and schools with less than 300 students show the best performances.

At Woodward, each member of the diverse student body receives personal attention and is encouraged to challenge herself and strive to meet and exceed her own personal best.

For more information, call 617-773-5610.

Elizabeth McEvoy Participates In Spring Break Alternative

Quincy's Anne McEvoy spent her spring break from college studies in South Dakota this year as a participant in the Spring Break Alternative (SBA) of St. Anselm College, Manchester, NH.

McEvoy, a junior at St. Anselm's College, offered community service through her SBA week in North Dakota. The SBA, a student-led program offered through Campus Ministry stresses Christian service and volunteer work.

The program offers students the chance to build and renovate homes, work in soup kitchens and interact with members of the local community.

McEvoy is the daughter of Anne McEvoy of Quincy.

This year, 24 student leaders and one staff member guided 143 students in community service projects through the St. Anselm College community.

Sally's Easy Easter Eggs

As a volunteer at the hospital, our conversation usually turns to food and recipes. Here's one from my friend Sally that I plan to include in my Easter Brunch.

The good thing about this easy recipe is that I plan to prepare it the night before and then pop in the oven on Easter. And it is a good alternative to cooking scrambled eggs.

- Easy Easter Eggs
 4-5 strips bacon (cooked)
 6 eggs (beaten)
 7 slices White Bread trimmed and crumbled
 3 cups milk
 2-4 ounce shredded cheddar cheese
 1 tablespoon mustard

Salt & pepper to taste
 Blend eggs and milk together. Add all the rest of the ingredients except the bacon.

Place in a slightly greased 9 x 13 pan. Refrigerate overnight.

Sprinkle top with bacon (cutup).

Bake at 350 degrees for 50-55 minutes.

Happy Easter!

Fred Myerson Toastmasters Club Speech Winner

Frederic S. Myerson of Quincy recently won the Club Speech Contest held at Quincy Toastmaster Club. The title of his speech was "Semper Fidelis, Always Faithful." Myerson was in the Marine Corps during the Vietnam era. His speech was a reflection of what the Marine Corps meant to him and how it had shaped his future. Runner-up was Stacey Shipman of Weymouth.

Myerson will compete in the Area Level scheduled

April 8 at 7 p.m. at Fore River Club, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy Point.

For more information, contact Stacey Shipman at 781-331-8867 or Mike Marinucci 781-974-8754.

Friendly Visitors Sought At COA

The Quincy Council on Aging is seeking volunteers to call on the elderly who live alone and would welcome a friendly visitor.

The COA is also seeking seniors who live alone and would like a friendly visit themselves.

Call the COA at 617-376-1508 and ask to speak with Lena Trough, the friendly visitor coordinator.

The Council is mandated by law to do background checks on all volunteers.

Easter Egg Hunt Aboard USS Salem Saturday

The USS Salem's annual Easter Egg Hunt will take place on Sat., April 7 from 12 p.m. to 3 p.m. aboard the 716-foot U.S. Navy ship moored at the former Fore River Shipyard in Quincy.

Each year the museum hosts hundreds of children for their annual egg hunt.

"Our volunteers love this event," said Michael Condon, executive director of the USS Salem. "In years past we have hidden as many as 3,000 Easter eggs, this year our goal is 4,000 eggs."

The event is one of several major fundraisers for the museum, which receives no city, state or federal funds for its support.

"We try and do unusual and fun events like the Easter Egg Hunt and Haunted Ship to attract people to the ship who may not ordinarily think of visiting the Naval Museum," stated Condon. "The kids get so excited, you can feel their enthusiasm," added volunteer coordinator Frank Campbell.

In addition to the egg hunt, there are lots of activities for the kids to enjoy, including egg and cup cake decorating, face painting and a treasure hunt.

"We organize the event so every child gets a chance to hunt for Easter Eggs in addition to a having a fun afternoon aboard the ship," stated Campbell.

The USS Salem is located at 739 Washington St., Quincy, adjacent to the Fore River Bridge rotary. Activities begin at 12 p.m. and run to 3 p.m. Admission is $5 per person.

For more information call (617) 479-7900 or check their website at www.USS-Salem.org.

Barnes & Noble Purchase Will Aid Summer Reading Program

Buy a book at a Barnes & Noble bookstore April 20 or 21 and you'll be helping out the summer reading program at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy.

Barnes & Noble will donate 15 percent of every sale from every customer who presents a bookfair voucher at any of their stores in Massachusetts, including Braintree.

Funds raised by the "Catch the Beat for Your Library at Barnes & Noble" program will be used to purchase materials and services for the "Catch a Beat @ Your Library" summer reading program.

Bookfair voucher may be used to purchase books, CDs, DVDs, toys and even snacks or coffee in the cafe — but not gift cards.

Vouchers may be obtained at any Quincy library, or downloaded from <http://www.cmrls.org/bn/voucher.pdf> for at any Barnes & Noble cash register on April 20-21.

The special fundraising program is sponsored by the Massachusetts Regional Library Systems and the Thomas Crane Public Library as well as Barnes & Noble.

Customers can also help replenish the Library's collection of paperback series books for elementary school age children by purchasing and donating an item from the Library's "wish list."

The wish list may be seen at the Barnes and Noble bookstore in Braintree.

For more information, call 617-376-1301.

Quincy Artists Exhibit Continues Through April

Members of the Quincy Art Association will exhibit their work from April 1 to 29 in the Coletti Reading Room on the first floor of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

The works on display will include oils, acrylics, water colors and mixed media painting as well as photography and sculpture.

A public reception will be held Sunday, April 15, from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Richardson Building at the library.

For more information, call 617-376-1301 or visit thomascranepubliclibrary.org.

Senior Bridge Club To Meet

Marine Pfc. William Caddy Gave His Life Saving Comrades On Iwo Jima Medal Of Honor Winner Remembered For His Heroism In WWII

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

Once again, for the 62nd time, his old home town paused Sunday to remember a 19-year-old neighborhood kid, a Marine who willingly gave his life for his country and his comrades in the bloodiest battle of World War II in the Pacific.

Memorial services were held for Pfc William R. Caddy, who was killed in action on Iwo Jima March 3, 1945, in Caddy Memorial Park on Quincy Shore Drive, sponsored by the Caddy Detachment of the Marine Corps League.

Caddy, who grew up in Quincy Point, won the Congressional Medal of Honor for his actions that that day.

Only 353 of the medals, the nation's highest award for heroism, were given in five years of World War II, 27 of them in one month on Iwo Jima.

Marc Connelly, junior vice commandant of the Caddy Detachment, highlighted the memorial service with a moving tribute to Caddy, who was described as a youth with a strong dedication to his comrades, a trait that was to cost him his life.

Caddy was a rifleman with Company I, Third Battalion, 26th Marines, Fifth Marine Division when the defining moment of his young life came — as his citation, signed by President Harry S. Truman, described

it:

"Pfc Caddy boldly defied shattering Japanese machine gun and small arms fire to move forward with his platoon leader and another Marine during a determined advance of his company through an isolated sector and gaining the comparative safety of a shell hole, took temporary cover with his comrades.

"Immediately pinned down by deadly sniper fire from a well-concealed position, he made several unsuccessful attempts to again move forward and then, joined by his platoon leader, engaged the enemy in a fierce exchange of hand grenades until a Japanese grenade fell in the shell hole.

"Fearlessly disregarding all personal danger, Pfc Caddy instantly threw himself on the deadly missile, absorbing the exploding charge in his own body and protecting the others from serious injury.

"Stouthearted and indomitable, he unhesitatingly yielded his own life that his fellow Marines might carry on the relentless battle against a fanatic enemy."

Caddy's sister, Mrs. Bea Bevans, who will turn 90 years of age in July, her daughter, Sheri Holleran, and son, Bill Caddy Bevans of Deering, N.H., laid a wreath on her brother's memorial stone in the park.

Each year, the Caddy Detachment sends a second wreath to Caddy's grave in the National Memorial Cemetery on the Hawaiian Island of Oahu, popularly known as the Punch Bowl, where more than 25,000 dead of World War II are buried.

"The park where Pfc Caddy is buried is gorgeous," said Wayne Gauthier, a member of the Caddy Detachment for 40 years. "There is a (extinct) volcano and in the middle there is a beautiful park where the soldiers are buried.

"There are eight or nine Medal of Honor winners there and Caddy is one of the pictures on the wall."

Three other Quincy Marines who died on Iwo Jima — Pvt. Malcolm McPherson, John W. Jackson and John R. Koski — also were remembered at the Caddy Memorial.

More than 100 people attended the ceremony, including state and local officials, clergy and representative of veterans organizations, including honor guards from the Marine Corps League, the George Bryan VFW Post, Houghs Neck Legion and the North Quincy High School Junior ROTC.

Community Development Week Highlights Impact On Quincy

Next week has been designated National Community Development Week, celebrating a program that has provided more than $64 million to Quincy for housing and human services since 1975.

A number of events have been planned during the week of April 9-13 highlighting the positive impacts Community Development Block Grants (CDBG) and similar federal programs have had in Quincy.

This year, the theme of the celebration is "Building Stronger Communities: Telling the Story, Promoting the Success."

"The CDBG program has strengthened our city by addressing neighborhood and human service needs," said Mayor William Phelan.

"This program has had a significant impact on our community through the implementation of affordable housing, economic development, public facilities and public works improvements, and has assisted us in combating homelessness.

"The program has contributed to the overall improvement of the physical, economic and social conditions in our city."

A highlight of the week will be the ribbon-cutting on an 11 single-room occupancy residence for homeless individuals in Quincy Point, a collaboration of the city's HOME program, the Neighborhood Housing Service of the South Shore and Rockland Trust.

The celebration schedule includes:

Monday, April 9, from 10 to 11 a.m. - First anniversary tour and coffee, Germantown Neighborhood Center Food Pantry, 15 Bicknell St.

Tuesday, April 10, from 3 to 4:30 p.m. - New program: Pokemon Club, Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy. Wednesday, April 11, 9:30 a.m. - Quincy Fair Housing Plan: Public Meeting, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

Wednesday, April 11, 11 a.m. - Affordable Housing Project: Ribbon Cutting - 356 Washington St., Quincy Point.

Wednesday, April 11, 1:30 p.m. - Houghs Neck Food & Youth Program: Open House, Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St.

Thursday, April 12, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. - English as a Second Language class, Atlantic Neighborhood Center (Good Shepherd Lutheran Church), 15 Harvard St., North Quincy.

Friday, April 13, from 10 to 11 a.m. - Friday Fitness Fun, Beechwood Community Life Center, 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy.

Friday, April 13, from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. - Open House, Senior Program, Squantum Community Center, 136 Standish Rd.

'Cleaner, Greener Quincy' Cleanup Set For May 5

The 18th annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy Cleanup will be held from 9 a.m. to 12 noon Saturday, May 5 at beaches, marshes, neighborhood parks, playgrounds, schoolyards and open space areas citywide.

The annual cleanup draws close to 1,500 volunteers each year. Last year, more than 25 public areas were designated as cleanup sites, many at the suggestion of residents who worked together in targeting areas in their neighborhoods to improve the aesthetic conditions of their surroundings.

"This event is a testament to what we can accomplish by working together," said Mayor William Phelan. "The long term rewards of this one-day event not only translate into a more aesthetically pleasing environment, but offers a chance to strengthen bonds in our neighborhoods and instill the importance of stewardship of our parks, beaches, and open spaces in our youngsters."

Following the cleanup, Phelan will host an appreciation barbecue for all volunteers at the Richard J. Koch Park & Recreation Complex. The barbecue will be from 12:20 p.m. to 2 p.m.

Phelan urges those who wish to participate in Cleaner, Greener Quincy to organize a team of volunteers and designate a cleanup site. The Park Department will support the cleanup effort by providing the necessary tools including rakes, brooms, gloves and other equipment.

All volunteers will also receive a Cleaner, Greener Quincy T-Shirt.

Those that wish to volunteer or have questions about the program may call the Park Department at (617) 376-1254 or email kkeohane@ci.quincy.ma.us.

Wollaston Congregational UCC Named A 'Turnaround' Church

Membership is growing and programs are expanding at Wollaston Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, on Winthrop Avenue which was recently honored as a "Turnaround" Church by national and state clergy.

"We're a church that's growing," said Rev. Mary Louise Gifford recently as she explained her church's recognition as a "Turnaround" church due to its increased membership and new programs, including a children's choir which will debut on Easter Sunday.

In the old days, when a church's numbers diminished through age or attrition, little was done to stem the tide, according to Rev. Gifford. But that's changed as efforts are now made to revitalize or 'turn around' a church in flux.

"The old thinking was a wait and see attitude. 'If that church closes, there'll be a new start somewhere else,'" explained Rev. Gifford. "The approach is different now. When a church is small in numbers, the question is, 'How can you bring it back to life?'"

The 130-year-old congregation now has 80 active members and a mix of congregants ranging from infant to 80-year-olds, according to Rev. Gifford who said that she has seen a major increase in members "in their 20's and 30's."

There are "lots of weddings and a half dozen baptisms" already pencilled in for spring and summer, according to Rev. Gifford who attributes those events to the influx of younger members who are actively seeking a spiritual foundation and meaning for their lives.

Rev. Gifford, also, cited the "fabulous" new children's nursery program on Sundays and a Christian education program for older children as well as the new choruses. Two new appointees, Ann Aaberg, Minister of Christian Education and Molly Pierce, new Minister of Music, direct the programs.

The Wollaston church is not only experiencing increased enrollment but, also, a facelift due to a capital campaign which members kicked off last spring and are working on now. So far, the congregation has raised $125,000, but, much more is needed.

To date, there have been some serious repairs, including the de-leading of windows, as well renovations creating a bright and airy atmosphere in four key rooms.

In recognition of the Turnaround success of the Wollaston Church, Rev. Federico Ranches, national Minister of Evangelism for Church Development and Renewal, UCC, recently visited Wollaston as did Rev. Paul Nickerson, Massachusetts UCC Conference Minister for Evangelism, Mission and Justice. Both officiated at Sunday services with Rev. Gifford.

All three pastors met with the Wollaston church Turnaround Teams after the service. The Prayer Team, Dream Team, Leadership Team and Hospitality Teams are made up of members and friends of the church.

The special honors to the church this year coincide with Rev. Gifford's coming anniversary on May 1 which marks her fifth year as an ordained minister.

Prior to her ordination, Rev. Gifford worked as a therapist and, also, as a community organizer for Impact Quincy. She and her husband have three grown children.

Tax Tips From The Experts.

How Do You Stack Up Against The National Averages

Every year the U.S. Treasury releases statistical information relating to income tax returns filed. Here is a summary of some of the statistical information for 2005.

Adjusted gross income

Adjusted gross income (AGI) rose by 8.9 percent from 2004 to $7.4 trillion for 2005. The largest component of AGI, salaries and wages, went up 5.2 percent to $5.236.5 billion for 2005.

Deductions

Itemized deductions were claimed on 35.4 percent of all returns filed for 2005 and represented 64.9 percent of the total deductions amount. The average total for itemized deductions was $22,693, a 7.9 increase. The 2004 average was $21,038. Taxpayers earning the more than $50,000 took the most itemized deductions. Most taxpayers may either use a standard deduction or itemize their personal deductions. The number of returns claiming the standard deductions went up 0.9 percent. This percentage accounts for 63.3 percent of all returns filed and 35.1 percent of the total deductions amount. The average standard deduction rose 2.6 percent from $6,090 for 2004 to $6,864 for 2005.

National averages

Here's a look at the national averages for some of the common deductions. Keep in mind these are averages not allowable limits. You must always be able to support your deductions.

2005 Average Total Itemized Deduction
AGI	Total Itemized	Medical	Taxes Paid	State/Local Taxes	Interest Paid	Charitable
Under $15,000	13,661	7,529	2,532	646	7,393	1,403
$15,000-$30,000	13,999	6,515	2,783	983	7,293	1,916

of directors of Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. A graduate of Tufts University and Boston College Graduate School of Social Work, he is a member of the Pacific/Asian American Mental Health Research Foundation.

State Treasurer Tim Cahill and Deputy Treasurer Grace Lee, one of the highest ranking Asian Americans in state government, were moving spirits behind the legislation that created the association in 2006.

"I'm proud to have helped establish this commission," said Cahill. "The Asian population in Massachusetts is growing rapidly and making great contributions to our state, as I've seen in my hometown of Quincy."

"This commission affords Asian Americans strong representation in state government."

A previous Asian American Commission, set up by executive order in the 1990s with appointments only by the governor, has been largely defunct. Appointments to the new commission are made by the governor, secretary of state, treasurer, attorney general, auditor, Senate president and speaker of the House.

"The commission will provide a united voice through which the social, educational and economic interests of Asian Americans will be strengthened and will make a positive and lasting impact on the lives of Asian Americans throughout the Commonwealth," said Grace Lee.

Legislation creating the commission was co-sponsored by 25 legislators, including Quincy's Senator Morrissey.

Ward 2 Civic Association Invites Residents' Participation

The Ward 2 Civic Association encourages all residents of that ward to participate in their monthly meetings.

The next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday April 10 from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd., in Quincy Point.

The association meets the second Tuesday of each month at the same time.

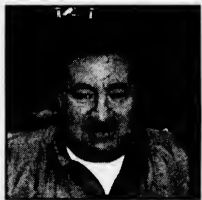

The association hosts local speakers who typically cover issues relating to the community. Refreshments and fellowship are served after the meeting. So join us!

Diane Furness Earns GRI Designation

Diane Furness, manager of the Jack Conway & Co. Realtors Quincy office, recently earned the designation of GRI, after completing the required courses from the Graduate Realtor Institute.

Furness received her designation from Massachusetts Association of Realtors President Douglas Azarian.

The GRI designation signifies 90 hours of advanced in-class real estate education. Realtors who have passed the GRI examinations are recognized as having attained one of the highest professional levels in residential real estate.

"It was a long process, but I gained valuable information about appraisals, relocation, financing, environmental issues, and building and zoning codes," said Furness. "I'll be sharing all of this new training with all of the agents in my office so they can better serve their customers."

The Realtor Institute is a

program of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors, and meets the rigid standards set for such programs by the National Association of Realtors. Its purpose is to enable Realtors to provide better service to their clients and customers through education and training in real estate.

With 45 offices from Boston to Cape Cod, Jack Conway & Co. Realtors is the largest independent real estate company in Massachusetts.

(NAPS) When it comes to decorating, choosing paint color can really be a challenge. While you may feel that there are too many choices, you're bound to find the right one.

Ed Waller, co-founder of CertaPro Painters, offers expert tips that will really help find your color. After all, the paint colors you choose will set the tone for each room you add color to.

1. Find the existing dominant color that you like, or wish to keep, in the room or on the house. For an interior, it could be the color of your sofa, your flooring or your window coverings.

2. Determine what kind of feeling you wish to have in the room or around the home. Warm colors, such as red, orange, yellow or beige, can create an invigorating mood or add cozy intimacy to large spaces. Blues, greens, violets or grays, the cool colors, give a serene feeling and can add spaciousness to small places.

Consider how complex a color scheme you wish to undertake. There are three main colors schemes to choose from:

1. Monochromatic schemes are based on one hue, which varies in value (lightness and darkness), and saturation (the amount of color). An example of this is a pale blue with a pure blue and dark blue.

2. Analogous schemes combine no more than three similar colors. An example of this is red, yellow-red (orange) and yellow.

3. Complementary schemes are based on opposing colors. This scheme offers more contrast and can introduce both warm and cool colors into the area. An example would be red and green.

Cleaning HVAC System Improves Air Quality, Saves Money

(NAPS) - Cleaning your home's heating/cooling system can do a lot more than improve the quality of the circulating air. It can also make a huge difference in your monthly utility bills.

That's because dust and debris reduce the ability of HVAC system to provide heating and cooling. Consider that dirty systems—especially dirty coils—use up to 30 percent more energy to heat and cool the home.

Meanwhile, dirty filters block airflow through the system, increasing your energy bill and shortening the equipment's life. Contaminants that don't get caught by either the filter or the coils are then blown through the rest of the system. These contaminants build up in the ductwork over time, so the system must work harder and longer to achieve the desired comfort level, using more energy and costing more.

Changing the filter regularly can help, but eventually the system must be cleaned to run at optimum efficiency. To find a certified air duct cleaner near you, visit the National Air Duct Cleaners Association at www.nadca.com.

Controlling Mold And Mildew Outside Your Home

(NAPS) - Mold and mildew can make the exterior of your home look dirty and unattractive and rob it of its curb appeal. If left unchecked, they can also damage paint, wood, roofs and siding.

Removing mold and mildew used to mean countless hours of scrubbing or power washing—only to have it return the next year. Fortunately, those days are gone. Thanks to products specifically formulated to kill mold and mildew and prevent it from coming back—there's now a scrub-free way to a mold-and-mildew-free home. Here's how:

Control the moisture around your home. Keep shrubs, plants and mulch away from the exterior walls. Trim any branches or tree limbs that touch the outside of your home. Clear gutters and drains or any leaves or debris. Since mold and mildew need moisture to grow, redirect sprinklers and rotate hanging planters to prevent water from regularly collecting on exterior surfaces. Also, make sure rainwater is not collecting near your home's foundation. Repair leaks and extend downspouts away from the foundation.

Clean and kill the mold and mildew with a house cleaner that contains an EPA-registered mildewicide, such as JOMAX House Cleaner and Mildew Killer. JOMAX kills mold and mildew and loosens dirt and stains without scrubbing or power washing. Its specifically formulated detergent system will not damage wood, etch aluminum siding or discolor surfaces like household bleach can. And JOMAX will not harm surrounding plants, grass and shrubs.

To remove black streaks, dirt and mildew stains from asphalt shingled roofs, use JOMAX Roof Cleaner and Mildew Stain Remover. It quickly cleans and kills mold and mildew on tile, slate, metal and other nonporous roof materials.

Tip from the pros: Not sure if the black spots on your house are dirt or mold and mildew? Apply a drop of household bleach to the discolored area. If the stain disappears or lightens, it's mold and mildew.

Prevent it from coming back. After killing the mildew, prevent it from coming back with PERMA-WHITE Mold & Mildew-Proof Exterior Paint. Guaranteed to prevent the growth of mold and mildew on the paint film for five years, this premium-quality exterior paint is also guaranteed to resist cracking, fading, peeling and blistering for 15 years after application. Its beautiful white formula can be tinted to popular exterior colors for beautiful results that last, so it's a great choice for any home where the growth of mold and mildew is a concern.

The To-Do List For A Perfect Summer:

Safe Kids, Cleaner Environment, Increased Property Values

By Samantha Mazzotta

This summer, a homeowner's to-do list should include keeping children safe, helping to make the environment cleaner, and improving the overall value of their home.

The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI) offers tips and information to cross these items off the list. Keep kids safe. Keep them inside, away of the work area.

NEVER give a child a ride on a lawnmower, even with the blades turned off. After being given a ride, the child may return for another ride when you aren't expecting him. You may not hear or see the child coming out for a ride and cause an accident that may change your life and your child's forever. Riding mowers are tools, not toys.

- Keep kids indoors under adult supervision
- Look down and behind when backing up
- Don't disengage safety mechanisms
- Stop mowing and turn off the engine if people are near
- Store and lock riding mowers, keeping keys away from children
- Don't allow a child to play on or around a riding mower.

Keep the air cleaner and the grass greener. Manufacturers of outdoor power equipment have invested millions of dollars in innovative technologies to manufacture products that are cleaner, quieter, and more efficient.

Today's outdoor power equipment is designed with low-emission engines that are 70% cleaner than those built in 1990 and meet and even exceed emissions standards from the Environmental Protection Agency.

According to the EPA, emissions from small engines under 25 horsepower are responsible for just 3% of the total emissions nationwide, of which lawn and garden equipment make up approximately 1%.

You can help further reduce emission output by:

- Being extra careful when filling the engine with gasoline.
- Spilled gasoline releases unnecessary emissions into the air
- Leaving room for expansion by filling only 3/4 full - to prevent unwanted emissions from being released

- Tightening gas caps to prevent evaporation and reduce emissions
- Storing properly in a cool place out of direct sunlight
- Tuning up engines and sharpening blades for more efficient performance.

Using outdoor power equipment is a wise investment that pays.

Finally, as you mow, edge, plant and trim this year, know this:

- Landscaping can add as much as 11% to the value to your home
 - Landscaping creates an environment attractive birds and beneficial insects
 - The right plant and location can lower heating and cooling costs by up to 20%
 - Plants absorb pollutants and block noise levels
- For a complete list of safety tips and other important information about outdoor power equipment, visit www.opei.org The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI) is the international trade association committed to advancing the outdoor power equipment industry in the areas of public safety, environmental responsibility, business development and advocacy.

Founded in 1952, OPEI represents the manufacturers of outdoor power equipment and their suppliers. For more information on OPEI, visit www.opei.org.

Norfolk County Register Of Deeds Announces Beware Of Deed Scam

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell announces homeowners of Norfolk County should be aware of deed scam.

According to O'Donnell, an outfit named National Deed Service, Inc. has mailed an offer to secure for residents of Norfolk County a certified copy of their deed for $59.90.

O'Donnell reminds homeowners in Norfolk County that a certified copy of their deed may be obtained from the Registry of Deeds at 649 High St. in Dedham from Monday through Friday during regular business hours of 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at a cost of $1 per page.

Homeowners who cannot come to the office may send a request by mail to the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds at P.O. Box 69, Dedham, MA 02026. Cost by mail is $2 per deed.

"Homeowners are paying an exorbitant fee for a private company," O'Donnell said. "This company is not providing a meaningful public service."

"It is a business practice affecting the residents of Norfolk County that is outrageous," O'Donnell added.

Homeowners who would like to view their deed can go online to the Registry website at www.norfolkdeeds.org and look at their deed in the research section.

There is also further real estate information available including the process on how to obtain a copy of a deed.

For more information, contact the Registry's customer service center at 1-781-461-6101.

This Home Needs a Check-Up

Q. Please help! I have two strange problems in my home. First, the wooden countertop and table in my kitchen feel sticky. Same goes for the wooden paneling around the doorways and the chain from which my dining-room ceiling lamp hangs. Second, within the past few months the wooden floors in my home have been sinking in different areas and in different rooms. I've lived in this house 18 years and have not experienced these issues before. What is going on? Is it termites? — Anna V., Roselle, N.J.

A. My first thought is not termites, but excess humidity throughout the house. The tacky surfaces and sinking floorboards, all occurring at around the same time, indicate that something has gone wrong with the home's environmental system.

A house having an environmental system, you may ask? Yes — homes are designed to keep occupants comfortable and remove or repel things that will make them uncomfortable. One of the biggest parts of that system is the airflow system — not the air conditioner or heater so much as the attic and basement (or crawl-space) venting. These vents keep air moving through unoccupied sections of the house, an important factor in keeping structural elements dry and reducing overall humidity.

Go through a quick checklist of possible causes for this excess humidity. Was new insulation recently installed? Were windows, doors or other parts of the house weatherproofed? Have any major home appliances, including the heating system, washer and dryer, dishwasher or air conditioner, been repaired or serviced? Was the plumbing repaired recently? Did any extreme weather events (floods or heavy rains) occur in the past few months? Did the city perform any water main repairs or other work projects nearby?

Once you've been through the list, have a licensed general contractor check the house from rooftop to foundation, looking for any causes of humidity as well as any damage or deterioration. You may want to have a plumber inspect the pipe system, too. Get a written report and estimate from both before agreeing to any repairs.

Send questions or home-repair tips to homequincy2004@hotmail.com, or write This Is a Hammer, c/o King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 53475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

YMCA Germantown Neighborhood Center Pantry Seeks Cash, Donations

This month, the YMCA Germantown Center Pantry marks its first anniversary with a plea for more donations of food, diapers, detergents and personal care products as well as cash donations and gift cards for local supermarkets.

Over the past year, the Germantown Neighborhood Pantry provided critical support to 700 families through supplies of food available each month from The Pantry at 15 Bicknell Street. The Pantry is open three mornings a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 9 a.m. through 12 noon and on Wednesday evenings from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Additional hours are added during the holiday season when gift baskets and additional groceries are provided. The Pantry provides a three to five day supply of food each month to families and serves holiday dinners.

"We help out individuals all year long by providing food and resources for basic needs, utilities, rent, and information," is the Pantry's stated goal.

Donations of meats, eggs, juice, fresh produce, milk, butter, cereals, fruits spaghetti sauce, rice, pasta, peanut butter and soups are always needed as are cleaning products, and laundry detergents.

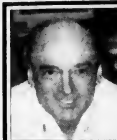

Contact 617-376-2384 or 617-479-0828 for additional information or assistance.

Pilgrims And Progress

Did you know that it wasn't long after the pilgrims first settled at Plymouth in 1620 that one of their houses caught fire?

On Jan. 14, 1621, less than a month after their arrival in Plymouth. The first houses they built, their "rendezvous" house, burnt from an ember igniting its thatched roof. I understand too that the first duel took place on this soil in Plymouth as well in 1621. I hope it wasn't over a conflict in suppression management at that fire.

Considering the materials used then for construction, it was no wonder it should occur so soon. I believe that chimneys were constructed of sticks and mud, roofs were first constructed of combustible thatch. I believe those first fire suppression efforts were performed with buckets and mops confining the fire to the roof. A good save I suppose!

Consequently, through experiences such as this and many, many others over these past four centuries, many of the building and fire codes today are derived from examining and modifying past practices. For instance, as a result of the Coconut Grove fire in 1942, and after examining the tragedy for inadequacies in the building's design, which lead to so many deaths, code requirements changed so that all egress doors in buildings used by the public must open outward.

Revolving doors were still acceptable, but after this fire they had to be flanked by at least two doors with panic hardware. The need for emergency lighting within an assembly occupancy was then required because people in this particular fire were plunged into darkness attempting to escape. It has been suggested that the fire started with ignited combustible decorations. As a result, live Christmas trees and flammable decorations were banned from assembly occupancies as well.

Building and fire codes are constantly evolving, while tragic experiences such as this one tend to be the catalyst for much of this change. More recently the Station nightclub fire in Rhode Island led to the adoption of more assembly occupancy fire regulations in this state as did a carbon monoxide tragedy in Plymouth, leading to the Nicole's Law. It will certainly not end there.

Building practices have come a long way since the use of materials like combustible thatch roofs and wooden framed chimneys, yet house fires exist and prevention efforts continue. Our efforts through fire safety education continue here as well. In the past, I've referred to fire prevention as a race against tragedy, which is why I write many of the articles I do here.

Sharing fire experiences, their origin and cause, along with the tale told through fire statistics, I attempt to highlight pitfalls in habits and behavior, which make us more prone to tragic fire.

From them we can recognize our own habits and behavior, which might need some attention and modifications we well. There is hope in our ability to learn from these incidents, and in that ounce of prevention we have so often discussed. The work continues. Be safe!

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

by Andrea Wyatt
M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

When Exercise Makes You Feel Sick

Q. After completing my cardiovascular exercises, I sometimes have a slight bout of nausea and dizziness. Both last only a few minutes. Could this mean I am exercising at an intensity too strenuous for my fitness level? Or could it mean something else?

A. There are many reasons why conditioned and non-conditioned exercisers could have feelings of nausea and dizziness following exercise. There are steps you can take to identify the reasons for your nausea and dizziness, and these symptoms should not be ignored.

Be sure to consult your physician before beginning an exercise program. Certain medical conditions such as low blood pressure, hypoglycemia, pregnancy and diabetes could possibly produce symptoms of nausea and dizziness following exercise. Speak with your physician about steps you can take to lower your chances of these symptoms occurring while exercising.

Once you have been cleared by your physician, consider the following:

Remember to warm up before proceeding to a higher-intensity exercise. Take 7-10 minutes to increase your heart rate and allow your body to get warm, especially before beginning a strength-training routine. While warming up, your body sends blood to the appropriate areas, preparing you for the exercises to come. After your exercise is complete, remember to cool down until you are able to breathe comfortably and your heart rate returns to a level close to what it was at the beginning of your workout. Cooling down will allow the blood that was sent to your muscles during exercise to circulate efficiently back to your brain.

For example, while using the treadmill or elliptical trainer, blood is shunted to your legs; once the exercise is terminated, the blood circulates back to your brain and heart. Stopping abruptly and stepping off the machine could cause blood-pooling dizziness.

Proper nutrition is a must before exercising. Lack of fuel could cause nausea and dizziness during and after exercise. Eating a light snack before exercise and staying hydrated is very important, especially when exercising in a hot and humid environment. Dehydration and lack of food both can cause nausea and dizziness.

Develop an exercise program that is right for you. Exercising at a heart rate that is too high for an extended amount of time not only can make you nauseous and dizzy, but it could also keep you from reaching your fitness goals. More is not always better. Pace yourself and find a cardiovascular program that works for you.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. Five Reasons To Stay Active

By MINDY HERMANN

(NAPS) — In my 20s, I made annual resolutions to become more active and usually broke each one within the first few weeks of the year. Then a friend's innocent comment—"After 30, it's a fight against gravity"—hit home, and I've been active ever since. I am certain that physical activity helps me maintain my weight. For me, it is also a great stress reliever. And surprisingly, the only thing that relieves a headache or mid-afternoon fatigue is a long walk or an hour at the health club.

Your personal benefits may be different, but here are five of the best reasons to stay active and why activity can benefit your daily routine:

1. Cardiovascular fitness—Cardiovascular fitness means that your heart, lungs and blood vessels are in good health. Aerobic activities that increase your breathing help build up these important organs.

2. Strength building—Physical activity strengthens and tones muscles so they can work longer without tiring. Stronger muscles can lift things more easily.

3. Flexibility—Building flexibility by stretching muscles helps protect them from strains and keeps them limber. People who are flexible may be better able to perform daily activities such as tying shoes and reaching down to pick up items from the floor.

4. Bone building—Bones become stronger through "weight-bearing" activities that rely on feet and legs to support the body's weight. The pull on bones by stronger muscles helps build bone strength.

5. Energy—Physical activity boosts "feel good" chemicals in the body.

Which activities are best for you? "The best activities are those that you enjoy," says Chris Rosenbloom, Ph.D., R.D., a professor in Division of Nutrition at the College of Health and Human Sciences, Georgia State University. "Walking, swimming and cycling are all popular activities. And don't be afraid to try any sport that interests you." Dr. Rosenbloom encourages adults who have been inactive to start slowly and gradually build up the duration and intensity of exercise.

Exercising in the morning? Have a low-fat breakfast of Whole Grain Total, fruit and skim milk before or shortly after your activities, for a nutritious start to the day.

Eye On Health

American Academy of Ophthalmology Urges Athletes to Wear Protective Eyewear

(NAPS) — From Major League Baseball stadiums to small-town basketball courts, athletic competition builds physical fitness, entertains millions and teaches the values of hard work and teamwork.

But for more than 40,000 athletes each year, these lessons can be marred by an errant finger or misjudged catch. That's the number of sports-related eye injuries that occur annually in the United States. Approximately one-third of the victims are children.

April is Sports Eye Safety

Month, and Eye M.D.s at the American Academy of Ophthalmology urge athletes to wear appropriate, sport-specific, protective eyewear properly fitted an eye care professional.

"Athletes need to choose to use protective eyewear because eye injuries can be devastating," said Monica L. Monica, M.D., Ph.D., MHA, clinical correspondent for the Academy. "Eye injuries are one of the leading causes of visual impairment in children. The injuries range from abrasions of the cornea and bruises of the lids to internal eye injuries, such as retinal detachments and internal bleeding. Unfortunately, some of these young athletes end up with permanent vision and blindness."

Many sports create risk for eye injuries; however, protection is available for many activities, including basketball, baseball, hockey, football, lacrosse, fencing, paintball and water polo, as well as racquetball, soccer and downhill skiing.

"Athletes can select from various types of lightweight and sturdy protective eyewear," said M. Bowes Hamill, M.D., associate professor of ophthalmology at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston and clinical correspondent for the Academy. "Eyewear properly fitted and worn does not hinder performance in any way, and can prevent most sports eye injuries."

Protective eyewear lenses should be made of polycarbonate, which can withstand impact from a ball traveling a 90 miles per hour. Dr. Hamill said.

"Contact lenses offer no protection," he said, "and street wear glasses are inadequate to protect against any type of eye injury."

Most sporting leagues don't require children to wear eye protection, so parents must insist that their children wear eye protection when they play.

"When they do, the occurrence of eye injuries is greatly reduced," Dr. Monica said. "Parents also can set a good example by wearing eye protection when they play sports, and work to help pass local ordinances requiring children to wear protective eyewear when engaging in sports."

Accidents Happen

Sometimes even the most conscientious athletes can injure their eyes. Dr. Hamill said it is imperative to seek medical help immediately in case of injury.

"Injuries such as cuts or foreign bodies stuck in the eye are emergencies," he said. "Don't try to treat these injuries yourself, contact the Eye M.D. or go to the emergency room for help immediately."

Even a seemingly light blow can cause a serious eye injury. If a black eye, pain or visual problem occurs after a blow, contact your Eye M.D. or seek emergency medical attention immediately.

"With just a little care and common sense, you can go a long way toward protecting your precious gift of sight," said Dr. Hamill.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

LOST, BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

Whether a young child loses a primary ("baby") tooth prematurely due to decay or injury, the loss should be assessed for its potential impact upon remaining and developing teeth. Problems arising out of the premature loss of a primary tooth include the possibility that an adjacent tooth may drift into the empty space to hinder the eruption of permanent teeth. The early loss of a primary tooth may also provide encouragement for the permanent tooth below to erupt too early. As a result of erupting out of sequence, the permanent tooth may then drift out of place or protrude too much. For these reasons and others, the premature loss of primary teeth should be monitored closely to avoid complications.

Today's column about tooth loss has been brought to you as a public service. Preventive dentistry is our goal for every patient. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where preventive dentistry may not be where we start with every patient, but it's where we like to finish. It involves daily care, good nutrition, and periodic check-ups and cleanings that maintain good dental health already achieved. Oral health is a long-term commitment we share with each patient. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We take pride in our ability to provide quality dental care in a relaxed and comfortable environment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Just as teeth that are lost prematurely can be the source of problems, teeth that are shed too late may also be a source of concern.

At Fenway Park State Street Pavilion Saturday License Plate Auction To Benefit Mini-Fenway

Boston Red Sox fans are invited to join Red Sox legends, Wally the Green Monster and Shonda Schilling at the Fenway Park License Plate Auction on Saturday, April 7, from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m., at the Fenway Park State Street Pavilion.

The live auction will feature one-of-a-kind plates with the uniform numbers of celebrated Red Sox players and the years of Red Sox pennant-winning and world championship teams. The event culminates an online auction of the plates that began March 1 at the Red Sox Website (www.redsox.com).

Honorary co-chairs of the event are Boston Red Sox legends, Luis Tiant and Carl Yastrzemski. The event kicks off at 7 p.m. with a buffet dinner, complimentary beverages and entertainment by "Street Magic." NESN SportsDesk reporter, Jayme Parker, will serve as the evening's master of ceremonies. Celebrity auctioneer, actor-comedian Tony V, and auctioneer Dan Flynn will begin the live auction at 8:30 p.m. The evening will conclude with entertainment by "Andrew and Expressions."

Proceeds from the auction as well as overall sales of the Fenway Park License Plate will benefit Mini Fenway Park; a half-sized replica of Boston's famed ballpark to begin construction in late spring. Funds will help support both capital and operations needs for building the facility and implementing its youth athletic development programs.

Sponsors of the Fenway Park License Plate include State Street Corporation, Enterprise Rent-A-Car, Dunkin' Donuts and Payton Construction.

"We are grateful to our sponsors, the Boston Red Sox, Major League Baseball, the Registry of Motor Vehicles, 3M Corporation, our volunteers, and the 1,500 folks who have purchased the plate for helping to make this happen," said Ron Iacobucci, CEO of Kids Replica Ballpark, Inc., the organization spearheading the construction of Mini Fenway Park.

Bidding at the live auction will be on the 25 lowest numbered license plates from the online auction, which includes the following numbers: 1-22, 24-99, 406, 1489, 1967, 1975, 1986, 1903, 1912, 1915, 1916, 1918 and 2004.

Tickets for the Fenway Park License Plate auction are $100 for standing room and $250 for reserved seating. Ticket holders will be treated to the dinner buffet, open bar with wine, beer and soda, and a deluxe gift bag. To purchase tickets for the live auction or to participate in the online auction, go to www.redsox.com/minifenwaypark and click on "Charity Event."

About Mini Fenway Park

Mini Fenway Park is the initiative of Kids Replica Ballpark, Inc., a 501(c)(3) non-profit youth development organization with the mission to build a state-of-the-art facility replicating Boston's Fenway Park. Licensed by the Boston Red Sox and Major League Baseball, the organization plans to provide top-quality baseball, softball and T-ball programs for children ages 4 to 17 residing in New England. Mini Fenway Park will be a learning ground for kids and a year-round destination for families and fans.

Mini Fenway Park will be built on 12 acres in the Blue Hills Reservation in Quincy, MA located directly off Exit 8 on U.S. Interstate 93.

For more information on Mini Fenway Park, visit the Website at www.redsox.com/minifenwaypark or email info@kidsreplicaballpark.org

Highest Honor Bestowed On B.C. High School Graduate

Quincy's James Cotter Wins St. Ignatius Award

The St. Ignatius Award Committee of Boston College High School announces James E. Cotter, class of 1955, of Quincy, of Falmouth, a native of Dorchester, is a recipient of the 2007 St. Ignatius Award, the highest honor bestowed on a graduate of Boston College High School.

In presenting the award, the committee stated Cotter has touched the lives of thousands of students on their way through BC High, teaching them to become men for others without any expectation of reward or recognition for himself. Teacher, counselor, athletic director, and coach since 1960, Cotter is perhaps best known for his 41-year tenure as the head football coach of the Eagles.

To the unparalleled number of alumni who cite him as a mentor, Cotter's coaching was only a small part of the way in which he guided them - his encouragement, loyalty, friendship, and dedication to them stretch far beyond the sidelines.

Mrs. Grace Regan, Jim's daughter, presented him to a recent gathering of the BC High community. Vice Principal for Ignatian Mission and Identity, Mike McGonagle '70, presided over the ceremony.

The Very Reverend Thomas Regan, SJ, provincial of the New England Jesuits, led the opening prayer and President William Kemeza addressed the students before turning the floor over to the presenters.

The St. Ignatius Award Committee also recognized two other recipients this year: J. Frank Keohane, Esq. '53, President of CSA Financial Corporation and John H. Danilecki '80, Lieutenant Detective and Commander of Detectives in Roxbury.

The Saint Ignatius Award is given to graduates of Boston College High School who possess high moral character, selfless dedication to service without expectation of material reward or public recognition, while adhering to the precepts of Christ, justice, compassion and the precept of Ignatian dignity.

QHS Baseball Hall Of Fame Induction May 10

The Quincy High School Baseball Alumni Association and Hall of Fame Committee announces the names of fifteen former Quincy High School baseball players to be inducted into the Quincy High School Hall of Fame on May 10, 2007.

The Hall of Fame Banquet will be held at the Quincy Sons of Italy. The social hour is from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m., with dinner and the awards ceremonies to follow. Tickets to the Hall of Fame Banquet are $25 and can be purchased by contacting Joseph Brill, chairman of the QHSBAA, at (617) 770-4813.

The 2007 inductees include Gerald Curtis ('46), Bob Gumpwright ('41), Frances "Frankie" Pineau ('49), Frank Barone ('51), Dan Raymond ('65), Ted Meyers ('69), Bob Pettinelli ('69), Bob Lane ('73), Joe Brill ('74), Paul Sutherland ('76), Gary DiNardo ('81), Tom Balzano ('91), Robert "Robbie" Kane ('93), Tom Malvesti ('94) and the late Steve Barrett ('95).

For the first time the QHSBAA Hall of Fame Committee is including the Old Quincy Trade School and announces that Gino Pettit ('39) and Frances "Shorty" Donovan ('42) have been inducted.

George Burke will be inducted as only the third Honorary Member into the Hall of Fame, joining former Quincy mayor James Sheers and former Minnesota Twins manager Sam Mele.

Warren Finley and A "Bud" Mosher will join the Hall of Fame as former coaches.

The Hall of Fame committee will also honor four youth coaches who have given their time to teaching the game of baseball to so many kids for so many years. The four include Bill Draicchio, Dick Lombardi and the late John Rossi of Quincy Youth Baseball and Tony Constantino from St. John's Baseball.

The Paul Grasso Memorial Baseball Book Scholarship will be awarded to a senior who will further their education and baseball skills at the college level. Grasso, who graduated from Quincy High School in 1967, was killed while serving his country during the Vietnam War. Book Scholarship winners will be awarded to the late Joe Sullivan and Joe Constantino.

Bernazzani School Wiffle-Ball Game To Honor Teacher

The Charles A. Bernazzani School will be celebrating the Boston Red Sox home opener with a teacher-student wiffle-ball game in honor of Ms. Jane Farrell-Smith, an avid Red Sox fan and former grade 2 teacher at the Bernazzani School who passed away in October.

The game will be held at

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It is Easter - the occasion for Christians to rejoice again the celebration of the Resurrection. It is Easter - the occasion for a new beginning in our lives; an occasion for renewal of the spirit. It is Easter - a time of awakening to new understanding of what is important in life; a time to find new depths of thought and feeling within ourselves. It is Easter - a time of hope and promise of new life and bright days.

Easter comes garlanded in crocuses and hyacinths, its triumphal procession is attended by pink and white dogwood and yellow forsythia and flowering crab. Animals are born and nibble the tender grass of yet another spring. Birds that fled the blasts of winter return and flash their various colors from tree to tree. The sun that stood aloof dips down to color the gardener's face as he entrusts to the good earth the seeds that will blossom into flowers and food of varied hue.

Easter's message, like that of Christmas, is of good tidings and great joy. It speaks to the eternal abundance of life.

Easter is a hopeful holiday and we hope our readers will enjoy it to the fullest... A JOYOUS EASTER TO ALL...

HOLY WEEK and EASTER SERVICES

Easter Fun Fest At Covenant Congregational

Covenant Congregational Church, 315 Whitwell St., Quincy Center, invites the community to come together and celebrate the joy of the Easter season at its Easter Fun Fest Saturday, April 7 from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

There will be games, treats and crafts for children to enjoy. There will also be a special area, just for parents and grandparents, where they can enjoy refreshments and receive a free Easter book for the family.

An Easter Egg Hunt is scheduled for 11 a.m. and a special reading of the story of Easter at 11:15 a.m.

All of the activities are free.

The Covenant Congregational Church is a member of the Evangelical Covenant Church. For more information, call the church at 617-479-5728.

Easter Vigil Service At United Methodist Church

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will celebrate the Easter Vigil Saturday, April 7 at 7:30 p.m.

Dating from the earliest years of the Christian Church, the Easter Vigil is a service unlike any other, literally leading the congregation from Lent to Easter. It does so through word, song, and, most importantly, symbols that refer to Scripture. Because many people today are unfamiliar with symbolic interpretation, explanatory notes are provided in the text of the Vigil service, said the Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of Quincy Community United Methodist Church. She has also updated the ancient service somewhat, so that it "speak" to today's Christians.

"One phrase can sum up this powerful service," Pastor Jarek-Glidden said. "Expect the unexpected. In a very visceral way, the Vigil proclaims the hope and promise of Easter."

Everyone attending the Vigil is requested to bring a flashlight - an updated and safer version of the traditional candles. Some extra flashlights will be available. People should also wear comfortable walking shoes since some walking is involved.

The church is located diagonally from the Wollaston 1 Station.

For more information, call 617-773-3319.

Sacred Heart Parish

Sacred Heart Parish, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy, announces the parish's celebration of Holy Week and Easter Sunday.

"Popcorn, Movies and Discussion," a monthly adult faith formation series, will be held on Wednesday, April 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the convent building. The Holy Week movie presentation is The Passion of Christ.

The evening Mass of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated at 7:30 p.m. on Holy Thursday, April 5 followed by Eucharistic Adoration in Our Lady Chapel until 11 p.m.

The Liturgy of Good Friday will be celebrated at 3 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Good Friday, April 6.

The annual Fr. Cornelius J. Heery Good Friday Memorial Walk to benefit Por Cristo will take place at 9:30 a.m. and will travel 5 miles around the North Quincy/Wollaston area.

The solemn Easter Vigil will begin in the darkness of Holy Saturday night, April 7 at 8:30 p.m. with the blessing of the new fire and the procession of the paschal candle into the church.

During the Triduum ("the Three Days" from sunset on Holy Thursday until sunset on Easter Sunday evening), the parish will celebrate the Liturgy of the Hours, the Church's official daily prayer with morning prayer at 9 a.m., mid-day prayer at noon, and night prayer on Holy Thursday at 10 p.m. and on Good Friday at 9 p.m. Our Lady of Good Chapel, will be open throughout the Three Days for private prayer.

Easter Sunday masses on April 8 will be celebrated at 7:45 a.m., 9 a.m. (with the children's choir), 10:30 a.m. (with adult choir) and at 12 noon at Star of the Sea Church in Squantum. There is no 5 p.m. Mass Easter Sunday.

Blessing Of Easter Baskets Saturday At Sacred Heart

Sacred Heart Parish, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy, will hold a blessing of Easter food baskets at 12:15 p.m. on Holy Saturday, April 7.

This traditional Eastern European custom is growing in popularity among Catholic parishes around the country.

25th Senior Olympic Games May 7-15

Quincy's Senior Olympics season launches with a sense of "celebration" this year, as planning for the 25th Senior Olympic Games gets underway.

Quincy Mayor William J. Phelan and the Olympic Planning "team" met at City Hall this past week to finalize plans for the expanding weekend event, May 7-15.

What began 25 years ago, as an informal Saturday afternoon gathering of seniors has grown, through the years, to a 9-day event offering 21 competitive games at ten sites throughout Quincy.

The first annual Games were organized in 1982, informally by the Quincy Recreation Department and Beechwood. When "the Games" began to interest increasing numbers of seniors-Quincy's community Hospital, became the primary sponsor. The support has continued through the years: first Quincy Hospital, then Quincy Medical Center. In recent years the partnership has extended to Boston Medical Center.

The City of Quincy, led by Mayor Phelan and Beechwood On The Bay, will launch the 25th year of Senior Olympics on Monday, May 7 at 6 p.m. Mayor Phelan and the oldest Senior Olympian Competitor will light the torch with the annual pronouncement, "Let the Games Begin."

This year's Senior Olympics Games (May 7-15) will expand to all eleven South Shore communities and beyond. Registrations are expected from New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

"We encourage interested seniors (55-95) to participate, with approval of their physicians," said Beechwood Director Sharron Beals.

"It is important to begin "readiness" activities now," Beals added. "Walking, stretching, yoga and other activities are recommended (and available at Beechwood)." George Burke is our basketball coach each Friday morning."

Registration packets for Senior Olympics will soon be available at Beechwood, City Hall Information Booth, Recreation Department, Council on Aging, The Quincy Sun and The Quincy Business Association.

For more information about Beechwood's walking groups, co-ed volleyball games, yoga classes, and "Friday Fitness Fun" or any other inquiries about the Senior Olympics and/or other Senior Center activities call Beechwood (617) 471-5712.

First Church Of Squantum

The First Church of Squantum in Quincy, 164 Bellevue Rd. at the corner of Huckins and Bellevue, will hold a sunrise community Easter service Sunday at 6:30 a.m. at Orchard Beach followed by a breakfast in the church hall.

The public is invited. The title of Pastor Mike Robertson's sermon is "What a Day This Is."

An Easter Egg Hunt will be held for children during the regular Sunday School class.

A potluck dinner will be held Saturday, April 14 at 6 p.m. Bring a dish. All are welcome.

Spiritual Program for Women In May

A five-week spiritual program for women in recovery will be held each Wednesday evening in May from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. at Maria Droste Services, 1354 Hancock St., Quincy.

Sr. Kathy Short, CSJ, will be the facilitator of the program entitled "Chaos to Grace." The weekly fee will range from $10 to $30 for participants.

"Recovery is the discovery of your true self, one glorious step at a time," is the motto of the program.

This group program, "Chaos to Grace" will focus on relaxation, sharing, meditation and body exercises. Interested persons may contact the center at 617-471-5686 for additional information.

South Coastal Bank Awards $500 Grant To Central Middle School

South Coastal Bank recently presented a $5000 grant to Central Middle School PTO from its C.A.R.E.S. community giving program. The C.A.R.E.S. program helps local not-for-profit groups promote and encourage a sense of Community, Achievement, Responsibility and Excellence in children through exposure to the arts.

Serving Quincy students in grades six through eight, the Central Middle School PTO works to enhance the children's educational experience by raising funds to subsidize cultural arts programs not provided for by the school budget. The PTO applied C.A.R.E.S. funding toward its "Celebration of the Fine Arts" family night, during which artwork created by Central Middle School students was displayed and auctioned. The event also featured performances by the School's drama club, chorus and band. For more information on South Coastal Bank C.A.R.E.S., contact community liaison Susan Lincoln at 781-681-7206.

Question Vacation Buyback System

Park Commissioner Wins Bid for $100,000 Transfer

By LAURA GRIFFIN

City councillors unanimously approved a $100,000 transfer request by Park Commissioner Mark Jaehning at their recent Finance Committee meeting. The transfer must now be finalized at a City Council meeting.

Prior to the vote, councillors questioned both the department's sicktime and vacation buyback policy as well as the overtime expenses that put the Park Department's Personnel budget in the red.

"How did you arrive at a buyback figure?" Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond asked, referring to the $37,815 settlement total for former employees.

Of that sum, $18,505 was designated as the estimated settlement to the estate of the late Paul Zamburano and $19,310 as the actual payment to former Park Commissioner Thomas Koch.

Parks Department Program Manager Kristen

Keohane said that department officials "...worked with the Personnel Director."

"I don't believe there's any hard fast rule," City Auditor Rick Fitzpatrick said referring to sicktime and buyback payments due management employees who voluntarily leave city jobs. Such policies are written into contracts for non-management employees.

Councillor John Keenan said he believes there was a written policy when he worked for Mayor James Sheets' administration.

"I find it hard to believe that there is nothing in writing," said Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis who added, "If there's not, there should be."

Councillors also reviewed the department's overtime expenses for the Veterans' Memorial Stadium project which totaled $63,103. In his written report, Jaehning cited circumstances "beyond the control of the Park Department" which impacted the overtime budget.

"First was the record-setting rainy spring," reported Jaehning, noting that, at one point, "torrential rains filled the excavation and required hundreds of thousands of gallons of water to be pumped out of the hole....."

Councillors agreed to approve Jaehning's request, noting this was his first season as Park Commissioner.

"I want him to hit the ground with his feet running," said Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamie while Ward 1 Councillor agreed, saying, "Let's give the guy a chance."

Of the $100,000 request, $60,000 will be added to Personnel Services and $40,000 to Current Expenses. The funds will be transferred from Collection and Disposal and from Free Cash in equal amounts of $50,000.

Coughlin Urges Permit Parking In Districts

Director or traffic department.

The proposal states, "The petition may identify a primary district where the parking problems predominate; such an area may be any portion or all of one or more streets, but the minimum restricted area must be at least one street block in length, and any restricted area must be bordered only by (residential) property...."

Once the residents' petition is verified, the City Traffic Engineer or his designee would survey the area and submit a recommendation.

In the final step, the City Council would hold a public hearing and either approve or reject the district.

After a district is designated, residents may apply for stickers for themselves and their visitors. However, only two motor vehicles registered at eligible addresses would qualify for the parking stickers priced at $10 annually for each vehicle. Vehicles with handicapped or disabled veteran license plates would be exempt.

In addition, residents could apply for up to two visitor parking permits per dwelling. Such parking permits would be transferable and would be issued free of charge to residents. The Police Chief may, also, issue additional visitor permits to institutions or organizations in a permit area.

Coughlin's proposal also allows the City Council to revoke the designation of a permit zone and for the Police Chief to suspend a zone designation for a limited period as necessitated by the public interest.

SWAP Earns Tax Abatements For Seniors

The Council on Aging has a SWAP (Senior Workers' Abatement Program) that enable the elderly to work 89 1/2 hours a year and earn $600 towards their real estate tax bills.

Good News, Bad News

Legislators Predict $1M In New Aid But Grim Future

By LAURA GRIFFIN

State legislators forecast a $1.1 million increase in state aid to Quincy for the next fiscal year, but warned city councillors Monday that the state's finances look grim for future years.

In addition, they warned that water and sewer ratepayers might get hit hard as funding for rate relief dries up on Beacon Hill.

"The good news is we're getting more local aid this year," Senator Michael Morrissey told the City Council, but he expects anemic growth on the state level will impact cities and towns in the years to come.

"We think we're in for a rough ride for the next few years," Morrissey said after noting that even the state's lottery income has flattened. "Our tax growth is only expected to be 3%."

At Monday's meeting, Morrissey, along with State Representatives Ron Mariano and Steve Tobin reviewed local and state issues with the City Council. Rep. Ayers was unable to attend due to family obligations.

Issues ranged from health insurance, gambling casinos, the Wollaston Beach project, fire trucks to graffiti on Neponset River Bridge, but the first and major issue was finances.

According to preliminary data, Quincy's local aid could increase by 7% or $1,190,313 in fiscal year 2008. That would bring the city's total aid next year to $38,153,678.

In the fiscal 2006, the Quincy's state aid totaled $34,298,095 while the current state aid for Quincy is $36,963,365.

Under the governor's budget, the increase would only be $108,375 or 4.11% with a total aid package of $37,585,134.

None of the legislators expect the state budget to be finalized before early June.

As for next year and after, Tobin said, "I haven't heard any optimism." In fact, he said that '09 may be the start of a decrease.

Even with the potential for increased aid this year, there's a major downside for

Phelan Backs Open Space As Avalon Withdraws

Mayor William Phelan said Tuesday that he will encourage the City's Community Preservation Committee to enter open space acquisition discussions with Avalon Corporation after Avalon withdrew its plans to construct 146 apartment units off Falls Boulevard in Quincy Point.

Phelan when discovered that a pre-existing condition in a 1996 permit for an adjacent parcel prevented access to the new development.

"I am proud that we fought to protect this neighborhood," Phelan said. "We will now have the opportunity to preserve the city's largest remaining open space parcel and possibly connect this 14-acre parcel of natural land with an existing 57-acre park."

City Council Reaction Page 11

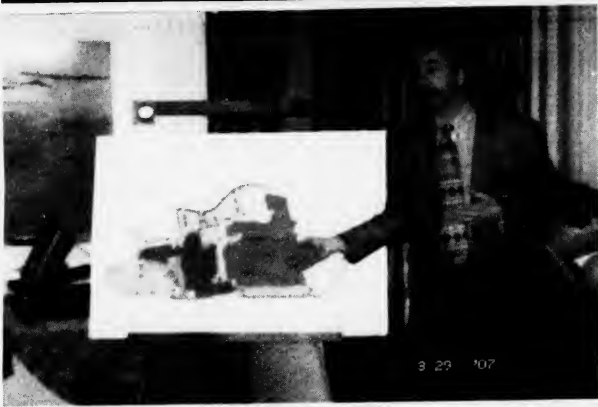

"By performing our due diligence we have upheld the integrity of all City boards and commission that place conditions on development permits. This development would have undermined the credibility of the entire permitting process had the City Council allowed it to proceed."

Phelan originally opposed the re-zoning of the parcel in 2004. The City Council rezoned the parcel from Industrial A zoning to Planned Unit Development, allowing for residential development and potentially increasing the parcel's value significantly, Phelan said. Phelan vetoed the rezoning, but his veto was overturned by the City Council at that time.

Phelan has recently encouraged the Community Preservation Committee to investigate bonding options in order to target multiple open space acquisitions in 2007. He has expressed a similar hope that the Committee negotiates with the

Science Center At New High School To Feature Renewable Energy Resources

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

The bridge linking the main building of Quincy High School with the Voc-Tech campus is attracting a lot of attention from the community as well as representatives of the energy industry and educators.

The bridge will soon be the site of a renewable energy project which will eventually be relocated to the new high school.

One of the people interested in the solar thermal heating system project is Richard Trethewey, the plumbing and heating expert from the television program "This Old House."

Trethewey is also president of RST, Inc., a manufacturer's representative company that provides training to the skilled trades.

Emily Lebo, director of Career and Technical Education for the Quincy Public Schools, welcomed guests last Thursday to a meeting of the advisory board of the Renewable Energy Integration Project, where the status of solar thermal, wind and photo voltaic energy sources were discussed.

The construction of a wind turbine on the roof of the Voc-Tech building and the feasibility of moving it after construction of the new high school were topics of discussion.

"Initial construction of the new school will begin behind the present high school and will be the site of the science and technology center of the new high school," said Lebo.

"On top of that building we hope to build a greenhouse and we're hoping to put the solar thermal and photo voltaics up there, and possibly the wind turbine, we are still working on that as a possibility.

"But in the meantime, just so we can get the curriculum going and use our grant money, we are going to start putting all that out here on the bridge."

Paul Tully, an engineering teacher, was excited about exploring renewable energy.

"I teach an architectural course and we learn about heat-loss and gain, and energy loads on a building and there is a big component in our curriculum for conservation and taking care of the BRIDGE LINK. Tom Cassidy, plumbing instructor at Quincy High School, stands in the area of bridge linking the main building with the Voc-Tech campus, where the renewable energy project will be displayed.

land, utilizing our resources as best we can, etc.," he said.

"And to have a renewable energy project right here in the school fits right into that course for us, and environmental engineering is a huge possibility for our kids.

"Anyone going into that discipline should be thinking along the lines of energy-efficient design.

"Years ago we wouldn't even think of buying a bottle of water but I tell my students that when they reach my age they may be buying containers of clean air."

Honeywell General Manager Kris Sticinski discussed the efforts the city is embarking upon to conserve energy in venues outside of the high school.

"The city soon will be entering into an energy performance contract with Honeywell to do energy retrofit solutions in over 40 buildings in Quincy, including schools, where we will be assessing aging infrastructure, older boilers and outdated lighting systems," he said.

"With these retro-fit solutions, we will be saving energy, and that's how the program will pay for itself."

The school's educators have long felt that the technical school should be integrated somehow with the academic and think that the bridge might be one place to do it.

The idea of heating the bridge with solar came up and Lebo secured a state energy grant for $50,000 and the project was on its way.

Frank Santoro, principal of Quincy High School, applauded this integrating project.

"We're doing our best to get people to understand that Quincy High School is one comprehensive high school with two campuses," he said. "The Voc-Tech or Trade School do not exist anymore. We are one high school.

"With the new high school we will have academics. It is designed to be interdisciplinary, both vocational and academic disciplines will work together on subjects which are relevant and in a meaningful way for kids to learn."

The design firm for the new school has been working with staff at QHS, obtaining input from the science, plumbing, math, electrical and carpentry instructors so to the future needs of the students and staff.

Energy conservation will be built into the system and types of equipment used in the new school will be energy star-rated. All products brought into the school will protect against mold and dust and reduce the impact on airborne pollution.

Quincy High has also received a grant of $17,000 from the Massachusetts Technology Collaboration, which supports what is known as "green schools," healthy and productive learning environments and cost-effective facilities which conserve energy and use renewable resources.

Supporters of the energy project plan to meet soon with representatives of the neighborhood surrounding the high school.

Construction of the science and technology center will extend out to Huntley Road, and Woodward Avenue eventually will be closed. The rear section of the present high school and the Voc-Tech building will be closed.

Movement On The Political Front

Jennifer Logue Running For Councillor At-Large

Jennifer McCauley Logue announces her candidacy for City Council in this year's city elections.

Logue said she would be an independent voice on the council for Quincy residents and taxpayers.

"Quincy residents need and deserve representatives who are willing to speak out on the issues regardless of the political cost," Logue said. "From property taxes and public safety to economic development, I won't shy away from asking the tough questions or making the difficult decisions that must be made if Quincy is to remain a safe, attractive and affordable place to live, work and raise a family."

Logue cited the proposed Quincy Center Concourse as an issue on which she would seek to bring a new perspective to the City Council.

"When it comes to the Quincy Center concourse, it seems as though the City of Quincy is split right down the middle," Logue said. "Our elected officials are all for it and the people are against it."

"I have yet to meet a resident who thinks that building a major roadway straight through Quincy Center is a good idea," Logue said. "Yet the city is moving full steam ahead on a project that, in the short term, will displace some of our most vibrant and successful businesses purely on the hope that this project will someday generate long-term benefits that are by no means guaranteed."

As a councillor-at-large, Logue said that she would push for a review of the project "before the shovels hit the ground and the city reaches a point of no return on an idea that was ill-conceived when it was first proposed nearly 40 years ago."

A long-time community activist, Logue was appointed by Mayor William Phelan to serve on the Quincy Tourism Advisory Council in 2002 before being selected in 2004 as the funding executive director of Discover Quincy, the city's non-profit tourism agency.

In that role, Logue developed and implemented the city's first comprehensive marketing plan for promoting Quincy's historic sites and attractions. In addition to conducting a public relations campaign, developing visitor guides and advertisements, and organizing special events, Logue worked collaboratively with local arts and cultural leaders to secure funding for Quincy's tourism efforts. She also spearheaded Quincy's involvement in the Cultural Coast, a joint tourism initiative with Plymouth, the Cape and Islands.

"As executive director of Discover Quincy, I worked hard to establish productive, mutually beneficial partnerships with other cities and towns as well as state and federal officials," Logue said.

"As a councillor-at-large,

I'll draw on this experience to ensure that Quincy maintains the good working relationships needed between our local government and state and federal officials to ensure that such projects as the marsh reclamation initiative and the much-needed Crown Colony on-ramp are successfully completed."

Born and raised in Quincy, Logue grew up in Houghs Neck and attended Quincy Public Schools. In 1984, she graduated from North Quincy High School where she was a member of the National Honor Society. In 1988, she graduated magna cum laude from American University with a degree in Journalism.

In addition to serving on the Quincy Tourism Advisory Council, her community service includes serving on the Mayor's Leadership Council on Homelessness and on the Quincy High School Siting Commission charged with selecting the location for the new Quincy High School. A past president of the Quincy Lions Club, Logue served as Registrar of Voters from 2003-2006.

Logue, 40, is a senior publicist for public broadcaster WGBH where she is a member of the Communication Workers of America Local 1300, a division of the AFL-CIO.

Logue and her husband, David, live in Wollaston with their three children: Bryan, a senior at North Quincy High School; Samantha, a freshman at North and Katie, a first-grader at Beechwood Knoll.

Nick Puleo Candidate For School Committee

Ward 5 Community Association president Nick Puleo announced his candidacy for school committee in the November City election.

"In order to stay competitive in the modern work, children need 21st century skills," Puleo said. "We need to make the investment now to ensure a brighter future for Quincy's kids. I am very excited by the opportunities that are within our reach."

Puleo said that he plans to meet with parents, teachers and other residents in the coming weeks. The campaign has launched a website, www.nickpuleo.com to help reach out to residents.

"Everyone in this community should have a vested interest in the success of our schools," Puleo said. "The new Quincy High School has dominated the discussion, and it is clearly important. But we cannot afford to lose sight of what is going on in the classroom. I want to broaden the dialogue and bring more focus to improving quality."

Puleo is working as a Senior Budget Analyst for the Massachusetts Senate Committee on Ways and Means. He was hired to shape the state's human services funding system, primarily in programs that aid children, veterans, and the elderly. In the past state fiscal year, he was responsible for the oversight of over $3.2 billion in funding.

During his time at the Committee, Puleo has identified millions of dollars in cost savings and has found new ways to bring federal funding into the state. He said he plans to use these skills to bring more money to Quincy's schools.

"With state mandates, upcoming construction projects, ongoing teacher negotiations, and an ever-tightening budget, our school system is facing substantial pressure," Puleo said. "The school committee needs a finance expert to ensure that funding is available for a quality, well-rounded curriculum. I have the knowledge and the skill to make this happen."

Puleo organized the "Taste of Ward 5" event last year. In addition, he is a volunteer Cub Scout leader for Pack 42 at St. John's in Quincy and a Boy Scout leader for Troop 5 at St. Agatha's in Milton.

A graduate of Northeastern University, he studied Political Science and History and earned magna cum laude honors. He is also a graduate of Boston College High School.

Puleo was born and raised in Quincy. He and his wife, Sarah, live on Phillips Street in Wollaston.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On April 12, 1633, the inquisition of physicist and astronomer Galileo Galilei for holding the heretical belief that the Earth revolves around the Sun begins. Galileo agreed not to teach the heresy anymore and spent the rest of his life under house arrest. It took more than 300 years for the Church to admit that Galileo was right and to clear his name of heresy.

• On April 9, 1859, a 23-year-old Missouri youth named Samuel Langhorne Clemens receives his steamboat pilot's license. During his time as a pilot, he picked up the term "Mark Twain," a boatman's call noting that the river was only two fathoms deep, the minimum depth for safe navigation. In 1861 he wrote a humorous travel letter signed by "Mark Twain" and continued to use the pseudonym for nearly 50 years.

• On April 15, 1924, Rand McNally releases its first comprehensive road atlas. Today Rand McNally is the world's largest maker of atlases in print and electronic media.

• On April 10, 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt establishes the Civilian Conservation Corps, a federally funded organization that put Americans to work on conservation projects during the Great Depression. From 1933 to 1942, the CCC employed more than 3 million men.

• On April 11, 1945, the American Third Army liberates the Buchenwald concentration camp, near Weimar, Germany. Among those saved by the Americans was Elie Wiesel, who would go on to win the Nobel Peace Prize in 1986.

• On April 14, 1975, the American airlift of Vietnamese orphans to the United States ends after 2,600 children are transported to America. Operation Baby Lift was initiated to bring South Vietnamese orphans to the United States for adoption by American parents.

• On April 13, 1966, the cast of the popular "The Andy Griffith Show" is reunited for a one-time television special. "The Andy Griffith Show" ran from 1960 to 1968.

Perfect Anchor For FR Rotary

Well, there is an anchor – a perfect one – available as a fitting nautical memento at the Fore River Bridge rotary and tribute to Quincy's great shipbuilding history.

And, it's not somewhere miles away out of state. It's right here, just 1,000 feet or so from the rotary and the new flagpole.

It's in the old Fore River Shipyard on a dock next to the USS Salem Naval Shipbuilding Museum.

This particular anchor couldn't be more appropriate. It belonged to the USS Des Moines, sister ship of the Salem. And, like the Salem, was built here at the shipyard.

Mike Condon, executive director of the USS Salem museum is offering the anchor to the city for placement at the rotary.

Condon last August obtained the Des Moines portside anchor—an estimated 22,500 thousands pounds and some 10 feet tall, as an artifact for the museum. And with the thought it might some day be placed at the rotary.

He took possession of it with the blessing and help of the Navy and a lot of cooperation from others who firmly believe it belongs in Quincy as a symbol of the shipyard and workers who built some of the great ships of World War II.

Condon rescued the anchor before the Des Moines—a heavy cruiser like the Salem—was moved from the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard to Brownsville, Texas to be scrapped.

Condon contacted Rod Spear, of the Navy's Ship Material Donation Manager of the Inactive Ships Office, in Washington, D.C. who helped secure the anchor for him. Free!

They got the use of a crane to remove the anchor from the Des Moines and store it in the City of Philadelphia's storage yard at the shipyard. Free!

The manager of the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard helped get permission for the storage in the city's portion of the shipyard. Free!

That office also put Condon in contact with a crane company that services the shipyard. The company lifted the anchor from the Des Moines and moved it to the storage area. Free!

The crane company later also placed the anchor on a trailer truck bed to be transported to Quincy. Free!

J.A. Miara Transportation of Wilmington provided the truck service from Philadelphia to Quincy. Free!

Middlesex Corporation, who built the new Fore River Bridge, removed the anchor from the truck bed and is storing it next to the USS Salem. Free!

And Middlesex Corporation and Jay Cashman are offering to move the anchor and place it at the rotary. Free!

"All of these people who did what they did to get the anchor to Quincy did it as an act of love for the Navy and Quincy's know-how shipbuilding reputation," says Condon.

The new 50-foot flagpole and the anchor would make an appropriate match at the rotary in tribute to the talented workers at the Fore River Shipyard who turned out some of the great fighting ships that helped win World War II. Ships such as the aircraft carrier USS Lexington, the battleship USS Massachusetts, the cruisers USS Quincy and USS Boston, and those destroyers.

And after the war, Fore River built the cruiser USS Long Beach, the first nuclear powered surface ship and the second, the frigate USS Bainbridge. And the Apollo ships that helped man get to the moon. Not to mention those beautiful luxury liners.

Condon is offering the anchor to the city. Free!

We hope Mayor William Phelan accepts it as a lasting link and tribute to the Fore River Shipyard and the workers who made Quincy the "Muscle in Uncle Sam's Navy Arm."

Amusement Safety Poster Contest Underway At DPS

The State Department of Public Safety (DPS) is accepting entries for the 2007 Amusement Safety Poster Contest, open to youngsters in Grades 1 through 6 in public, private and home-schooled programs and recreation centers.

Posters will be judged in three groups: Group One for students in the first and second grades; Group Two for those in the third and fourth grades; and Group Three for the fifth and sixth grades.

Prizes will include a $1,000 US Saving Bonds for the overall winner, a $500 bond for each of the group winners, a $250 bond for each of the second place winners, a $100 bond for third place, $50 for fourth place and $25 for fifth place in each group.

Selected posters will be included in the 2008 Amusement Safety Awareness Calendar produced by the DPS.

The DPS has jurisdiction over licenses and permits for amusement devices in amusement parks and carnivals as well as the large and small inflatables frequently rented for town fairs and private parties.

The contest is used to promote safety and develop an understanding among children of the need to obey the rules and play safe when they ride on amusements.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 real photo postcard showing the Fore River Railroad's new ALCO 0-6-0 steam powered switching engine. It was built at the American Locomotive Company plant in Schenectady, N.Y. The founder of the Fore River Shipyard, Thomas Watson, had built the shipyard's railroad in 1903 to carry shipbuilding materials from the Old Colony Railroad's Greenbush Line in Braintree to the Fore River waterfront at Hayward's Creek. It was a private railroad until Bethlehem Steel bought the yard in 1919 and separately incorporated the railroad and its right-of-way as a short haul common carrier. During World War II, the railroad's steam locomotives transported almost a million tons of shipbuilding materials to build US Navy ships. After the war, diesels replaced the steam locomotives. And in 1963, the railroad and the shipyard were sold to General Dynamics. The MWRA purchased both properties in 1987 and now leases the 2.7-mile railroad right-of-way to Fore River Transportation, a Twin Rivers Technologies company. Long before Watson opened his shipyard an earlier railroad ran along here. It had been built in the 1850s to carry granite from the nearby Wendall Quarry to Hayward's Creek. QHA Director Responds To Koch Criticism

Mayoral challenger, Tommy Koch criticizes the Quincy Housing Authority's response to the hot water system failure at Tobin Towers.

That system, original to the building is more than 30 years old. It has failed three times in the past 15 years. Each time, heating coils and pumps were repaired rather than be replaced.

On Saturday, December 23, 2006, the system once again failed. QHA staff gave up a Christmas holiday weekend day, were called in, and worked up to twelve hours to obtain and connect a temporary hot water heater on an emergency basis to insure the comfort of our residents. Rather than criticize their efforts, I would like to publicly praise Dave Towers, Paul Radzik, Tom Gorman and Dave Ferris.

The new hot water system, in final design for Tobin Towers, will be paid for by a grant from the Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD) and is expected to cost a quarter million dollars.

This new energy efficient gas hot water system will include two heaters and water tanks. This will provide system redundancy so that one burner and tank can continue in operation while the other undergoes routine maintenance.

This will result in greater system reliability. It is expected to reduce utility consumption by $20,000 annually. With reduced maintenance costs factored in, it is expected to pay for itself with ten years.

DHCD understands the pressing need to complete this project as quickly as possible. The staff resources committed and the fast track assigned to their design staff will shave months off of the usual design, bid, and construction schedule mandated by state law.

In the meantime, QHA staff monitors water temperatures daily. The emergency heater, located in our Clay Street parking lot, is regularly serviced.

We understand that our residents have been inconvenienced during time of extreme cold or high demand. However, water temperatures have continuously exceeded the requirements of the state sanitary code.

On two occasions when the temporary boiler shut down, QHA staff and contractors have responded and made necessary adjustments. System down time has not exceeded several hours.

Under the direction of the Quincy Housing Authority Board, the majority of whom Mr. Koch correctly points out were appointed by Mayor Phelan, a corrective action plan was submitted to the Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD) in August, 2005.

Part of that plan called for greater cooperation and communication between QHA staff and DHCD. While many housing officials across the state have criticized DHCD for level funding operating subsidies for four years, QHA has worked cooperatively with DHCD to identify and prioritize capital needs.

As a result of our efforts, a QHA owned property located in Wollaston/Montclair, housing disabled residents has been transformed from an eye sore into a property praised by neighbors. A QHA owned building, housing a daycare center, has a new roof and heating system. One hundred residential buildings, which house 400 families in Snug Harbor, have new roofs. These cooperative efforts have brought several million dollars of capital improvements to QHA properties.

In the two years since being appointed Executive Director of the Quincy Housing Authority, I've come to know personally many of the wonderful people living in our buildings. I am extremely grateful for the support of our Board of Commissioners, Mayor Phelan and the members of his administration who have always been supportive of our efforts on behalf of public housing residents within the city.

The Quincy Housing Authority takes its responsibilities to its residents seriously and welcomes the opportunity to update your readers of the improvements to its operations.

Council Looking At Housing Authority Appointment Power

By FRANK McCAULEY

A special committee of the city council will meet to discuss a recommendation that would in effect, make the council the appointing authority for the members of the Quincy Housing Authority.

This Week
1977
30 Years Ago

One recommended appointment by Mayor Joseph LaRaia was rejected while a second recommendation was virtually ignored.

The recommendation sprang from the investigations of a council sub-committee chaired by Councillor Daniel G. Raymond, along with Councillors Dennis Harrington and John J. Lydon, Jr.

A screening committee of nine members would be set up to examine qualifications of applicants and make recommendations to mayor.

SHIPYARD EYES DESTROYER CONTRACTS

The Quincy Shipbuilding Division of General Dynamics will bid on a Navy contract to build new DDG-47 guided missile destroyers after plans for the design and an analysis of the first destroyer awarded in a $1 million naval contract are completed in 10 or 11 months.

"We are hoping for five or six the ships," said Alex Piranian, public relations director.

BROWNELL BILL TO PREVENT QUINCY BAY FILLING APPROVED

The Massachusetts House of Representatives has approved a bill sponsored by Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) that would prevent the filling of 28 acres of Quincy Bay in order to make the Nut Island Sewerage Treatment Plant a secondary treatment facility.

Brownell said the intent of the bill was to force the Environmental Protection Agency to focus on Deer Island as the site for the secondary treatment facility.

The Opposite Of Love Is Indifference, Not Hate

The opposite of love is not hate, it is indifference.

While I am convinced of the goodwill of the City's Licensing Board, I must say that they have proved themselves to be indifferent to the needs and desires of the great majority of the property owners in the neighborhood of the West Elm Variety store, the congregations of both Union Congregational Church and the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, Eastern Nazarene College and our Ward Five Councillor, Mr. Doug Gutro.

By granting a beer and wine license to the West Elm

Variety store, they have helped ruin what was once a nice "Mom and Pop" variety store, a place we could send our children.

Everybody knows how good beer and wine is for you. You can ask anyone who attends our Friday night AA group.

Did Quincy really need another outlet for alcohol? The City's Licensing Board voted 3 to 1 to lower the quality of life for the West Elm Avenue community and, by extension, the quality of life for us all.

Six Local Artists Learning Clay Portrait Sculpture

Quincy can now boast six budding sculptors who are "progressing magnificently," in their new art form, according to their instructor, award-winning sculptor Dan Myers of the Quincy Art Association.

Myers is nearly finished teaching his latest 8-week intensive course in realistic clay portrait sculpture to the six local residents, Julie Poorman, Marilyn Reisberg, Fred Costello, Karen Giovaniello, Mridu Gupta and Rangana Guha.

"Never have so few learned so much so fast," reports Myers of his current students at the Quincy Art Association. In fact, Myers expects that these students will be more than ready to show their skills as 3-D artists at future Quincy Art Festivals.

During the classes, students focus on model Donna Teed who volunteered to be the subject for the students first try at sculpting.

Students are expected to create a realistic likeness of Teed after studying her face, the architecture of the skull and individual features such as hair, neck and shoulders. Myers guides them through every step and offers a wide range of material on techniques, as well as detailed digital photos of the subject from every angle. He recommends books and articles on contemporary realistic sculpture.

"The ultimate goal is to give beginning sculpture students the confidence to sculpt portraits of their own loved ones and subjects close to their hearts," according to Myers.

At the last classes, the students will hollow out their clay portrait busts and fire them to permanent terracotta. They will then select their own choice of patina or surface treatment.

Dan Myers is a long-time member of the QAA with over eight first-place awards in sculpture from the Quincy Arts Association and Thomas Crane Library show. He had a one-man show at the Crane Library in 2006 and, more recently, at the Art Treasure Gallery in Weymouth.

A member of the National Sculpture Society, Crane is also an alumnus and exhibitor at the renowned Lyme Academy of fine Arts in Old Lyme CT.

Wollaston, Houghs Neck, Squantum Garden Clubs Joint Meeting April 19

The Wollaston Garden Club will host a joint meeting with the Squantum and Houghs Neck Garden Clubs on Thursday, April 19 in the Wollaston Congregational Church.

The featured speaker, Norma Jane Langford, will offer a presentation entitled, "Sassy, Classy Grasses."

In addition, the Wollaston Club has scheduled its annual plant sale on Saturday, May 19 from 9 a.m. to Noon at Wollaston Congregational Church.

Cynthia

Antonopolous is coordinating the sale.

At its March meeting, Jill Carter, Senior Associate at Boston's Museum of Fine Arts, outlined the museum's 31-year-old program entitled, "Art in Bloom."

Through that program, garden club members use a floral arrangement to interpret an art object from the museum's collection. The art object is chosen and assigned by the museum's staff

Only garden clubs recognized by the Garden Club

Federation of Massachusetts may participate in the "Art in Bloom" program. Once approved, each club selects two members to represent them in the "Art in Bloom" program. This year, Cynthia Antonopolous and Pat Artis will represent the Wollaston Garden Club.

Anita Fasano served as hostess with the aid of volunteers. Liz Adamson provided the floral arrangement for the meeting. Contact Jan Clifford at 617-471-4635 for additional information.

Elizabeth Bloomer Recognized For Fight Against Child Labor

Elizabeth Bloomer, who rose from Broad Meadows Middle School to fame as a child labor activist, will be recognized Sunday, April 22, at 2 p.m. at a public reception at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

The occasion is publication of a biography of Elizabeth, entitled Elizabeth Bloomer: Child Labor Activist, by Jennifer Reed, part of a series called "Young Heroes," that describes her work and encourages all kids to speak out for social change.

It began for Elizabeth in 1994 when Iqbal Masih, a 12-year-old former slave ELIZABETH BLOOMER from Pakistan, visited the Broad Meadows School to speak to kids his age about his hopes for freedom and education for youngsters everywhere.

Five months after his visit to Quincy, he was shot and killed in Pakistan, probably for speaking out against child slavery.

Elizabeth and her classmates in Ron Adams' class at Broad Meadows took up Iqbal's fight and raised $147,000 to build a school in Pakistan in his memory. "We're his voice," Elizabeth said.

Since that time, Elizabeth has continued to work relentlessly on behalf of human rights, speaking before the United Nations and the U.S. Congress and lobbying President Clinton to sign an international treaty against child labor.

Elizabeth, now a senior at Holy Cross College in Worcester, will speak about her work at the reception and copies of her biography will be available for sale, provided by Barnes & Noble of Braintree.

Quincy Girls Scouts Celebrate 90th Anniversary

Quincy Girl Scouts recently kicked off festivities marking its 90th birthday with a ceremony and antique uniform fashion show at the Quincy Historical Society.

Dr. Edward Fitzgerald of the Quincy Historical Society has worked with Quincy Girl Scouts in this regard and has allowed the group to maintain a wonderful display of memorabilia spanning 90 years at the historical society which will remain on display for the public to view through the month of April.

"As the Coordinator of Quincy Girl Scouts, I am proud of the work that is being done with our girls throughout the community. We currently have nearly 30 troops in the city with nearly 360 active girls and nearly 150 adult volunteers," said Ilda O'Connor, Quincy Girl Scout Coordinator.

Some 112 girls and 30 volunteers participated in the celebration event.

As part of the ceremony, Senior Girl Scout, Emily Histen of troop 4202, was presented with her Silver Award. This prestigious award is the second highest award earned by a Girl Scout for a service to her community. Emily worked with the Quincy Crisis Center for months and updated their records and helped deal with their food shortage by holding multiple food drives.

Quincy Girl Scouts also has a display of memorabilia spanning many decades at the Adams Shore Branch library for the next several weeks. Festivities and celebrations will continue during the upcoming months.

Another recent event, known as International Thinking Day, focused on Girl Scouts around the world with country displays and food samples from around the world.

ANTIQUE UNIFORMS are featured during the festivities. AvalonBay Withdraws Permit For 146 Units Off Falls Boulevard

By LAURA GRIFFIN

AvalonBay Communities, Inc. Monday withdrew its application for a Special Permit to build 146 units on 14 acres off Falls Boulevard, Quincy Point.

Now, that $10 million property will be on the first-round list for consideration as Open Space by the Community Preservation Committee as both the mayor and the City Council will recommend that the AvalonBay property be reviewed by the Committee.

The proposed project would have been accessed through AvalonBay's nearby 171-unit complex completed in 2002. However, that access could not have been approved without a second Special Permit, according to legal opinions presented March 26 to the City Council.

AvalonBay chose to withdraw its application through a letter dated April 9 from its attorney Robert J. Fleming.

Acting as the city's Special Permit Granting Authority, the City Council unanimously approved the developer's withdrawal without prejudice.

Such action designated as "without prejudice" could allow AvalonBay to refile within two years.

Before the vote on the permit, Fleming told the City Council, "We spent the last three years working on this project." Fleming then cited the developer's excellent reputation and their other successful projects in Quincy. "They've had a wonderful record in our city. I would have liked to fight right to the end."

"The mayor opposed this from the start," Fleming said. However, the property will now be considered by the Conservation Preservation Committee (CPC) due to a motion initiated by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and supported in a statement issued April 10 by Mayor William Phelan who wants the property designated as "Open Space."

After the meeting, Bill McLaughlin, senior vice president of AvalonBay, said that the property is valued at roughly $10 million.

The council accepted Raymondi's motion to recommend the AvalonBay parcel to the Conservation Preservation Committee but only after considerable debate and only after the wording was rephrased and limited by Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and Councillor John Keenan.

Raymondi's motion originally directed the mayor, City Council and CPC to negotiate for the purchase of the property immediately or "forthwith." However, several councillors objected to having the Falls Boulevard property seemingly pushed to the head of the CPC list.

Raymondi said he wanted to get the AvalonBay property "in on the first wave of parcels, one of many. It doesn't mandate anything."

"This is one of the problems we're going to run into," Keenan said, noting that several properties across the city are in imminent danger of being developed and are being considered for preservation while the CPC has a limited amount of money.

On Tuesday, Ward 4

Councillor Jay Davis, a member of the Preservation Committee, estimated that the city's Conservation Preservation Committee expects a little more than $1 million from city taxpayers this year along with a matching grant of $1 million from the state's conservation trust.

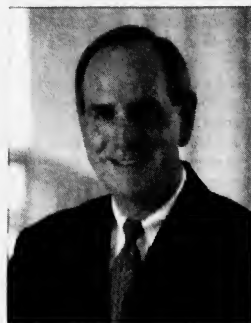

Both Keenan and Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly cited the "Cobblestone" project on Sea Street where the land has been considered a top choice for the city's conservation trust project. Keenan said the committee needs to have a variety of choices.

Raymondi countered that there was "no mandate here" in his motion that required the Committee to choose AvalonBay's acreage. He said of the CPC Committee, "You can't just give them one parcel."

Council President Douglas Gutro agreed, "I want this on the table for the Community Preservation Committee to consider."

Raymondi's four part motion, also, included recommendations by the City Council that the Traffic Department, the Commissioner of Public Works and the mayor take whatever measures are required to achieve the following:

- Accept Falls Boulevard as a public way
 - Analyze the safety and traffic conditions at the intersection of Falls Boulevard and Quincy Avenue and improve such conditions
 - Develop an emergency access road on city-owned property from Falls Boulevard to Quincy Avenue.
- Councillors supported the full motion.

UMass Boston:

An Uncommon Campus That Provides Common Ground

A springtime greeting from the campus of UMass Boston. I hope you are enjoying, as I am, the return of warm weather and outdoor activities.

I'm pleased to tell you that Massachusetts Governor Deval Patrick will deliver the keynote address at our 39th commencement ceremony on Friday, June 1, when nearly 2,800 undergraduate and graduate students will receive their degrees. Governor Patrick will be recognized for his leadership at the top levels of business, government, and the nonprofit sector. We look forward to welcoming Governor Patrick back to our campus, where his presence will honor our new graduates on this important day in their lives. Other commencement honorees will be announced at a later date.

The governor is a fitting choice to address our graduates. He has made finding common ground a priority for his administration and the Commonwealth. A widely held view is that our campus is itself an indispensable common ground—a place where the interests of the city and the region are researched and debated along with our own; where elected officials, community groups, business leaders, and citizens come together to share ideas about public affairs; and where these efforts are celebrated and rewarded in a very visible manner.

At UMass Boston, common ground is achieved in different ways and with different resources. One of those resources is our state-of-the-art Campus Center, which offers a magnificent setting for university-related activities and events of interest to the general public. On April 11, for example, the Campus Center will be the site of a special reception—open to all—honoring "Brushstroke Group," a new Arts on the Point sculpture by Roy Lichtenstein, a founding father of American pop art. The sculpture is currently on display on the Campus Center lawn.

Finding common ground need not be a strictly local undertaking, however, as members of the UMass Boston community have shown. The twenty-two students in a course taught by longtime Asian American Studies instructor James Bui—a former officer of the Dorchester-based community-development firm Viet-AID, and currently Gulf Coast Regional Director for the National Alliance of Vietnamese American Service Agencies—recently traveled to Louisiana and Mississippi to help in the rebuilding of the Vietnamese communities there.

Clearly, the spirit of cooperation and shared purpose that gives rise to common ground is alive and well at UMass Boston. If you have questions about any university activity or event, please call Gail Hobin, Assistant Vice Chancellor for Community Relations, at 617-287-5310, or visit us online at HYPERLINK "http://www.umb.edu" www.umb.edu.

Global Warming In Spotlight Saturday

Global warming will be in the spotlight Saturday, April 14, when the nation kicks off Earth Week with a series of rallies designed to press Congress for legislation to combat climate change.

The Quincy Environmental Network (QEN) will start the day with a free tour of the solar panels on the roof of North Quincy High School at 12 noon.

"The 1350 plus events in cities across the country April 14 are meant to send a clear signal to Congress that citizens are serious and feel a sense of urgency about global warming," said Ward 3 City Councillor Kevin Coughlin.

After the tour, the group will travel via public transportation to join similar groups from other communities in a rally on Boston Common.

Participants will form a human chain to show the anticipated location of the waterfront by the year 2050 if steps are not taken soon to curb human disposal of carbon into the atmosphere.

The QEN group will meet in the front lobby of North Quincy High School to visit the rooftop and learn about Quincy's efforts to curb climate change and show support for similar legislation.

After 26 Years, New Owners For Finian's Pub

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

It was once known as the "Oyster House" but for the past 26 years it was the popular restaurant Finian's Pub at 1657 Hancock St. owned by Jim Hession.

Although there are new owners, the name will remain the same.

On Tuesday, the License Board granted a common victualer, all alcoholic license to new owners Eleftherios Georgiadis and Virginia Spyridopoulos. They also received a cabaret license.

Atty. Jon D. Aieda, representing the new owners said both have had several years experience in the restaurant business with establishments both in Boston and Mattapan.

Aieda said the new owners are "looking forward to taking over" since it is a "great location" and said they will continue the restaurant's "great tradition."

He added that the menu will remain the same and that they plan to keep all of the present employees.

Chairman Joseph Shea said he can't remember that Hession and Finian's ever had "anything negative said about the them."

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele said Hession was a "great owner" had a good reputation, and always kept the front of the building beautiful with "flowers and flower boxes."

Aieda said that no renovations are planned and that the restaurant will open under new management as soon as they receive approval from the Alcohol Beverage Control Commission. (ABCC).

Quincy Named 'Tree City USA' For 11th Consecutive Year

The National Arbor Day Foundation has recognized Quincy as a "Tree City USA" for the 11th consecutive year.

The designation is awarded to communities that plant new trees and maintain their urban forests.

"We understand that the quality of Quincy's neighborhoods is due in large part to our tree-lined streets," said Mayor William Phelan. "For the first-time in recent memory, we included a line-item in our City budget for the planting of new trees. I thank the Council for their support and hope we can continue to work together to keep our neighborhoods looking great."

Tree planting and maintenance were issues raised through the City's "Neighborhoods First!" surveys. The City initiated a tree-planting contract last fall that will continue into the spring.

"Trees in our cities and towns help clean the air, moderate temperature and bring mature into our daily lives," said John Rosenow, President of the National Arbor Day Foundation. "Tree City USA designation recognizes the work of elected officials, staff and citizens who plant and care for the community forest."

The Tree USA program is sponsored by The National Arbor Day Foundation in cooperation with the National Association of State Foresters and the USDA Forest Service.

FOOT NOTES

Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Surgery
Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

FOOT FACTS

The foot is a complicated structure composed of 26 bones, 33 joints, 107 ligaments, and 19 muscles and tendons. Both feet account for 25% of all the body's bones. About 75% of Americans will experience some foot health issue in their lifetimes, and women are four times more likely than men to have foot troubles. The feet also tend to mirror a person's general health. Systemic diseases such as arthritis, diabetes, and nerve and circulatory disorders often first make themselves known in the feet. Very few people inherit foot problems. Most foot problems are the result of neglect and improper foot care. General wear and tear also plays a role, which is why older individuals have more foot challenges.

The components of the foot are designed to work together, sharing the tremendous pressures of day-to-day living. When they don't work properly, though, it can cause pain and other troubles for the rest of the body, and it's time to get help. We are committed to taking care of those 26 bones, 33 joints, 107 ligaments, and 19 muscles and tendons we mentioned above, and we offer comprehensive foot care at 999 North Main Street, Randolph, in the MEDICAL OFFICE BUILDING. Office hours are also available at Quincy Medical Center and Milton Medical Building, Suite 221. Please call 781-986-3668 for an appointment.

HINT: Ankle sprains and strains are the most common foot injury.

Registration Open For Lions Run/Walk For Sight

Registrations are now being accepted for the 10th annual Quincy Lions Club Run/Walk for Sight, to be held Saturday, April 21 at Pageant Field.

Those who wish to pre-register for the 5K race may do so online at www.quincylions.org. Participants may also pre-register by mailing a check payable to Quincy Lions Club to: Quincy Lions Club, P.O. Box 27, Quincy, MA 02170. Attn: Run/Walk. Registrants should include their name, address and age (for race categories). The registration fee is $20 for adults ($17 for those who pre-register) and $5 for the children's 1K race.

Day-of-race registration will begin at 9 a.m., followed by the children's 1K race at 10:30 a.m. The adult 5K run/walk-which is on a course certified by U.S. Track & Field-begins at 11 a.m.

Prizes will be awarded to race winners in a number of categories, and the first 200 registrants will receive a free race T-shirt.

Following the race, the Outback Steakhouse will provide a barbecue buffet luncheon for all participants. The event also will feature a DJ, prize raffles and the Lions Club Eyemobile, which will provide free vision, hearing and blood pressure screenings to attendees.

"The Run/Walk for Sight is a fun event for the whole family," said Lions Club President Elaine duJardin, who noted that sponsors of this year's Run/Walk include the Outback Steakhouse, Eastern Bank Charitable Foundation, Cerebral Palsy-Fiscal Intermediary and numerous local businesses.

"The local community has been very supportive of the Lions Club's efforts to help blind and visually impaired individuals, and we hope everyone will come out and enjoy this fun and worthwhile event," she said.

Proceeds from the Run/Walk benefit eye research and the Quincy Lions Club's community service activities, including providing free eye exams and free eyeglasses for local residents in need, offering free vision and health screenings, providing college scholarships to local high school students and more.

homeowners. Mariano warned that legislators will likely slash the water and sewer rate relief monies.

In the past, state legislators earmarked as much as $25 million to pay portions of the Metropolitan Water Resource Authority (MWRA) debt, which is otherwise, paid through water and sewer bills in the MWRA region. That's not likely to be the case this year.

"Rate relief will probably be less than last year," said Mariano who called the reduction "a hit directly to homeowners. That's a hard one to take."

The city's legislators and councillors then explored potential income sources for the state from casinos to hotel and meals tax as well as savings through the state health insurance program.

Morrissey believes that gaming is a likely income source in the future.

While it's not the best avenue, it will "keep revenue in the Commonwealth," Morrissey said. He quoted sources indicating that more people and more cars from Massachusetts visit Connecticut casinos than from any other state, including Connecticut.

"We're going to have to come to grips with it. We're surrounded by it," said Morrissey who also pointed out that two Massachusetts Wompanog tribes (Gay Head and Mashpee) are already laying the groundwork for gambling outlets. State revenues would be in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

However, councillors and legislators did discuss meals and hotel taxes as well as a tax on telephone poles.

Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis described his recent trip to Florida and said that taxing the tourist is one of the smartest routes to revenue.

"We are looking for more balanced ways to increase revenues," Mariano said, adding, "It's going to come from the growth of jobs. We can't tax our way out of this."

As for new industry, Mariano said that the state will have to change its image. "We're trying to attract industry."

Mariano said he's been meeting with business leaders from across the country while exploring options for the Fore River property.

"They (business leaders) are deathly afraid of Massachusetts. Some years, we are pro-business; some years, we're not."

Mariano cited the state's missteps on movie production that damaged its image. "We could be the Culver City of the East."

As for saving on local expenditures, Mariano outlined the process whereby a city or town could join the state's group health insurance program (G.I.C.). Once membership is approved, a city or town could save 20% to 25% of its employee health insurance costs.

In order to join, Mariano said that every union in the city must agree to join the state program by a 70% majority vote. Then the city council and mayor must approve.

However, Mariano cautioned, "The G.I.C. plan is cheaper and it's cheaper for a reason. There are fewer things in it. It comes at a price." Mariano described his own experience when his health insurance was downsized and concluded, "There is no magic bullet."

Councillors also raised issues such as the completion of the Wollaston Beach project, the fire truck for Rescue One, and the commuter rail.

Council President Doug Gutro of Ward 5 and Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee asked for a status report on the Wollaston Beach rehabilitation.

Morrissey said the current contractor for Wollaston Beach is already a week and a half behind this spring and he's likely not to win a state contract again. However, he said that there is progress.

"We check weekly. We don't wait it done," said Morrissey.

Councillors thanked the legislators for their efforts on behalf of the city, in particular, their efforts in winning the debt relief for Quincy Medical Center.

Police Union Protests Transfer From Personnel Account

Transferring $46,500 from the police personnel account to Current Expenses is "yet another slap in the face" to the city's 150 plus patrol officers, according to the two top officers of the Quincy police patrolmen's union.

Despite the protest, the City Council this week officially approved the transfer by an 8-1 vote, the same vote taken on March 26 when the Finance Committee approved the transfer.

"We register our vehement protest to the request of Chief Crowley to transfer $46,500 from the police personnel account (manpower) to a shadowy, vague description that includes 'professional services,'" wrote Bruce Tait and Terrence Downing, president and vice-president, respectively, of the Quincy Police Officers' Association, in a letter to Ward 2 Councillor Daniel G. Raymond.

The patrolmen's union has repeatedly called for chief Crowley's ouster.

In their letter dated March 27, Tait and Donovan asked City Councillors to reject Police Chief Robert Crowley's request for a transfer of funds from the Personnel Account. The Finance Committee had approved the transfer on March 26 but the City Council scheduled the official vote this week.

Just prior to the Council's official vote on the transfer, Raymond read the union's March 27 letter to his fellow Councillors. Raymond opposed the transfer of funds. In both instances, Raymond said that the funds could be transferred from the city's Free Cash account.

Tait and Downing also described their disappointment in the general apathy of most of the city council concerning the dangerous staffing levels we are forced to work under."

Raymond also outlined an incident in which he said that police failed to arrest a suspect because there were not enough officers on duty to execute the transfer of the individual.

Councillors asked Raymond to provide documentation of the incident at the next Public Safety meeting.

LICENSE BOARD BRIEFS

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

• Allowed a change of managers at Wollaston Supreme Liquors, 615 Hancock St. from Mary O'Connell to Steven Wilkinson.

• Continued until April 24 a request from Alfredo's, 75 Franklin St. for a change of manager from Ekaterini Koumentakos to John Hughes, Jr. Chairman Joseph Shea read a letter from Christian Hauffler, Jr. counsel for Koumentakos. Hauffler asked for a continuation because he was unable to be present at Tuesday's meeting.

• Continued a hearing regarding the transfer of stock, new officers and directors and a change of manager at Honey Cafe, Inc., 217 Quincy Ave. Andrea Kor, Paralegal.

• Granted a beer and wine license to Suresh Chabria, doing business as Chab's Daily Mart, 291 Quincy Ave. Atty. Stephen J. McGrath, counsel for Chabria said he has been in that location for more than 20 years and known as "law abiding." The vote was unanimous.

• Resolved a hearing regarding complaints about Furnace Brook Golf Club, Summit Ave. Shea said the problem had been solved with some "physical changes," and added they "look forward to a successful year."

• Continued until April 24 a hearing regarding a request of Right Deal, Inc. 451 Quincy Ave., Antwane Ahelo, manager for a Motor II, Used Car License. The property is owned by Harvey Kertzman. The board questioned the amount of used cars on the property.

• Continued until May 1 a hearing regarding violations at Sarsfield's, 1464 Hancock St. March 18 for the sale or delivery to an intoxicated person.

• Granted a one day permit to Kathleen Dolaher, for a Dog Romp at Faxon Park from 1 to 3 p.m. April 29. Hot dogs and burgers will be served. The dogs have to be four months or older and already have had their vaccinations.

owners of the property at 271 Sea Street, known as the "Cobblestone" property.

"We have already undertaken the largest open space acquisition effort in City history with the hotel/motel tax money three years ago," Phelan said. "Now we have a golden opportunity to add to our open space inventory and protect our local environment with the community preservation funds. Our city continues to make significant improvements to the quality of life in our great city."

Locations Studied For City's First Dog Park

Approximately 100 people showed up to discuss Mayor William Phelan's efforts to create the city's first dog park.

The meeting was held last week at the Park and Recreation Complex.

Phelan issued a survey to all licensed dog owners, soliciting their input on locations, amenities, and all other issues surrounding a dog park. Close to 500 surveys were returned.

"I want to thank all the dog owners that took the time to respond to the survey and/or attend the meeting," said Phelan. "By working together we can best meet the needs of our city's 3,000 plus dog owners and their dogs. I am hopeful that we will have a new facility ready for this summer."

A working group of dog owners will continue to meet with the staff of the mayor's office and the Park Department to identify specific locations and design the park areas.

"The new dog park(s) will also benefit other park users, especially youth sports groups," Phelan said. "If we had conflicting uses with other groups, such as lacrosse versus baseball, we would address it just like we are with the dog issue. By giving each use its specific location, we can better mitigate conflicts and allow for more enjoyable usage from all groups."

For more information, call the Park Department at 617-376-1254.

Lawn Tips

Ways to Keep A Lawn Weed-Free

(NAPS) – A beautiful, weed-free lawn takes more than a few rounds with the lawn mower and some wishful thinking. Knowing what type of lawn you have and giving it the proper care can make a big difference. Getting rid of the weeds is critical, as they compete with the grass for nutrients.

The good news is that going weed-free is not as tedious or time-consuming as you might think. No matter where you live, you don't have to memorize "the list" of hundreds of broadleaf and grassy weeds to get rid of them, says Bayer Advanced Garden Expert Lance Walheim, who co-wrote the "Lawn Care for Dummies."

He offers these tips for stopping and preventing weeds in your lawn:

1. Know your grass type. Different lawn grasses grow in different regions of the country, and knowing which type you have is important. For instance, if you live in the Northeast, cool-season grasses like tall fescue, rye and Kentucky bluegrass grow well. In the Deep South, warm-season grasses such as Bermuda grass, centipede and St. Augustine grass are best adapted.

But even within the grass types, there are varieties that resist specific pest problems. If you don't know what type of grass you have, take a sample to a local nursery or your local county extension office for identification.

2. Build up your lawn's overall health. Fertilize cool-season lawns in fall and spring. Feed warm-season lawns from late spring into summer. Water regularly during dry spells and mow at the appropriate height for your lawn type. In spring and fall, rake leaves to help the lawn "breathe"

3. Select the right products to treat your weeds. For cool-season or Bermuda grass lawns, apply Bayer Advanced All-in-One Weed Killer for Lawns. It kills more than 200 types of broadleaf weeds like dandelions and clover, plus grassy weeds such as crabgrass, in one step.

Most other weed control brands require two products to do the same thing. A new product, Bayer Advanced All-in-One Weed & Crabgrass Killer, is the first to control lawn weeds and crabgrass simply through attaching the bottle to your hose and spraying. For St. Augustine grass, use Bayer Advanced Southern Weed Killer for Lawns on broadleaf weeds like dandelions and dollarweed.

Bayer Advanced products are available in major garden retailers and independent garden shops across the United States. To learn more, visit www.bayeradvanced.com or call (877) BAYERAG.

INTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Saving The Trees Before An Insect Attack

(NAPS) – Homeowners who care about their trees may want to protect them from the insects that are making waves across the country, killing millions of gorgeous trees.

- The emerald ash borer has killed 20 million ash trees across the Midwest. Iowa is now threatened and the insect has entered Maryland.

- A small aphidlike insect, the hemlock woolly adelgid, has killed millions of Eastern hemlock trees in a least 11 Eastern states from North Carolina to southern New England.

- Japanese beetles still cost the plant industry hundreds of millions of dollars each year, eating tree and shrub leaves and grass roots. Infestations are reported in Eastern states and as far west as Iowa and Missouri.

"It can cost hundreds of dollars to cut down just one tree that's destroyed by insects," said Lance Walheim, Bayer Advanced Garden Expert and co-author of "Landscaping for Dummies." "Prevention will save you a lot of money in the long run."

To help fight the spread of all dangerous tree-eating insects, consider the following tips:

- Learn to identify tree-eating insects. Do Internet research, contact a tree or shrub expert at your local nursery or call an agricultural extension agent in your area so you know what to look for.

- Examine trees regularly. Signs of trouble include dead or dying limbs, poorly colored or eaten leaves, a thinning canopy or a trunk and main scaffold branches oozing plant sap.

- Take preventative measures. Bayer Advanced offers two solutions for your consideration: 12 Month Tree & Shrub Insect Control and 12 Month Tree & Shrub Protect & Feed-both contain Merit and are no-spray, preventive solutions.

Mix 12-Month Tree & Shrub Insect Control in a watering can and pour at the base of a tree. Or sprinkle granules of 12-Month Tree & Shrub Protect & Feed around the base of the tree. Both products are absorbed through the roots and move through the tree, protecting it against a long list of insects. One application protects for up to 12 months.

For every bottle of Bayer Advanced Tree & Shrub Insect Control purchased in spring 2007, Bayer Advanced in partnership with the National Arbor Day Foundation, will donate one tree to restore U.S. national forests.

You can learn more by visiting www.bayeradvanced.com, calling (877) BAYERAG or visiting the Arbor Day Foundation website at www.arborday.org.

Spring Allergens And Gardens

(NAPS) – As spring arrives, gardeners everywhere anxiously await the first day the can gather their tools and head out to the yard to bring their flowers and plants back to life. For millions of Americans who consider gardening a hobby or a vocation, a day spent outside with the flowers provides unmatched relaxation, enjoyment and beauty. However, for those sensitive to common allergens, watching the flowers bloom through itchy, irritated eyes can turn gardening from pleasure to misery.

Ragweed, pollen and other allergens become plentiful in the spring, and the millions of Americans who suffer from itchy eyes often find the season of renewal one where they are forced to stay indoors.

With a little bit of precaution and common sense, even those most sensitive to spring allergens can enjoy the pleasure of their gardens from the outside. Here are some tips:

- Pay attention to the pollen forecast and learn your specific triggers. No two people are exactly the same, so the more you know about specific triggers, the better you can prepare.

- Avoid interrupting your activities to apply drops to itchy eyes. Get long-lasting relief for itchy eyes by choosing an eyedrop that provides 12-hour relief.

- Don't cross your fingers and hope for the best. If the count is high and you want to be outside, prepare in advance.

- Don't overuse medications. Most antihistamine eyedrops also contain a decongestant that constricts the vessels in the eye to reduce the appearance of redness. However, these products may cause a rebound effect, leaving you with red eyes for a time after you stop using them.

Fortunately for gardeners who suffer from eye itch, there is a new tool for their gardening kits. The Food and Drug Administration recently approved prescription Zaditor (ketotifen fumarate ophthalmic solution) for over-the-counter (OTC) use to treat eye itch. Available at drug and chain stores nationwide, Zaditor does not include a decongestant, works for 12 hours (longer than existing OTC product) and has been found safe for use in children as young as 3. Zaditor has triple-action formula that treats the source of the itch, so gardeners can stay outdoors longer without itchy irritation.

"The garden is certainly a hot spot for eye itch due to common allergens," says Marguerite McDonald, M.D., F.A.C.S., Ophthalmic Consultants of Long Island. "With today's treatments, itchy eyes do not have to prevent people from participating in any of the outdoor activities that they love. Particularly now that Zaditor is sold over the counter, green thumbs can easily grab quick, long-lasting relief and get back in the garden."

Carpet Won't Lie Flat

Q. The wall-to-wall carpet in our condo has developed several small raised humps in the middle of each room. What would have caused this, and how can I get the carpet to lie flat again? — Lawrence C., Watertown, Mass.

A. Newly installed carpeting has a tendency to stretch a bit, and everyday traffic shifts that carpeting around and creates ripples, or bumps. Improperly installed carpeting may also do this. If the carpeting was recently installed, contact the installation company. Most installers will correct any issues or re-stretch the carpet within a certain time frame.

If this is not possible, re-stretch the carpet yourself. You'll need a couple of tools to do this properly: a sharp utility knife, a wide putty knife and a knee-kicker. This aptly named tool, available at carpet-supply stores or equipment rental centers, grips the carpet firmly and slides it into place with a jolt from your knee.

Remove furniture from the room and inspect the carpet, noting any damage or loose seams. Then, take your trusty putty knife and move to the side of the room. Carpet is generally tucked underneath the baseboard along the wall but not firmly attached; instead, a thin strip of wood with several metal pins jutting up out of it is placed about a half-inch from the baseboard and the carpet is laid on top of it. Use the putty knife to pry about a foot of carpet from under the baseboard, then lift the carpet edge off of the pin strip.

Use this pried-up portion to measure the depth of the prongs on the underside of the knee-kicker; they need to be long enough to grab the mesh carpet backing, without grabbing the padding underneath. Adjust the prongs using the knob on top of the kicker.

Move to a corner of the room where the carpet is firmly attached. Press the knee kicker prongs into the carpet about two inches from the baseboard. Thrust your knee straight into the kicker's rubber cushion. Then, holding the kicker in position with your knee, use the putty knife to tuck the little bulge of carpet under the baseboard. Work your way around the room.

If the carpet bulges remain, or the carpet moves easily under the knee-kicker, use the utility knife to trim the edges of the carpet (do one side at a time between stretches, running the knife along the bottom of the baseboard for a straight cut), and then re-stretch and re-tuck until the bulges are gone.

The Dirty Truth About Allergies

Controlling Allergen Exposure In The Home

(NAPS) — There may be no place like home, but for more than 37 million Americans who suffer from allergies, there's no place for allergens in the home. Indoor allergens, such as dust mites, mold and pet dander, are more common than people may think. In fact, at any given time, 80 percent of people in the U.S. are exposed to dust mites, and 60 percent are exposed to cat or dog dander.

To help prevent bothersome allergy symptoms, such as nasal congestion, a runny, itchy nose and sneezing, it may be necessary to drag the mop and dustpan out of the closet.

"Many people pit a great deal of time and energy into making their house a comfortable place to live," said Linda Cobb, host of the television series "Talking Dirty with the Queen of Clean." "But as an allergy sufferer, I know that even the comfiest couch or prettiest table settings can't distract from the discomfort caused by allergy symptoms."

This Old House

While the entire house is susceptible to allergens, certain rooms may be hot spots for the culprits. For example, more than 1 million dust mites live in the average bed—they thrive in pillows, mattresses and comforters. The bathroom is also a danger zone, because moisture from the shower and damp towels creates the ideal environment for mold growth. Thorough cleaning helps rid a home of allergens by creating an unwelcoming atmosphere for these unwanted guests.

Treating Your Allergies

Even for the most meticulous cleaner, it's impossible to remove all allergens from the home. Cobb recommends visiting a doctor, who can prescribe an appropriate treatment if you continue to experience symptoms. Nasal-inhaled steroids, like NASONEX (mometasone furoate monohydrate) Nasal Spray, 50 mcg (calculated on the anhydrous basis), are recommended first-line treatment when nasal congestion is the primary allergy symptom.

"Nasal congestion is often the most bothersome symptom for nasal allergy sufferers, and nasal-inhaled steroids like NASONEX are an effective way to treat it," said Dr. Matthew Clarke, a board-certified family and occupational medicine physician in private practice in New York City.

"With a few simple cleaning tips and a visit to a doctor, it can be easy to control allergies and appreciate your shiny floors and windows, too," said Cobb.

Quincy Woman Jailed In Counterfeit Scam

Kim Luong, 34, of Quincy has been sentenced to two years, six months in prison after pleading guilty as a member of a gang to counterfeiting more than $1 million worth of luxury handbags and wallets.

Also sentenced by Federal Judge William G. Young were three Chelsea residents — Minh Vu, 26, two years, six months; Katherine Luong, 28, three years; and Camphung Luong, 25, two years.

The three Luongs are sisters.

All four pleaded guilty to money laundering, trafficking and conspiring to traffic in the counterfeit handbags and wallets as well as materials used to make the counterfeits.

The four also made more than $48,000 in restitution payments to victim companies and did not contest the forfeiture of five bank accounts, two vehicles and additional counterfeit merchandise.

Vu and the Luongs admitted they rented 13 self-storage units in Revere, in which authorities found 12,231 counterfeit handbags, 7,651 counterfeit wallets and enough fake labels to turn out more than 50,000 more.

US Attorney Michael Sullivan said the gang sold their counterfeit handbags and wallets at a flea market in Revere, and at smaller gatherings in some 250 "purse parties" throughout the state.

Cam Van Nguyen Mayor's New Executive Assistant

Mayor William Phelan announces that Cam Van Nguyen of North Quincy has joined his staff as the new Executive Assistant to the Mayor.

Nguyen began her new position in the Mayor's Office Monday.

"I am proud to welcome Cam to our staff and look forward to applying her skills to helping our community," said Phelan. "She has a strong, diverse background that will allow her to handle the many tasks that she will face in her new position."

Nguyen is currently completing her Masters Degree at Eastern Nazarene College. She has served as a freelance writer for AsianBoston Magazine, focusing on health care issues and business development. She has worked in the financial and health care industries as well.

"I am thankful to Mayor Phelan for the opportunity to work for his administration during this exciting time," said Nguyen. "I welcome the many challenges that the job entails and I look forward to working with many new people in our community."

Nguyen will focus on constituent work and project oversight. She replaces Diana Ong who took a job with Health Care for All, a Boston non-profit fighting for affordable health care options.

"This is an exciting and challenging time for our city with many large projects happening at once," said Phelan. "We needed someone with Cam's skill-sets and background and she will be of great assistance to our efforts to develop the downtown, restore the Broad Meadows marsh, renovate the Souther Tide Mill, bring a senior center to Quincy, locate a cultural center in downtown Quincy, and the many other projects we are working on."

Updated Fair Housing Plan Ready For Public Comment

to identify and analyze impediments to fair housing and develop a strategy to address them.

The plan is available for review at the Planning Department at City Hall and the main branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library 40 Washington St., or on the city's website www.ci.quincy.ma.us.

The goal of the plan is to ensure that Quincy, through its programs and partnerships, is a leader in creating housing choice and providing opportunities for inclusive patterns of housing occupancy to all residents of the city.

"Everyone can learn something from this plan," said Mayor Phelan. "Separation and inequality in our housing sector will not be tolerated in Quincy and our housing policies and programs have echoed those sentiments."

Comments will be accepted until April 27 and can be sent to:

'King David' At ENC

The Eastern Nazarene College Choral Union will perform the dramatic choral work "King David" by Arthur Honeggers Sunday, April 15, at 6 p.m. in the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, 37 East Elm Ave. Admission is free.

"King David" tells the story of the famous Israelite king, including his battle with the giant Goliath, his defeat of King Absalom, the death of his son Bathsheba and his affair with Bathsheba.

Robert Benjamin, director of Multi Cultural Services, and Eunice Ferreira, professor of Communication Arts, will narrate the epic tale.

Tax Tips From The Experts. To File or To Extend

As the tax filing deadline approaches some people consider requesting an extension to complete their 2006 income tax return. This process is relatively simple.

You must file tax form 4868 to extend your Federal income tax return. If you owe additional Massachusetts income taxes then you must request an extension using form M4868. Both forms must be filed on or before April 17, 2007.

The request for additional time automatically extends your Federal and Massachusetts filing date to October 15, 2007. This does not extend your time for paying your income taxes, simply for filing the return. The Federal extension request will be considered invalid, and your tax return considered late, if you do not pay at least 90% of the taxes owed by April 17. Interest and penalties of as much as 25% will be charged on any balance due. Massachusetts has similar requirements except that 80% of the tax must be paid by April 17, with penalties as much as 25% of the tax owed.

If you cannot pay your income taxes by April 17 you should still file your return by that date. The penalties for late payment are substantially less than the penalties for late filing. The IRS will permit you to enter into an installment agreement to pay your income taxes. To request an installment agreement you must file form 9465 with your income tax return. File your Massachusetts return and pay as much as you can. You will then be billed by the state for the amount that you owe. You can request an installment agreement by logging into the State's Web Filing Site <https://wfb.dor.state.ma.us/webfile/wsi/> you will see a link for an installment agreement.

A Job Well Done

On Sunday, April 1, 2007, at approximately 1:15 A.M., Officers Joe Nabstedt and Daniel Church were dispatched to Field Street for a "disorder with a knife involved." When the Officers arrived, they found about twelve people yelling back and forth.

Due to the serious nature of the call, additional units responded. As the officers tried to determine what had occurred, a woman (suspect) came out of the front door of the apartment building. Numerous people spontaneously blurted out that she was the one with the knife.

Officer Church instructed the group of people to sit down, including the suspect who allegedly had the knife. Officer Nabstedt located the caller, who stated that he lived in the same apartment building as the suspect. He said that he had a few friends over and they had been drinking.

The caller said he went outside and was talking to his girlfriend and two other friends near her car when the suspect came out of the building, knife in hand, and yelled, "If you don't shut up, I'm going to slice somebody's throat." The caller said he called the Police after trying to calm the suspect and put the knife down.

The other witnesses stated that the suspect was waving the knife around in a menacing manner. One of the friends of the caller confronted the suspect and told her that if she didn't put the knife down, he would have to defend himself. When the suspect continued to approach, the male grabbed the wrist of the suspect and wrangled the knife out of her hand. The suspect then punched him numerous times, leaving a small-bloodied area around his nose.

A female friend of the male then jumped in, but she was pushed down and banged her head against the cement steps. As the Police arrived, the suspect fled back into her apartment, and then emerged soon after. The knife was described as brown with a seven-inch blade. Officer Nabstedt interviewed the suspect and one of her friends. The suspect denied having a knife and allowed Officers to search her apartment.

Her friend confirmed that she did not have a knife. Although the knife was not found, Officer Nabstedt did note in his report that he observed the knife drawer in the kitchen to be open and it was the only drawer that was open.

When Officer Nabstedt went back outside, a witness approached him and said that she had some evidence that could help. She then pulled out her digital camera and showed a photo on the LCD screen of the suspect holding a knife in her hand.

Copies of the photo were obtained for evidence purposes. Based on the information from victims, witnesses, the open drawer and the photo, Officer Nabstedt placed the 35-year-old Quincy resident under arrest for "Assault with a Dangerous Weapon." As the Officers were preparing to leave, the suspect said that she didn't want anyone to stay in her apartment, so Officer Church told her friend she would have to leave. Her friend was displeased that she had to leave and said, "She pulled a knife out and now she wants me to leave." Nice Work!

A BETTER WAY - would have been to call the Police when the knife was first seen, rather than try to negotiate with the assailant. The victims, by their own account, had been drinking and this may have impaired their ability to make a clear decision to get away from someone with a knife. This easily could have escalated into serious injury or death. The suspect, who is now facing criminal charges, should have called the Police to handle the disturbance, especially when the station is two blocks away.

RETIREMENT: Congratulations to Sergeant Richard Curran on his recent retirement from the Quincy Police Department. Sgt. Curran retired one week shy of beginning his 40th year in Quincy. He graduated from the very first Quincy Police Academy in 1968, taught by former Chief Fran Mullen, then rode a Honda "175" in the patrol division.

In 1974, he worked in the Juvenile Division and became sergeant in 1981. In 2001, Sgt. Curran headed up the Special Investigations Unit, investigating cases involving sexual assaults, domestic violence and juveniles. In 2002, he returned to the Patrol Division as a street Supervisor.

Sgt. Curran reminisced about his early years, when he worked a walking beat. "Back then, there were no police radios, so if you made an arrest, you would have to handcuff and drag the suspect to the call box so a cruiser could transport the prisoner to the station."

When asked to give advice to the younger Officers, he said, "Enjoy your career, the time goes by so quickly. Don't arrest everyone - a little compassion goes a long way."

Sgt. Curran said that he will miss working with his fellow Officers but plans on playing lots of golf, splitting his time between here and Naples, Florida.

To Sgt. Curran, thanks for your years of service and commitment - A Job Well Done.

Strong Legs for Running

Q. I run for 2 miles three times a week. Despite all of my running, I don't have very strong leg muscles. What exercises can I do, without equipment, to strengthen my legs?

A. Performing leg exercises will not only keep your legs strong, but could also improve your running overall. There are many exercises you can add to your workouts that just use your body weight.

Strengthening your legs will keep the muscles strong that support the joints and ligaments around your knee, which are subjected to stress when running.

Two quick and easy leg exercises that can be done almost anywhere to strengthen the quadriceps (front of legs), gluteus (butt muscles) and hamstring (back of legs) are the squat and the lunge.

• Squat. Begin by standing with your feet shoulder-width apart. Bending your knees, sit down with your heels remaining in contact with the floor. Sitting no lower than 90 degrees, press through your heels and return to standing position. Do 10 to 20 repetitions per set for one to three sets.

To spice up this exercise you can change the speed of your squat, completing one set at a normal pace and increasing the speed of the second or third. Only add this modification after you have mastered the basic squat. Once your body weight becomes less challenging, you can increase the intensity by holding filled water bottles in both hands for added weight.

• Lunges. Start with legs together. Step forward with your right foot. With your right foot firmly on the ground in front of you and with the heel of your left foot off the floor, bend your knees and lower your body toward the ground. Make sure your right knee does not extend over your toes and that your right heel does not leave the floor. Press through the heel of your right foot and return to standing position. Repeat with the left leg. Complete one to three sets of 10 to 15 repetitions.

The addition of these two exercises to your running routine can reduce the risk of running-related injuries and help you to reach your running goals.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. Treating Joint Discomfort (NAPS) – A natural approach to dealing with joint discomfort could be just what the doctor ordered. Studies have shown that botanical components, called triterpenes, from the shea nut help relieve inflammation—a major cause of joint stiffness.

Experts say the natural triterpenes differ from glucosamine, MSM and other active ingredients commonly tried for joint discomfort in that triterpenes actually stimulate joint health, while other ingredients simply help lubricate joints or mask symptoms.

Millions of Americans suffer from some sort of joint problem, with more than half of them having chronic or recurrent symptoms daily, according to a recent Stanford University Medical Center poll conducted with ABC News and USA Today.

"Joint discomfort, which affects about 40 million people can be caused by a number of factors, a sports-related or other type of injury, obesity and illness," says Leonard P. Smith, CEO and president of BSP Pharma Inc. "However, a general underlying problem is inflammation. That's why the findings on the triterpenes are significant."

Reducing Joint Discomfort

You can find the shea nut triterpenes in a new dietary supplement called FlexNow Joint Formula. Its active ingredient, SheaFlex 75, is concentrated from shea nut triterpenes. The product was one of only seven dietary supplement products accepted by the FDA in 2004 as meeting all of the safety and toxicology requirements under the Dietary Supplement Health and Education Act. It also guarantees a full refund—including postage—if your joint discomfort isn't completely relieved in 30 days.

The supplement is made available by the same team that was instrumental in bringing Beano and Lactaid to market, and is backed by pharmacological and clinical research conducted by BSP Pharma, the supplement's developer and marketer.

You can learn more about relieving joint discomfort by talking with your doctor. For product information, visit www.FlexNow.us or call 1-877-778-1212.

Making Time For Health, Fitness

By PEGGY FLEMING

(NAPS)—Busy schedules can sometimes get the best of us, leaving little time for ourselves. That's why it's essential to keep an inward focus. Whether your goal, like mine, is to spend more time with your grandchildren or perhaps less time at the office, the following lifestyle changes are sure to leave you refreshed and ready to play.

Dedicate one week to a self-examination. Note your activities and how much time you devote to each. Your observations will allow you to target what isn't working in your favor. Next, get organized. An efficient plan means more time for you, your family and friends. A proper diet and exercise routine allow you to perform at your best.

Exercise your right to fitness. Schedule fitness routines just as you would a trip to the bank or the post office. By making exercise a priority, you will be able to squeeze in the 30 daily minutes your body needs. And remember that downtime is a chance to recharge your batteries and refresh your mind.

These tips can help you find the balance you need for a healthy lifestyle:

• Eat right—That means eating until you're no longer hungry, not until you're full. Aim for a colorful plate, as foods rich in color provide essential minerals and vitamins. And if you have a sweet tooth, calm the craving with fruit.

• Get Moving—Set realistic goals. Find a workout you love, be it yoga, tennis or kickboxing. And recruit a friend; you're more likely to get out of bed for a morning walk when someone else is expecting you.

• Manage your time—If you are a morning person, put your arduous projects at the top of your "To Do List." If lunch tends to revive you, leave these projects for the afternoon. Meanwhile, if you feel pulled in too many directions, drop a few chores. You don't have to do everything yourself. And establish rituals that bring your family together.

• Relax—Know what you want out of your day and minimize the activities that keep you from achieving it. Try tackling a new hobby or rediscovering an old favorite.

• Keep on top of your health—To make sure you have access to the health care you need, consider a savings plan such as HealthSaver, which offers discounts on prescriptions, vision and dental care—even fitness club memberships.

For more information, visit www.healthsaver.com or call (800) 7HEALTH.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

SHADES OF GRAY

Not only are everyone's teeth not the same color, different teeth in your mouth normally differ in shade. On top of that, no matter what color your teeth are, your "eye teeth" (cuspid or canine teeth) are likely to be darker than the rest. The front teeth tend to be the whitest, and the back teeth tend to a shade between the two. The dentist will take this variation into account when whitening an individual tooth. As far as overall tooth whitening is concerning, many procedures claim to be able to whiten teeth up to nine shades. A change of only two or three shades will make a significant difference in just about anyone's smile.

Almost everyone wants whiter teeth and a brighter smile. The importance of an attractive smile should not be underestimated. Your personal satisfaction with your oral health and appearance is important. You can expect us to give you gentle, comforting care using the most up-to-date techniques and equipment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Our trained professional staff works as a team to make your visits pleasant. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We provide a full range of dental treatments, including partial or full dentures; bridges and crowns; root canal therapy; and preventive, restorative, and cosmetic dentistry. We will always discuss your treatment options with you. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

SPORTS

Hosts Falmouth At Adams Field Friday Hopes High For Experienced Raiders

By SEAN BRENNAN

The last couple of seasons for the North Quincy Red Raider baseball team has been an ebb and flow between rebuilding years and years in which experience is at the forefront.

The 2007 season looks to be the latter.

The Red Raiders, who are coached by Rick Beach, graduated its three senior tri-captains (Tom Power, Paul Doolan and John Allen) from last season, but this spring the team returns every other member of the 2006 team and also adds B.C. High transfer Joe Vialpondo to the roster.

This mix of seniors, juniors and sophomores has the chance to make headlines in the Atlantic Coast League and stamp their mark on the local baseball scene.

"All of the kids on this year's team have played for me (last year)," Beach said this week. "We lost three seniors from last year's squad, but with the experience that the rest of the kids got and the addition of Vialpondo to our team this year, it should make this year's team very good."

Unlike the weather the team has been forced to play in, the team has gotten off to a hot start this spring. The Red Raiders won a slugfest against Patriot League opponent Silver Lake last week by a score of 13-10 in the season-opener, and dismantled Randolph High School by a score of 16-0 in their second game.

"Against Silver Lake we had a lead going into the bottom of the seventh inning, and we dealt with the shoddy field conditions and hung on to beat them," Beach said. "They loaded the bases with the score at 13-10, but junior Mike Horgan struck out their eighth and ninth batters and then picked off the runner at first. Horgan throw a complete game and struck out 11 batters."

"In our second game against Randolph, senior Matt Edgerly went the distance and fanned 13 batters in our 16-0 win," Beach added. "We have started off hot and hopefully it will carry over as we start the ACL portion of our schedule this week against Whitman-Hanson and Falmouth."

The bats got things going early and often against the Lakers with seniors Chris Boyd (2 for 5), Dave Guerriero (3-5, 2 RBI, 2 runs scored) and Brendan Carnell (3-5, 3 RBIs) leading the offensive charge. Junior Dan Richards finished the game with two hits and two runs scored.

Horgan, a junior, took the mound and pitched the complete game to earn his first win of the spring.

In the Randolph game, Edgerly overpowered the opposing batters to the tune of 13 strikeouts. He also chipped in at the plate with two hits and two RBIs. Richards (3 RBI), Carnell (3-5, 3 RBI) and Vialpondo (2-2, 2 runs scored) all continued their torrid starts at the plate in the win.

Beach likes what he sees thus far and is encouraged by the depth, talent and speed that his team this season is showing.

"We have stolen 18 bases in the first two games," Beach said. "It looks as if this year we are going to have speed to go along with the bats that have shown up during the first two games. And with the pitching that we have received from Edgerly and Horgan, things have started out as well. This year we may have the most depth we have had in years and the experience that these kids got the past few years should be a bonus."

Along with Edgerly and Horgan, the Red Raiders have three left handers in their pitching rotation as Eric Moreschi, Ricky Bjork and Keith Morreale will see time on the mound. Other players to watch out for this spring include Steve Matos (C/LF), Joe Lousarianian (SS), Matt Rodriguez (C), Alex Tragelliks, Nick Poli, Mike Jay and Matt Jay.

"With the group of kids that we have, and the depth at pitching, on the basepaths and at the plate, I am looking at a good team," Beach said. "The season has started off well and when we finally get to come home and play against some league opponents, we will know where we are at moving forward."

North Quincy is scheduled (weather permitting) hosted Whitman-Hanson Wednesday and plays Falmouth at home on Friday. Both games are at Adams Field and begin at 4 p.m.

The Red Raiders will be co-hosting the NQ/QHS Baseball Tournament with Quincy High School during school vacation week on April 17 and 19 at Adams Field. Definitive starting times for the games on April 17 (weather permitting) is 12:30 p.m. The April 19 game times have yet to be announced.

Presidents Have Post-Season Aspirations

By SEAN BRENNAN

The Quincy President baseball team is ready to get its season underway, but Mother Nature has not been as accommodating.

Quincy, which had its season opener washed out this past Saturday against King Philip Regional High School, was scheduled to play its home opener on Tuesday afternoon against Somerville High School. The team's next game is today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. at Adams Field versus Atlantic Coast League opponent Nauset High School.

The 2007 edition is looking to bring Quincy baseball back to the postseason after a one-year hiatus last spring. The Presidents missed the post-season tourney for the first time in three years in 2006, but head coach Mike Draicchio and his team are ready to get between the lines and bring President baseball back to where it belongs: in the tournament.

"I am expecting for us to have a great year," Draicchio said this week. "I have a great bunch of kids. The entire roster is filled with athletes who are talented on the baseball field and talented in the classroom. Our number one priority is to have student-athletes who produce both on the field and in the classroom. And this year's team fits the bill."

"They are all students first, and that is a huge plus when you can have a team filled with kids whose intelligence can be seen on the baseball field. With this talented group, we are going to try and get back to the tournament and we are going to take the season 'one game at a time'."

Draicchio will have to look no farther down his bench than senior captains Steve Connolly (SP/IF/1B/SS) and John Alexander (catcher) for the leadership he team will need as the long season progresses.

"We graduated a handful of senior leadership last year, but with Connolly and Alexander, we should be in good shape in that department this spring," Draicchio said. "Steve finished last year with a .409 batting average and was a captain on the basketball team this winter. John was a huge part of our team as a sophomore, but he missed last season with and injury. He is returning this season and should bring all the qualities of a captain to every game."

Other seniors on the opening day roster for Quincy include Matt Boyle (OF/P), Dan Myers (top pitcher/OF), Wendell Cosgrove (OF), Matt Pye (OF/P), Anthony Gilbody (OF), Dan O'Connell (1B) and Sean Boyd (P).

"Boyle is not a captain, but I am expecting him to step up and give us some leadership and some big at-bats," Draicchio added. "Myers is our top pitcher and can play some outfield. Cosgrove and Leone will see time in the outfield as well, and Leone is a fast runner. Gilbody is a great defensive player and Pye has a strong arm and is a lefty. With the depth that we have in the outfield and on the bench, it will come down to who is producing that sees the most time on the field."

Some of the underclassmen to keep an eye on this spring include Rick Sulvicci (P), Mike Lebel (SS/P), Teddy Walsh (2B), Steve Cusman (DH), Joe Reggiannini (C/OF), Jon Parry (1B), Sean Gray (3B), Robert Renalli (IF) and Dave Griffin (IF).

"Our underclassmen are a very talented group," Draicchio said. "Lebel caught for us last year when Alexander went down with his injury. He is a great player and had an outstanding year in 2006. Rick will pitch for us and he is also a great ballplayer. Walsh has speed and he swings a solid stick. The rest of the roster gives us added depth and talent coming off the bench. I would like to mention Andrew Papile. Andrew is injured this season, but was a huge help last year and will be missed this spring."

With a roster of seniors, juniors and sophomores, the Presidents have the right mix of experience, talent and intelligence to get back to post-season play. According to Draicchio, the team's balance of these three qualities, plus their balance on offense, defense and on the mound, offers a bright vision for the spring.

"We are ready to play. The kids have put their time in," he said. "Defensively and offensively we should do well. The goal is to make the tournament."

Quincy is scheduled to travel to King Philip on Saturday and will be co-hosting the QHS/NQHS Baseball Tournament over school vacation week on April 17 and 19.

NQ Relying On Depth

SOFTBALL

The North Quincy High School varsity softball team will begin their 2007 season with no seniors on the opening day roster.

The team, which is led by second-year head coach Mike Connor, finished last season with a 7-11 overall record. The program graduated four seniors from last year's team including Kelly Barden, Jackie Mullin, Jessica Mann and Liz Leary (a volunteer assistant coach this spring), but Connor is encouraged with the collection of talent he has on the field this spring.

"We will have 15 varsity players on the roster," Connor said this week. "We have no seniors, ten juniors, four sophomores and one freshman. But I feel like we should have a pretty good team going forward."

With a team that lacks senior leadership, Connor knows that, although he has athletes and talent, he will need some of his girls to step up and take over the leadership that he lost through graduation.

"With no seniors, we will need to rely on our depth, which we have plenty of, and we will be leaning on our pitching to keep us close in games. I feel like we have the defense and offense to play with anyone on our schedule."

"We just need to take it one game at a time. Our goal is to make it back to the post season tournament and with the talent and the athletes we have it would be a disappointment if we did not make it."

The ten juniors on this year's team are Rebecca

Goreham (OF/3B), Paige Bonanni (SP), Kerry Coughlin (C), Brianna Carnell (DH/1B), Caitlin Nelson (IF), Katherine Feeney (OF), Jenna McDonough (IF), Kasey O'Connell (SS), Simone Leary (C/2B/OF), and Tabitha Doolan (IF).

"We have some real talented juniors on this year's team," Connor said. "Goreham is a natural athlete with the right attitude. She is a natural hitter who should fit in nicely in the lineup. O'Connell has a great bat and has the speed to be aggressive on the bases. Coughlin was a league all-star last year and is solid behind the plate."

"Feeney may be our best all-around hitter. Paige knows her role and is a smart player who gets on base. She is also our number one pitcher. Leary, McDonough and Doolan will all see time in the infield and with Leary we don't lose anything when she is in the game."

The four sophomores on the roster are Siobhan Carnell (CF), Brittany Folkins (2B/P), Catherine O'Connell (1B) and Kathleen Lynch (3B).

"Siobhan Carnell played last year as a freshman and she has already contributed to the team this year by scoring the winning run in the season opener (a 9-8 win over Pembroke High School)," Connor said. "O'Connell makes contact almost every at-bat, Lynch, who is in her first year, has great hands at third base and has shown a great arm and Folkins has shown a good arm and is a solid all-around player."

Sammi Bonanni is the lone freshman on the varsity roster and she is expected to see some time pitching in relief and will pitch as a starter for the freshmen and JV teams.

"Sammi will see some time on varsity, but she will also be pitching for us at the jayvee and freshmen level," Connor added. "She has the chance to be a pitching star in the coming years."

The team opened their 2007 season with a win over Pembroke High School. The Red Raiders, behind the pitching of Paige Bonanni and the speed of Siobhan Carnell, eked out the 9-8 win. Carnell tripled in the last inning and came around to score on a passed ball.

"The plan is to use the depth of the roster all season long," Connor said. "The main thing for us as a team is to have fun, but also be ready to turn it on when the games start. We mean business this spring."

The Red Raiders played against Scituate High School on Monday and are scheduled to play on the road against ACL opponents Whitman-Hanson (4/11) and Falmouth (4/12) this week.

During the school vacation week, North Quincy will host the NQ Softball Tournament at Mitchell/McCoy Field on April 17 and 18. Game times are scheduled for a 10:00 a.m. start on both days.

Bill Monbouquette Speaker At QHS Hall Of Fame Banquet

The Quincy High School Baseball Alumni Association and Hall of Fame Committee would like to announce that Bill Monbouquette will be the guest speaker at the QHS Baseball Hall of Fame banquet.

Monbouquette wore the number 27 for the Red Sox, making his first Major League start on July 18, 1958. He won at least 14 games from 1960-63, with a career-high 20 victories in 1963. He was a four-time all-star and pitched a no-hitter in 1962 against the Chicago White Sox and set a club record with 17 strikeouts against the Washington Senators in 1961.

The Quincy High School Baseball Alumni Association and Hall of Fame Committee announces the names of fifteen former Quincy High School baseball players to be inducted into the Quincy High School Hall of Fame on May 10.

The Hall of Fame Banquet will be held at the Quincy Sons of Italy. The social hour is from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m., with dinner and the awards ceremonies to follow. Tickets to the Hall of Fame Banquet are $25 and can be purchased by contacting Joseph Brill, chairman of the QHSBBAA, at (617) 770-4813.

The 2007 inductees include Gerald Curtis ('46), Bob Gumprecht ('41), Frances "Frannie" Pineau ('49), Dan Raymond ('65), Ted Meyers ('69), Bob Pettinelli ('69), Bob Lane ('73), Joe Brill ('74), Paul Sutherland ('76), Gary DiNardo ('81), Tom Balzano ('91), Robert "Robbie" Kane ('93), Tom Malvesti ('94) and the late Steve Barrett ('95).

For the first time the QHSBBAA/Hall of Fame Committee is including the Old Quincy Trade School and announces that Gino Pettiti ('39) and Frances "Shorty" Donovan ('42) have been inducted.

George Burke will be inducted as only the third Honorary Member into the Hall of Fame, joining former Quincy mayor James Sheets and former Minnesota Twins manager Sam Mele.

Warren Finley and A. "Bud" Mosher will join the Hall of Fame as former coaches.

The Hall of Fame committee will also honor four youth coaches who have given their time to teaching the game of baseball to so many kids for so many years. The four include Bill Draicchio, Dick Lombardi and the late John Rossi of Quincy Youth Baseball and Tony Constantino from St. John's Baseball.

The Paul Grasso Memorial Baseball Book Scholarship will be awarded to a senior who will further their education and baseball skills at the college level. Grasso, who graduated from Quincy High School in 1967, was killed while serving his country during the Vietnam War. Book Scholarships in the name of the late Bill Sullivan and Joe Conti will also be awarded.

Boating Safety Course Begins April 21 At Maritime Center

The Quincy Police Marine Unit, in partnership with the Massachusetts Environmental Police, will present a Basic Boating Safety Course at no cost to the public. The course is designed for persons of all ages, regardless of boating skill.

This course is federally approved and completion of the course will allow persons to legally operate a boat in states that require completion of a Basic Boating Safety Course.

Everyone who completes the course will be issued a basic Boating Safety Certificate. Completion of the course by persons between 12-16 years of age will allow them to operate a motorboat without adult supervision. In addition, some insurance companies offer policy discounts for customers that complete a Basic Boating Safety Course.

The course will be held from 12 noon to 4 p.m. on three consecutive Saturdays; April 21, April 28 and May 5.

The course is taught at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 137 Bayview Ave. (next to the Quincy Yacht Club on Sea St.).

For more information, call the Massachusetts Environmental Police at (508) 790-9360 or the Quincy Police Marine Unit at (617) 594-4848.

Blood Pressure Clinics Free For Seniors

Weekly blood pressure screenings for elders will be held every Monday from 10 to 11 a.m. at the Council on Aging office, 83 Saratoga St., North Quincy.

Gail Crawford, a registered nurse, will donate her time and talents to assisting senior citizens in having their blood pressure taken weekly.

Appointments can be made but walk-ins also are accepted.

For more information, call 617-376-1506.

Vets Adviser At COA Office

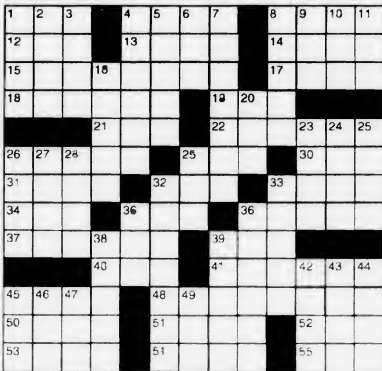

John D. Miller of Home Care Partners, will be at the Council on Aging office, 83 Saratoga St., each Wednesday to advise veterans or their surviving spouses of their in-home care benefits.

To schedule an appointment, call the Council on Aging at 617-376-1506.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Avoid having someone else take credit for the project you started by finishing it yourself. Then it will be you lovely Lambs who will be wearing those well-deserved laurels.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The facts about a new opportunity are still emerging. Wait until they're all out in the open, and then use your keen business sense to help make the right decision.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might feel confused, even hurt by a friend who suddenly puts distance between you. If she or he won't discuss it, don't push it. An explanation should come in time.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your willingness to be part of the team opens doors that had been shut to you. Keep them open by keeping your promises even when your commitment seems to be wavering.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Congratulations! You're really getting things done to perfection. And don't forget to take a catnap now and again to keep those energy levels up and bristling for action.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your "plain-talking" honesty is admirable. But sometimes sharp words can leave painful scars. Be careful that what you say doesn't come back to hurt you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A stress-filled period takes a positive turn as you deal with the underlying problem. Act now to avoid a recurrence by changing some basic rules in your relationship.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your rising energy levels make it easier for you to achieve some important objectives. This could lead to a big boost in how you're perceived, both at home and on the job.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A changing picture begins to emerge as you learn more about an offer that seemed so right but could be so wrong. Look to a trusted adviser for guidance.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Spiritual aspects are strong. Take time to reflect on the path you're on and where you hope it will lead you. It's also a good time to reach out to loved ones.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You could be assuming far too many responsibilities, whether it's at work or in personal matters. Be careful that you're not weighed down by them.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're getting closer to your goals. And since nothing succeeds like success, don't be surprised to find new supporters swimming alongside you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are always the first to try new ventures and confront new challenges. You inspire others with your courage to follow your bold example.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Some of the world's most talented people have never been paid a cent. They are called volunteers. They take time from their work, their leisure, their home-life to volunteer their talents and their energies. Volunteerism is in the spotlight this week. It is the time to publicly thank them for their work and let them know that it is valuable and important to us.

This week is the time to make an effort to look around and see who is doing what to help out... Look at the nursing homes and hospitals and you'll see men and women finding time to visit with the residents and help the staff... Look at the schools and you'll see people who serve on committees, who donate materials, who help raise funds all for the love of doing... Look at the churches and you'll see people who give their time to sing in the choir, and work on committees... You'll see people who deeply care about their community and want to work to make it better, honor it and tell others about it.

When asked why the volunteer, the most popular reason heard will be, "Because I care. I want to help."... We ask that our readers join us in saluting the volunteers in our community... Let us show them that because they care, we care about them!

Community Pot Luck Dinner Saturday At First Church Of Squantum

The First Church of Squantum will host a community pot luck dinner Saturday, April 12 at 6 p.m. in the church hall, 174 Bellevue Rd., on the corner of Huckins Ave.

Those planning to attend should bring a dish to share.

The book club will meet May 1 at 7 p.m. in the church parlor. The book to be discussed is The Book Seller of Kabul, written by Anse Seirstad. The group has chosen the new book by the Boston surgeon, Atul Gawande, entitled Better: A Surgeon's Notes on Performance for discussion at its June 5th meeting.

Beginning on Monday, April 23 at 7 p.m., an ongoing weekly program will begin exploring the ideas behind the best selling book and DVD, The Secret. The ideas contained in The Secret can be found in many places and there is a long history of the principles of these ideas leading to success in many aspects of life.

The public is invited to attend the meetings.

For more information, contact Emily Robertson, Ph.D., at 617-479-1624.

Catholic Women's Prayer Group

The Catholic Parishes of Quincy sponsor a monthly Catholic Women's Prayer Group.

The evenings provide an opportunity to deepen one's relationship with Christ and be supported by the presence of other faith-filled women.

All are welcome.

The prayer group meets on the third Tuesday of every month. The next meeting is April 17 from 7 to 8:15 p.m.

in St. Joseph's Rectory Conference Room.

For more information, contact Sister Pat Boyle at 617-479-5400 (St. Ann's) or Dorothy Ruggiero at 617-472-6321 (St. Joseph's).

Spiritual Program For Women In May

A five week spiritual program for women in recovery will be held each Wednesday evening in May from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. at Maria Droste Services, 1354 Hancock St., Quincy.

St. Kathy Short, CSJ, will be the facilitator of the program entitled "Chaos to Grace." The weekly fee will range from $10 to $30 for participants.

"Recovery is the discovery of your truest self, one glorious step at a time," is the motto of the program.

This group program, "Chaos to Grace" will focus on relaxation, sharing, meditation and body exercises. Interested persons may contact the center at 617-471-5686 for additional information.

Bank Of Canton Launches Convenience Checking

James D. Egan, President and Chief Executive Officer of Bank of Canton, announces Bank of Canton's newest consumer checking account: Convenience Checking.

With Convenience Checking, Bank of Canton customers won't be charged for using any of the 400,000 ATMs nationwide and will automatically receive a refund for ATM fees up to $15 per month.

"Many large, national banks charge non-customers two dollars or more every time they use their ATMs. For most community bank customers, these ATM access fees add up very quickly," said Egan. "Now, with Convenience Checking, Bank of Canton customers can use any ATM they choose throughout the country without having to worry about ATM fees."

With Convenience Checking, Bank of Canton offers "big bank" convenience to the neighborhood level. The bank already offers free online banking and bill pay and online mortgage applications.

"Bank of Canton prides itself on bringing the latest trends in banking to the community level," said Anthony Caruso, Senior Vice President of Branch Administration at Bank of Canton. "Our customers can have the individualized service, low fees and competitive rates of a community bank with the convenience and access of a large national bank. With Convenience Checking, we're proud to offer worry free access to twenty-five times more ATMs nationwide than our largest competitors."

In launching the new account, Bank of Canton will be giving away a trip for two to Hawaii. "What better way to say 'aloha' to ATM fees than to have two lucky customers experience the benefits of Convenience Checking first-hand while on a great Hawaiian vacation."

said Caruso.

Additionally, the Hawaiian theme will be present throughout Bank of Canton branches through April to June. Each branch will feature Hawaiian music and decorations, along with fresh pineapple, punch and leis for branch visitors. Additionally, on Saturdays throughout April and May, various branches will offer hula dancing lessons and Hula Hoop contests for children.

Emergency Response Classes Meet In May

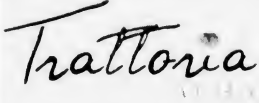

Classes for the new version of the Citizens Emergency Response Team (CERT) will be held on Tuesdays May 1, 8, 15 and 22 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Richard Koch Park and Recreation Complex. One Merry Mount Parkway.

CERT members will help the city's Public Safety Departments during storms and other emergencies. Anyone 18 years and older is eligible.

Areas to be covered in the classes will be instructions on the operations of HAM radios, demonstrations from the Fire and Police Departments and updates from the Health Department on pandemic flu, CPR procedures and first aid.

To register for the classes, call the Quincy Emergency Management Agency at 617-376-1105 before April 26.

Funds To support Emergency Department Initiatives Flutie Presents 'Quarterback Award' To Quincy Medical Center

Doug Flutie recently presented the "Quarterback Award" to Quincy Medical Center. The award acknowledges Quincy Medical Center's recent successful grant application for $25,000 from Eastern Bank.

The funds will support two important initiatives in the Hospital's Emergency Department (ED).

QMC plans to develop a

Pediatric-specific section within the ED to provide specialized, expert pediatric emergency care in a child friendly environment. The Pediatric ED will be a four-room space, equipped and decorated to be child-friendly. The space will have a distinct waiting room that is separate from the main ED waiting area.

The hospital also is working to develop the capacity and best practices to ensure that a Physician or Mid-level Provider sees 90% of ED patients within 30 minutes of the patient's arrival in the Department. That program is known as "30 Minutes to an M.D. Project."

"These two initiatives respond to specific community needs and help Quincy Medical Center continue to provide high quality, patient-centered care in the ED," said Chris Mosher, vice president of Development, who accepted the award from Flutie on behalf of QMC.

Eastern Bank is a loyal supporter of Quincy Medical Center. Previously, the Bank provided funds for the renovation and expansion of the ED's Fast Track Service. The four-bed Fast Track Service is now accessible 20 hours daily and provides urgent, walk-in care for adults and children with minor medical problems, illness, or injuries including sore throat pain, a cut that needs to be stitched, or a broken bone.

Fast Track has had a positive impact on the level of service, enabling the Emergency Department staff to focus on more critical, complex patient cases.

City 'Very Fortunate' Preparations, Wind Shift Lessens Storm Damage

By TOM HENSHAW

Once again, Quincy appeared to have dodged the bullet in a major northeast storm that wracked the New England coast, thanks mainly to a last minute shift in the wind and sound preparations by city workers.

But Tom Gorman, the director of Emergency Management, warned that the city was not out of danger yet.

"If we get by today we'll be all right," he said late Tuesday afternoon. "Today's high tide is no problem but tonight's high tide is a big one. That may be more of a problem."

The National Weather Service in Boston was forecasting as much as a two-foot storm surge.

Up til Tuesday, Gorman said, the city had done "fairly well" despite the torrential rain and winds that gusted up to 50 miles an hour in some spots.

"We were fortunate," he said, "that the wind went southeast Sunday night. It helped alleviate the high tide.

We surveyed the shoreline and found the water was well within its banks.

"We did a lot of preparation, too. Water and Sewer closed the tide gates to avoid inundating the Black's Creek Basin. The DPW maintained the brooks and cleared the drains."

Brian Carlisle, the water and sewer superintendent, reported that his crews operated about 30 pumps citywide Sunday and Monday to fight rising water in

Campaign Kick-Off April 26 Phelan Running For 4th Term On 'Proud Record'

Mayor William Phelan is running for a fourth term on his "proud record" and accomplishments.

Phelan will kick-off his re-election campaign Thursday, April 26 at 7 p.m. at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, 254 Quarry St.

Tickets are $20 and can be obtained at the door, his committee said.

"I look forward to knocking doors, visiting the supermarkets, senior buildings and coffee shops to talk about what we have accomplished together over the past five years," said Phelan.

"We have turned the city's finances around completely and we are now reaping the benefits of our hard work and reinvesting in our city and its neighborhoods. I am proud of my record and I hope to continue my success over the next five years."

Phelan cited major milestones including:

- Making Quincy the second safest city in Massachusetts

- Creating more than 150 new, affordable housing units for seniors

- Instituting all-day kindergarten and smaller class sizes in all schools

- The upcoming construction of the new Quincy High School

Delay May Have Saved His Life Quincy Student Misses Virginia Tech Massacre

Jennifer McCauley Logue, the daughter of the former mayor, teaches a class Mondays at Eastern Nazarene College — and it may have saved the life of her son, Bryan.

The Logues, Jennifer, husband David and the kids, were due to journey Blacksburg, Va., for Hokie Focus, a special weekend for accepted students at Virginia Tech, of which Bryan is one.

"But because I teach a class on Mondays at Eastern Nazarene, I couldn't leave until tomorrow (Tuesday) morning," she said.

"So Dave drove to Virginia on Saturday and was visiting with his parents until I could join them.

"We were scheduled to visit Virginia Tech on Thursday with Bryan staying overnight on campus and then visiting classes on Friday.

"Even more disturbing is that Bryan is planning to major in engineering.

"So, if it hadn't been for my ENC class, he likely would have been there today

Monday, a single-credit engineering class at the time of the shootings.

As the world knows now, that was the day a disgruntled student shot up an engineering class at Virginia Tech, leaving 30 students and instructors dead.

"I'm still flying down to Virginia tomorrow (Tuesday)," said Jennifer Logue "but we've obviously canceled our plans to visit on Thursday.

"And we will be reevaluating his decision to attend Virginia Tech."

Pageant Field Likely Choice

$1M Track Project Moving Ahead

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Quincy's million dollar track project appears to be moving ahead and Pageant Field appears to be the favorite site.

It's been a long haul for Quincy's track enthusiasts who have been years without a regulation track while other sports in Quincy got new state-of-the-art stadiums and fields.

That may change soon. In the past two weeks, there have been three meetings scheduled on the track project and the mayor has already sought City Council approval of a million dollar bond.

"It looks like it's moving now," Geoffrey Hennessy, Director of Quincy Track Club, said this week, after noting that there's been silence on the entire issue for more than two years. "My phone never rang."

"I'd like to see a shovel go in the ground and get this thing going," said Hennessy who is, also, the head track coach for the city's high school program and site director for the middle schools program.

"The track community wants the Pageant Field site," said Hennessy of the proposed new track. He is also a Quincy High School biology teacher.

Hennessy explained that the Pageant Field site is clean with no environmental issues. It's also located midway between Quincy and North Quincy High School and handy for Central Middle School.

Track is a popular sport in Quincy where 130 students are enrolled in the high school program and 450 at the middle school level. In fact, Hennessy said that the middle school track numbers are up from 360 last year.

Contacted on Monday, Hennessy had spent the day as a volunteer at Boston's Marathon. Over the years, he said he's seen more Quincy track alumni there at the finish line than he can count. Hennessy himself ran Boston's race 19 times.

At this time, Hennessy said Quincy's track practices are being held at Cavanaugh Field which he describes as "second-rate." It's only one fifth of a mile instead of the standard one quarter mile and there's no good place for discus or javelin practice.

"It's good in a pinch,"

Hennessy said of Cavanaugh Field. "Quincy's one of the few communities in the entire state" with one/fifth mile tracks, rather than the standard quarter mile tracks which he calls dinosaurs.

Serious efforts to move the track project forward quickly appear to be underway now. After two years' silence, there have been three discussions of the proposed track scheduled in the past two weeks.

On April 9, the City Council considered a request by Mayor William Phelan to authorize a million dollar bond issue for constructing and equipping the new track. There were no details provided with the request and councillors discussed potential sites and funding issues.

After considerable debate that night, Councillors voted to send the request to the Finance Committee and Parks and Recreation Committee.

On April 10, the following night, some 40 parents, school and city officials reviewed proposals for the track at Koch Center on Merrymount Rd.

This week, a joint meeting of the Finance Committee and Park and Recreation Committee was scheduled on Tuesday after The Sun's deadline. Both committees could recommend issuing the bond.

However, the City Council can not officially approve the bond until May as all bond proposals must be advertised and the subject of public hearings. The public notice is currently underway.

"We can not vote on this even if we want to," Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond said this week after citing the legal mandates. Raymond is chair of the Parks and Recreation Committee.

This week, City Solicitor Monica Cunningham is scheduled to address the joint meeting of the Finance and Parks and Recreation committees. She is expected to outline Mayor Phelan's recommendation for Pageant Field and to discuss removing the million dollar track project from the school building budget.

Earlier this week, Mark

C. Jaehnig, Executive Director of the Park Department, outlined the various options already considered for the new track which requires a minimum area of 600 by 900 feet.

Faxon Field, Faxon Park and the Department of Public Works site on Sea Street all had either conservation, wetlands or environmental issues, according to Jaehnig. He also noted that Squantum Point Park was also on the list but ownership issues and location eliminated that spot.

"No matter what site you pick, not everybody is going to be happy," Jaehnig said, adding, "The only viable option is Pageant Field. That's my understanding."

As for the track community, Jaehnig said, "I think the track community is desperate. They've gone without a track for two, three, years." In fact, he noted that some kids may finish their entire high school career without an official track.

While there are numerous questions about the timing and the rush on the track project now, several city councillors appear eager to get the project moving.

"I hope we move very quickly," Councillor Joseph Finn said at the April 9 meeting, adding that track parents are frustrated that track is considered the "step-child of sports (in Quincy)."

"There's a lot of folks out there just tired of this," Finn said, adding it's time to "get going. We can have a track and facility that they can be proud of."

At the same April 9 meeting, not everyone favored the Pageant Field location. Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin called the delay "an excruciating long time" but felt that track parents don't favor either one of the locations considered.

Councillor Michael McFarland said the city is going to have to tear up brand new facilities in order to build the track at Pageant Field. "We're now going to go in and tear that up when it's not even paid for," McFarland said.

Funds for the bond payments are expected to be raised through motel and hotel taxes.

State Says Phelan Did Not Violate Election Law On Newsletter Mailing

Mayor William Phelan did not violate election law when he had the newsletter "Quincy View" mailed in the same envelope with census forms to every home in Quincy at city expense.

So ruled the State Office of Campaign & Political Finance on a complaint by Tom Koch, the mayor's challenger in the fall election, that the publicly funded mailing was political in nature.

Director Michael Sullivan noted that the newsletter contained a picture of Phelan but also information concerning various city projects and local issues.

"It would appear," said Sullivan in a letter to Phelan, "that the mailing of 'Quincy View' was designed to serve the governmental purpose of keeping your constituents informed.

"This newsletter did not urge recipients to vote for or against any candidate or solicit campaign contributions.

"Therefore, it is our opinion that the distribution of the newsletter did not violate the campaign finance law."

The Phelan campaign quickly switched to the attack.

"It's one thing when a politician throws some mud to try to trick voters into believing some smear or lie against an opponent, as Koch did against the mayor," said spokeswoman Kathy Bowes, "But it's another thing when voters realize that Koch deliberately wasted weeks of an important state agency's time and wasted thousands of taxpayers' dollars just to get a cheap, baseless headline."

"Mayor Phelan has worked tirelessly to open up Quincy City Hall to keep residents informed and to seek their ideas and suggestions.

"The mailing was part of that new openness in city government, part of running an open, responsive city government.

"Perhaps Tom Koch doesn't understand that kind of open government but the commission clearly agreed that this was entirely proper."

Mayor Invites Seniors To Take Part In Olympic Games

The following is a letter from Mayor William Phelan and the City's Senior Olympics Committee:

Welcome to the 25th Annual Quincy Senior Olympics Games, and Quincy's 1st Seniors Festival Week, an excellent sports festival for adults 55 years of age and older.

We encourage your fitness, health and wellness. We believe that being involved in the Senior Games fosters all of these aspects, for both physical and mental health.

On behalf of the Olympics Committee, sponsors, supporters and volunteers, we invite your participation and welcome you to another wonderful week of fun, fellowship and fitness! Your participation in these events illustrates your commitment to an active and healthy lifestyle. Your actions send a positive message to others, making you a role model to be admired.

We extend our thanks to the local businesses, civic organizations, agencies and volunteers who make this Olympics event happen. It is this community spirit that brings people together, facilitates goodwill and makes the City of Quincy a better place to live.

Be proud! Enjoy!

Two Rescued, Two Hurt In Wollaston Fire

Two men were rescued over ladders from a third floor roof and two firefighters were injured early Friday morning as fire swept through the upper story of a two family house at 4-6 Merrymount Ave. Wollaston.

Damage was estimated at $300,000.

Tuan Lam, 27, owner of the house, and his brother, Liem Lam, 30, were trapped on the roof when their escape was blocked by fire on the second floor stairway.

They were lowered to safety over ground and aerial ladders by Lt. Ron Shannon and Firefighters Mark Paolucci, Jack Caddington and Paul Kearns of Ladder 2 in Wollaston.

Lt. John Carroll and Firefighter Michael Slade were treated for injuries and returned to the fire scene.

All 11 occupants of the building escaped unscathed.

The fire was believed to have started in an electrical malfunction in a third floor closet but the state fire marshal has opened an investigation into the cause.

The blaze was discovered shortly before 6 a.m. by Yellow Cab driver Charlie Hattenburg who spotted black smoke emanating through the third floor roof.

He called 911 and began pounding on the door, shouting "Fire! Fire!" to wake up the first floor residents. Smoke detectors roused those on the second and third floors.

"The fast response action and bravery displayed by our fire department continues to cement their reputation as one of the finest departments around," said Mayor William Phelan.

"This incident is a reminder to us all that we should check our home fire alarms on a regular scheduled basis.

"The functioning alarms combined with the firefighters' response to save lives that morning."

Phelan, Koch Gear It Up

It should come as no surprise: Mayor William Phelan is definitely running for a fourth term.

He has a campaign kickoff set for Thursday, April 26 at 7 p.m. in the Tirrell Room at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, 254 Quarry St., West Quincy.

Tom Koch got his campaign off to an earlier start announcing in January as a serious challenger should o. But mayoral incumbents traditionally have more time in their favor and don't have to start gearing things up until later.

Amelio Della Chiesa who served four Plan A terms as mayor never got around to announcing his candidacy for re-election until July 31, his birthday. He liked keep'em guessing.

At $20 per, Phelan's campaign kickoff-like Koch's last week is not so much a fundraiser, as it is a show of support.

Koch was pleased-and encouraged-by the turnout at his kickoff at the Granite Links Golf Club.

The $20 per event, drew a crowd estimated at up to nearly 1,500 on a cold, rainy night.

"Some 1,200 signed in," Koch says. "And a couple hundred or more who were there didn't."

Money-wise, it netted about $15,000 after expenses.

But says Koch:

"Money is important in a mayoral campaign. But people are more important. Money doesn't vote. People do."

But money does pay for the advertising, polls and other political necessities that help get people to come out and vote.

The so-called experts say you need at least $150,000 to wage an effective mayoral campaign.

Phelan already has a war chest estimated at around $180,000-or more.

Koch took a big step toward that $150,000 at a fundraiser in February at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. With a suggested ticket range of $125, $250 and $500, it realized over $70,000.

Phelan won't draw that size crowd at the Elks that Koch did in the ballroom at the Granite Links Golf Club. The Elks' Tirrell Room is much smaller.

Koch, who resigned as executive director of the Parks-Forestry-Cemetery Departments to run for mayor, is Phelan's most formidable challenger since taking office in that stunning 17-vote upset win over six-term incumbent James Sheets in 2001.

PHELAN

KOCH

Phelan was only in his second year as a school committee member when he challenged Sheets. And became the first mayor in 79 years to be elected without first serving in the city council.

And that, of course, is what Koch is hoping to duplicate this year himself.

Koch hasn't slowed down since announcing his candidacy in January. He has had some 28-coffee hours and has already knocked on some 200 doors in his grassroots campaign.

"Things are going pretty well," he says. "It's been encouraging but we still have a long way to go before the election."

It's shaping up as a good, old fashion-like mayor's race.

A strong incumbent. A strong challenger.

COUNCILLOR JOE FINN has a fundraiser coming up Wednesday, April 25, 7 to 8:30 p.m. at The Fours, Cottage Ave., Quincy Center.

The committee's invitation says: "Please join us when Joe will be announcing his plans for Quincy and the city in 2007."

The wording has some people thinking he's going to announce for mayor.

But, he's definitely not.

"I'm running for re-election as city councillor at large," he says.

And adds that he is sorry for any confusion there might have been over the invitation's wording.

Anyway, suggested donations are: $30 per person, $50 for two.

Park Dept. To Host Yard Care Conference

The Park Department will host a Yard Care Conference Saturday, April 28 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the Park & Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

The event is admission free and open to all Quincy residents, with or without a green thumb.

"With the hope that spring will soon make its permanent arrival, residents will begin to prep their properties for the return of green grass, flowers, and unfortunately weeds and some other undesirable," said Mayor William Phelan. "The Yard Care Conference presents an opportunity to ask questions and learn new skills from various flower, turf and tree experts to make the care and maintenance of lawns and gardens more manageable and enjoyable."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1909 real photo postcard is a view of the main house of the old Pratt Estate on Parke Avenue in Squantum when it became Lee's Inn. Note the sign on the top of the building. Mrs. Christina Lee operated the famous old inn here until 1916. She was the widow of James Lee who had previously owned the Old Squantum Inn near Squaw Rock. In 1919 after Mrs. Lee died, the inn closed and the land, which overlooks Dorchester Bay, was divided into house lots and sold. Today, this building and an old barn behind it are used as residences. The porches, tower and other features have been removed so that it hardly resembles this picture. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

More Police Needed To Avoid Another Traffic Tragedy

Sometime soon, another tragic preventable death will occur outside of North Quincy High School as a result of the uncontrolled and chaotic traffic there every morning.

The recent changes implemented after the woman was killed have done little to alleviate this dangerous situation. In particular, the drivers who drop off students on the right hand side of West Squantum Street, near the old Foley Chrysler Plymouth Dealership, have created a hazard for the following reason.

Drivers become impatient and pass cars proceeding straight ON THE INSIDE. The cars they are passing most often are stopped to allow students to cross the street within the crosswalks. Soon a car as a result of this will strike a student.

For a while, there was a police officer stationed here, but when he wasn't shooting the breeze and drinking coffee with the school security, he did very little by way of controlling traffic. In his defense there is probably too much traffic there for one officer to control effectively.

The fact that he simply parked his cruiser on the side of the road with the lights flashing only worsened the situation because all it did was restrict an already congested traffic flow.

The situation is difficult to manage no doubt, but something has to be done before someone else is killed. The most logical solution seems to be to assign more officers to control the traffic. On officer, when he is there and actually decides to direct traffic instead of drinking coffee and shooting the breeze, is overwhelmed and ineffective.

I have actually been waved on and directed to proceed by the officer when there are students crossing the street behind him in the crosswalk. Obviously that is not his fault, teenagers are unconscious in the morning and pay little attention to the traffic and what is going on around them.

There is just too much going on around there for one policeman to manage. There needs to be at least three or four policeman to manage the traffic that is turning on and off the various side streets and controlling the pedestrians.

Just drive by there in the morning. I am really tired of it. The place is a free-for-all and it is very, very clear there is ANOTHER tragedy waiting to happen.

Says Governor Has Abandoned His Supporters

As of now I can count myself as being one of the many voters who were duped by the widespread appeal of the Patrick candidacy.

From the outset he was the only candidate who had the personality and poise to win the hearts and minds of a massive number of independent voters.

He sold the electorate a bill of goods solely on an appealing motto (that together we can) restore honesty and efficiency in the Massachusetts General Court.

But from all indicators he seems to have abandoned the strong support he received from voters of just about every political persuasion, by bowing to the whims and political will of the Speaker of the House and President of the Senate.

His actions are no different from those who occupied the corner office before him. And he is merely following a long-standing formality-to get along, one must go along.

It is strictly a situation where the political tail has a strong tendency of wagging the political dog. After all, it is the Massachusetts way.

The day may come when the overtaxed citizens of the Commonwealth will elect a governor who is duty-bound and genuinely possesses the will to govern in their behalf.

City Looking Into Punch Card Voting

By FRANK McCAULEY

The future of voting in Quincy may be by punch card if City Clerk John M. Gillis has his way.

The punch card voting machines that were being demonstrated, said Gillis, could cost the city as little as $75,000 or as much as $150,000 and trim as much as six hours off the time needed to count ballots.

"It is about time," said Gillis, who was up until 4 a.m. with the presidential primary election last March 13. "After 27 years I'd like to see some improvements in voting procedures."

Brian Crowley, vice-president of Electronic Voting Machines, Inc. of Newton, said the voting unit of the machine costs $150 each, and the unit with a stand and light cost $300 each.

Gillis said that he would make a pitch for them at the next city council meeting.

WILLARD SCHOOL SOLD FOR $916,500

The city closed a deal for the sale of the old Willard School in West Quincy to Furnace Brook Associates for $916,500 for conversion into an office building. Conversion is expected to be completed in the fall of 1984.

Furnace Brook Associates is made up of Dickinson Development and Grossman and Company, both of Braintree.

The old school will be converted into between 40,000 and 45,000 square feet of rental office space.

World War I Focus Of Film, Discussion At Crane Library April 24

World War I is the focus of a free film and discussion series currently underway at Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy. No registration is required.

The six-part program climaxes on Tuesday, April 24 with a session dealing with the aftermath of that war: "The World War I Years: American Becomes a World Power."

Newbury College History Professor Dan Breen will present this lecture followed by the documentary film screening and an open discussion.

This session will focus on the bitter fight between President Woodrow Wilson and the United States Senate over the role of the United States in the post-war world when the country debated the rhetoric of internationalism and isolationism.

During those years, the country experienced massive labor unrest, economic uncertainty after the war, the end of Wilsonian internationalism and the inauguration of Warren Harding.

The project was filmed by National Video Resources and sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Line Dancing For Seniors

The Quincy Council on Aging will hold a line dancing class for seniors every Thursday at 10 a.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy Point.

'Listening Session' Today At Adams NHP

The National Park Service will hold a "listening session" today (Thursday) from 9 to 10:30 a.m. in the carriage house of the Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., to solicit ideas for signature projects to enhance the NPS 100th anniversary in 2016.

The session, one of many "listening tour" stops scheduled at NPS locations across the country, will be hosted by Chrysandra Walter, the acting northeast regional director, and Marianne Peak, the superintendent of the Adams Historical Park.

Those planning to attend are asked to consider the following three questions:

Imagine you, our children or future generations enjoying national parks in 2016 and beyond. How do you image their visit? What are your hopes and expectations?

What role do you think national parks should play in the lives of Americans and visitors from around the world?

What are the signature projects and programs that you think should be highlighted for completion over the next 10 years?

It's Not Too Late To Enter Christmas Parade Theme Contest

It's not too late to submit an idea for a theme for this year's 55th Annual City of Christmas parade.

Deadline for submitting entries to the Festival Committee is Friday, April 27. A winner will be selected soon after this date and the theme winner will be notified.

George White, Festival Committee Chairman, said there is no one ingredient to success in the Theme Contest. The committee is looking for ideas that capture the fancy of the general public.

The Parade will take place Sunday, Nov. 25, the Sunday after Thanksgiving. The rain date is Sunday, Dec. 2.

The theme selected provides the participants, especially the float builders with creative guidelines. Nostalgia plays a role when the theme for the Parade is selected.

The 2006 Winning entry "Christmas on Parade" offered the float builder to chance to use their imaginations.

The Christmas Parade draws an estimated 200,000 spectators lined along the approximately three mile parade route. The Christmas parade is believed to be the largest on the East Coast.

The Theme Contest is not limited to Quincy residents and judges do not know the names of each submission until after the winning entry is selected.

The theme winner will receive a gift of appreciation in the parade from the Christmas Festival Committee and will also ride in the parade in an open convertible.

Entries should be mailed to Ms. Carol Flynn, 79 Freeman St., North Quincy, MA 02171. Entries must be received no later than April 27.

Merrymount School PTO FUNdraiser Set For May 4

The ticket price includes one free raffle ticket, food, dancing and a cash bar. The silent auction will include tickets to Red Sox and Patriots games. Proceeds will be used to enhance computer technologies throughout the school. For more information or for tickets, call 617-773-4976.

Finances, Legal Issues Topic For Seniors At Koch Complex May 22

The 2007 Elder Law Education Program will offer senior citizens the tools for a legal check-up of their finances and legal issues on Tuesday, May 22 at the Koch Park and Recreation Complex at One Merrymount Parkway.

Both the Quincy Council on Aging (COA) and the Massachusetts Bar Association will sponsor the event entitled, "Taking Control of your Future: A Legal Checkup."

Presenter Thomas Mullen, an attorney, plans to cover such topics as protecting your home and assets, executing a power of attorney and/or a health care proxy, the pros and cons of reverse mortgages, and Medicare/Medicaid issues.

Reservations are necessary for the free program which will run from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. Contact the Quincy COA at 617-376-1506 for additional information or reservations.

Maria Droste Fashion Show Set For May 4 At Lantana

The annual Maria Droste Fashion Show will be held Friday, May 4, at the Lantana in Randolph, dedicated for the second time to the memory of the late Darleen Sheehan.

The program will start with cocktails at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m. and the fashion show at 8 p.m., interspersed by various auctions and raffles.

Friends of Darleen Sheehan, both men and women, will take to the runway to model a collection of evening designs from Michael De Paulo, a local rising star in the fashion world.

In addition, an assortment of ready-to-wear for varied lifestyles for ladies from Caryn's Corner in Quincy and for gentlemen from Milton's in Braintree.

The special guest speaker will be State Representative Martin Walsh of South Boston and the MC of the evening's program will be Paul McDevitt, both long-time friends of Darleen.

The Maria Droste Agency opened as community counseling service in Quincy in 1992, staffed by the Sisters of the Good Shepherd and several clinically trained professionals as volunteers.

The principles that direct the agency are in such perfect tandem with the mission for which Darleen Sheehan worked so hard that her friends have chosen it to benefit from their philanthropic efforts.

Call the Maria Droste Agency at 617-471-5686 for fashion show reservations.

History Of Taxation Subject At Historical Society April 26

Richard Carlson, head of valuation for the Boston Assessor's Office, will discuss the long and lively history of taxation at a meeting of the Historical Society scheduled Thursday, April 26 at 7:30 p.m. at

If paying taxes has been one of humanity's least favorite activities, it has also been one of history's most enduring practices.

Carlson will provide an opportunity to have some fun with the topic and to learn something about how taxation has been viewed and applied across cultures.

Carlson will begin with the origins of taxation in ancient times and take the audience up to the present. He will, also, discuss changing views of who was to be taxed and how. In addition, he will present some of the odd or unusual tax practices that have occurred over the centuries.

The evening will offer the opportunity to look behind the forms and numbers at the essence of an institution that is fundamental to any society, that can also reveal human foibles and that can, also, be a source of humor.

The public is welcome and there is no admission fee.

Special Activities For Point Webster Sixth Graders

Jelly beans, popcorn, M & M's, and birthday cakes were just a few of the props used as 97 sixth graders at Point Webster Middle School celebrated the month of March with a whirlwind of learning activities in math, reading and social studies.

As March began, the students honored Dr. Seuss' birthday, designated as Read Across America Day, with contests and reading projects, and, of course, birthday cakes. Then, in mid-March, they honed their math skills on March 14, which is Albert Einstein's birthday, or Pi Day.

In between, on March 13, the students visited 12 Learning Stations set up at Roche Brothers Supermarket on Falls Boulevard.

Point Webster's business partners, Roche Brothers and the Quincy Credit Union (QCU), sponsored the March activities by providing the location, the supplies, and the funds for the different celebrations.

Both Judith Brazil of QCU and Lawrence Baxter, manager of Roche Brothers, worked with the sixth grade reading teachers and participated in several projects, such as the Dr. Seuss Birthday party.

The sponsors also sent employees to read with the students.

At the Dr. Seuss party, student contestants played Dr. Seuss Jeopardy, designed Read Across America T-shirts, and shared their favorite books with classmates.

On March 13, the sixth grade students were bused to Roche Brothers where the Learning Stations were ready for them.

Each station was geared to a specific area of Massachusetts' education standards, ranging from Math to Science to Social Studies.

Roche Brothers employees manned the Learning Stations at the Falls Boulevard store. Several of the students' parents, such as Paula Smith, helped and joined the fun as part of the school's Parents In Partnership (PIP) program.

Students used their skills on various assignments, such as determining the perimeter of the supermarket with a trundle wheel. They also used math formulas to estimate the number of M&M's in a pickle jar and in determining birthdays. The students also interacted with the store's customers.

Chaperones for the day included not only the teachers and parents, but, also, Quincy Community Police Officers Sgt. John Ryan, Officer James Dentrement and Officer Matthew Miller.

The following day, March 14, was Wednesday and also Albert Einstein's birthday designated as Pi Day. Einstein's formula known as Pi determines the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter or 3.14159.

To honor Albert Einstein, the students made Pi necklaces and used apple pies to measure the circumference, radius and diameter of circles. Once the project was completed, the students ate the apple pies.

"This is the third year we've celebrated (the two birthdays)," said sixth grade teacher Barbara Driscoll who credited Point Webster's business sponsors with helping to make the programs successful.

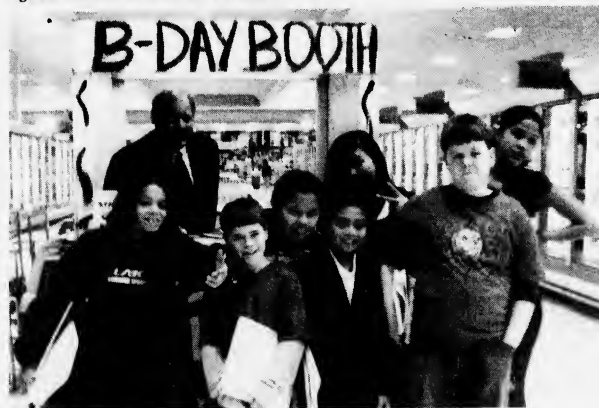

Point Webster's sixth grade teachers include Driscoll, Janet Green, Patricia O'Brien, Courtney Sudmyer, Cynthia Gurwitch and Tom DiTullio.

Principal McGuire and Assistant Principal Stacey Buccì both have commended the Quincy Credit Union and Roche Brothers for their dedication and enthusiasm in helping plan, fund and execute these and other creative education programs for the school's student. Other projects include the annual Honors Banquet and a monthly banking program.

THIS TRUNDLE WHEEL is ready to roll and work for sixth grade students Patrick Ryan and Freddy Inglesias who were assigned to measure the perimeter of the Roche Brothers on Quarry St. The supermarket hosted the Point Webster sixth grade students during a recent field program featuring a dozen learning booths placed around the store.

COLORFUL PI NECKLACES are being created by Junior Meade (background) and Joanna Micinoti and Darbi Thomas as they celebrate Pi Day or Albert Einstein's birthday at Point Webster Middle School, Quincy Point.

Registration Open For Lions Run/Walk For Sight

Registrations are now being accepted for the 10th annual Quincy Lions Club Run/Walk for Sight, to be held Saturday, April 21 at Pageant Field.

Those who wish to pre-register for the 5K race may do so online at www.quincylions.org. Participants may also pre-register by mailing a check payable to Quincy Lions Club to: Quincy Lions Club, P.O. Box 27, Quincy, MA 02170.

Attn: Run/Walk. Registrants should include their name, address and age (for race categories). The registration fee is $20 for adults ($17 for those who pre-register) and $5 for the children's 1K race.

Day-of-race registration will begin at 9 a.m., followed by the children's 1K race at 10:30 a.m. The adult 5K run/walk which is on a course certified by U.S. Track & Field begins at 11 a.m. Prizes will be awarded to race winners in a number of categories, and the first 200 registrants will receive a free race T-shirt.

Following the race, the Outback Steakhouse will provide a barbecue buffet luncheon for all participants. The event also will feature a DJ, prize raffles and the Lions Club Eyemobile, which will provide free vision, hearing and blood pressure screenings to attendees.

"The Run/Walk for Sight is a fun event for the whole family," said Lions Club President Elaine duJardin, who noted that sponsors of this year's Run/Walk include the Outback Steakhouse, Eastern Bank Charitable Foundation, Cerebral Palsy-Fiscal Intermediary and numerous local businesses.

"The local community has been very supportive of the Lions Club's efforts to help blind and visually impaired individuals, and we hope everyone will come out and enjoy this fun and worthwhile event," she said.

Proceeds from the Run/Walk benefit eye research and the Quincy Lions Club's community service activities, including providing free eye exams and free eyeglasses for local residents in need, offering free vision and health screenings, providing college scholarships to local high school students and more.

Discover Quincy Expects Best Tourist Season Ever

The tourist season begins unofficially in Quincy today (Thursday) and Mark Carey, the new executive director of Discover Quincy, can hardly contain himself.

"We are excited about tourism in Quincy in 2007," he enthused. "We're gearing up for more visitors than ever before. We are already planning for 2008."

The unofficial opening of the tourist season in Quincy is the day the Adams National Historical Park opens for business and it did just that at 9 o'clock this morning.

From now until Nov. 10, the birthplaces of both John and John Quincy Adams and the Old House, home of five generations of the Adams family, will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week.

Tourism in Quincy received a colossal boost with the publication of David McCullough's Pulitzer Prize-winning biography of John Adams and the city is still riding the wave today.

Just a few more than 80,000 tourists visited the Adams National Historical Park in 2000 BM (Before McCullough). Last year there were a little more than 227,000 at the sites.

Another shot in the arm is expected in 2008 when HBO, producers of "The Sopranos" and "Sex and the City," come out with the cable television version of the McCullough classic.

It is being produced by Tom Hanks and will star Paul Giamatti as the second president of the United States and Laura Linney as his wife, Abigail, with a supporting cast of Hollywood heavies.

"The power of television is not to be underestimated," said Carey. "We are well aware of the effect that this will have on the city of Quincy over the next few years and we welcome the economic stimulus."

Carey, who took over Discover Quincy from founding director Jennifer Logue during the winter, has been busy selling Quincy as a tourist destination at conferences in Worcester and Vermont.

Next, he's heading for the biggest world trade show in the United States, the International Pow Wow in Anaheim, Calif., for the second year in a row to boost foreign tourism.

There he plans to invite tour operators and travel press from Germany, France, Ireland, the Netherlands, Italy, the United Kingdom and Japan to visit Quincy and sample its delights.

The fact that the Boston Red Sox feature a $100 million Japanese pitcher is expected to bring record numbers of Japanese tourists to Boston, many of whom can be lured to Quincy.

"Europeans are already coming to Boston and taking advantage of our weak dollar by spending a lot of money shopping and dining," said Carey.

"If we could consistently get a fraction of those dollars to our city to visit our restaurants, hotels and amenities, we could see some steady economic growth among retail shops and restaurants."

"We have a solid product but we are still considered a best kept secret in the tourism industry and amongst our operators. Quincy won't be a travel secret for long, however."

Carey noted the city's close proximity to Boston, its 27 miles of coastline, picturesque Marina Bay, a world class golf course, four MBTA stops and year 'round ferry services as talking points for Quincy.

There is also the newly organized Quincy Restaurant League, formed by Discover Quincy, Quincy 2000 and Tiffanie Williams & Co. to package the city's multi-cultural and diverse restaurant scene as a destination.

It is complete with its own website, www.tastequincy.com and a local access TV show in production, set to air in Quincy and surrounding communities.

Discover Quincy has also produced a comprehensive visitors guide, more than 220,000 of which have been distributed around the country. The third edition of the brochure is due in May.

Meanwhile, the Adams National Historical Park will be carrying its usual load with tickets for tours available at the Visitor Center, located in the Galleria, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Trolley bus tours depart from the Visitor Center for the historic homes every 30 minutes, the last for the day at 3:15 p.m. Tickets, sold on a first come, first served basis, at $5 for adults aged 16 and over. Children are admitted free.

For more information on tours and special events, call the Visitor Center at 617-770-1175 or visit www.nps.gov/adam.

Credit Awareness Month At Quincy Credit Union

April is Credit Awareness Month and Quincy Credit Union is winding up its month-long credit awareness program with events scheduled on Friday, April 20, and Friday, April 27, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

On those days, visitors can enjoy free hot dogs, drawings and giveaways, including free "Funway" Park photos at QCU headquarters, 100 Quincy Avenue, Quincy.

The April program titled, "What's the Score?" is themed around Boston's passion for baseball and aims to inform local residents about handling credit, accessing credit reports and being informed about their credit score.

With that theme in mind, QCU invites everyone to "Step up to the plate," and visit the credit union offices this month.

The QCU offers information on the many free resources available to all consumers and, also, provides information on improving a credit report or credit score.

Membership in Quincy Credit Union is open to those who work or live in Norfolk and Plymouth Counties, Dorchester and their family members.

Friendly Visitors Sought At COA

The Quincy Council on Aging is seeking volunteers to call on the elderly who live alone and would welcome a friendly visitor.

The COA is also seeking seniors who live alone and would like a friendly visit themselves.

Call the COA at 617-376-1508 and ask to speak with Lena Trough, the friendly visitor coordinator.

The Council is mandated by law to do background checks on all volunteers.

COA In Need Of Bath Seats

The Council on Aging is in urgent need for bath seats for senior citizens.

If you have one to donate, call the COA at 617-376-1245.

Phelan Promotes Five In Police Department

Mayor William Phelan promoted two new lieutenants and three new sergeants in the Police Department in a City Hall ceremony last week.

The five were promoted to fill open spots within the ranks of the department.

Promoted to lieutenant were Timothy Sorgi and Robert Gillan and to sergeant were Donald G. Greenwood, Donald Allison and Daniel Guarente.

"I commend our entire police department for making Quincy the second safest city in Massachusetts," said Phelan.

"The five men promoted have distinguished themselves as leaders within the department and are deserving of their promotions.

"I congratulate them and their families on this career milestone."

Lieutenant Sorgi was appointed to the department in 1985. He holds a BA in Human Services from New Hampshire College. He served in the Special Operations Unit's motorcycle division. He has also served as a Community Police Officer and as a detective in the Juvenile Division.

Lieutenant Gillan was appointed in 1997 and became a sergeant in 2003. He has been assigned to the department Homeland Security Unit, the first such unit south of Boston. He has led the effort to secure close to $1 million in Federal grant money for the department. He currently serves as a Lieutenant Commander in the United States Coast Guard. His brother currently serves as a Captain in the department.

Sergeant Greenwood has seven years experience with the Quincy Police Department and 17 years experience as a commissioned officer in the United States Army. He has a BA in History from Ithaca College and a MS from Western New England College. He is a member of the Quincy Police Scuba Unit, the School Response Team and is a defense tactics instructor. He is a trained intelligence analyst and fluent in Arabic. His father, Don, is a Lieutenant in the Quincy Police Department.

Sergeant Allison joined the department in 1996. He has a BA in Sociology from Curry College and a MA from Anna Maria College. He has received four commendations from the Quincy Police Department in his 11 year career. He is a member of the Scuba Unit, a Field Training Officer, and has experience in the motorcycle division of the Special Operations Unit.

Sergeant Guarente has received five department commendations and three commendations for invaluable assistance since joining the Quincy Police Department in 1993. He has served his career as a patrol officer, learning the ins and outs of the street level operation of the department.

"Our promoted officers have a wide range of skills and backgrounds and their elevation in the department will further improve our overall department," said Police Chief Robert Crowley. "These are good, dedicated folks who do their job well for the people each and every day."

Added Mayor Phelan: "Our public safety departments are second to none. The quality of our employees is reflected in the performance of the department and the opinion of the public in general. We live in a safe city in large part because of our first responders."

Free, Anonymous HIV Testing At QMC

Quincy/South Shore AIDS Cares at Quincy Medical Center offers free, anonymous HIV testing.

Walk-in ours are Fridays from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the QSSAC office on the fourth floor of the Quincy Medical Center, 114 Whitwell St. and on Wednesday evenings from 3 to 6 p.m. at the Manet Community Health Center on the second floor of Quincy Medical Center.

Appointments can also be scheduled by calling 617-376-5462.

An estimated 22,000 to 24,000 people in Massachusetts are currently living with HIV, including nearly 7,000 people who do not know that they are HIV positive, according to Massachusetts Department of Public Health data.

"Often, people may have concerns about their HIV status, but delay getting tested due to common misconceptions about the cost, privacy and timing of HIV testing," said Kim Kroeger, program director for South Shore AIDS Cares at QMC.

"The free, confidential, rapid, HIV testing program at Quincy/South Shore AIDS Cares is designed to remove their barriers and concerns that prevent people from choosing to learn their HIV status.

Walk-ins are welcome, or to schedule a confidential appointment, call 617-376-5462.

Maria Droste Services Receives $20,000 In Grants

Maria Droste Services has been awarded three grants totaling over $20,000 since September 2006. The agency is a non-profit, counseling and holistic therapy service group located at 1354 Hancock St.

In September, Maria Droste Services received a Community Development Block (CDBG) grant of $8,775 from the City of Quincy and, in December, a grant of $10,600 from the Harold Brooks Foundation. In January, the Blue Hills Community Health Alliance (BHCHA) awarded a $900 grant.

"We are very excited and grateful to have received this funding," said Sr. Lorraine Bernier, the agency's Administrator who recently outlined how each grant will be allocated.

Funds from Quincy's CDBG will aid the agency in serving individuals and families in the South Shore community who can not access health insurance, according to Sr. Lorraine Bernier, the agency's Administrator.

The funds from the Blue Hills Alliance (BHCHA) will be used to offer Art Therapy classes to clients at Maria Droste Services. Art Therapy is aimed at helping individuals work through traumas. Additional support for this program is provided by Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates, the South Shore Hospital and Shields MRI OF Massachusetts.

The Harold Brooks Foundation grant of $10,600 will be used to increase services in the Energy Therapy component of the agency, according to Sr. Bernier. The Brooks Foundation assists non-profit organizations that offer services to low-income families and children, particularly within the South Shore area.

Co-Trustees of the Harold Brooks Foundation are Rev. M. James Workman, Paul Taylor and Paul Mollica in conjunction with the Bank of America. The foundation grants assist organizations that focus on the health, human services, religious, education, environmental, recreational or cultural needs of the community.

At this time, Maria Droste Services is planning a five-week spirituality group for women in recovery. The group will be held from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. on each Wednesday from May 2 through May 30.

Residents Invited To Select 'Cleaner, Greener' Cleanup Sites

The 18th annual "Cleaner, Greener" Quincy celebration is scheduled for Saturday, May 5 and Mayor William Phelan is encouraging interested residents to designate a cleanup site in their neighborhood and participate in the day dedicated to sprucing up city parks, beaches, marshes, school grounds and open space areas.

"Each year the 'Cleaner, Greener' turnout reveals the overwhelming sense of pride residents share for their city and their neighborhood," said Phelan. "I encourage all of our residents to join in the effort, whether it's taking extra time caring for their own property for the benefit of the neighborhood, designating or joining a cleanup site on May 5."

The clean up lasts from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and is capped off in Merrymount Park where Phelan will host an appreciation cookout for all volunteers. In addition, all volunteers will receive a "Cleaner, Greener" T-shirt for their hard work and dedication.

Some residents have already organized a site in their neighborhood. To date the clean up sites include:

Ward One: Edgewater Drive Beach, Perry Beach, Post Island Road Beach, Gull Point/Snug Harbor School and Merrymount School.

Ward Two: Avalon Beach, Mound Street Beach and Faxon Park.

Ward Three: The Bog, Bishop Field (Montclair), Newport Avenue/Beale Street and Intersection (Wollaston Garden Club).

Ward Four: O'Rourke Park/Flaherty Park and Sterling Middle School.

Ward Five: Wollaston Beach, Butler Pond/Central Middle School and Sailors Home Pond.

Ward Six: Nickerson Beach, Orchard Beach,

Squantum Causeway (Squantum Seaside Gardeners), Squaw Rock and Squantum School.

The Park Department will support the beautification effort by providing the necessary tools including rakes, brooms, gloves, shovels and other equipment. Additionally, the Public Works Department will assist in hauling the refuse amassed throughout the day as well as work on the city's beaches to remove driftwood and debris washed ashore from winter storms.

"The municipal effort on 'Cleaner, Greener' is just as important as the volunteer effort as we continue to work cooperatively with residents to keep our neighborhoods first," added the Mayor.

To designate a clean up site or for more information, kindly contact the Park Department at (617) 376-1251 or email keohane@ci.quincy.ma.us.

flood prone areas. "Our system was taxed but we utilized the resources we had to their fullest capabilities," said Carlisle.

He said the toughest battles came around 2 o'clock and 10 o'clock Monday morning but the pumps prevented any serious damage.

"There was some streets flooding," said Gorman. "The water table is so high this time of year that it only takes a little rain to push the water up into cellars.

The worst flooding was in Arlington Street in the Montclair section where the pumps fought a losing battle with rising water that turned the street into a pond.

The Park and Forestry Department reported many tree limbs taken down by the 50 mile an hour winds. Crews were out Monday and Tuesday cleaning up the damage.

"The planned response from our DPW has mitigated some potential serious flood problems in areas that historically have had significant personal property damage," said Mayor William Phelan.

"Despite the torrential rains and high tides crews were able to limit the impact of the storm and allow residents to breathe a sigh of relief at the storm's conclusion."

Gorman said the city's four major shelters at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and the Atherton Hough and Squantum Schools were stocked and ready for action but no one showed up.

Phelan was first elected mayor in 2001, defeating incumbent James Sheets, Councillor Joseph Newton in 2003 and was re-elected again without opposition.

"I have been given the tremendous honor and privilege of being the mayor of the city in which I grew up and love. I will work tirelessly over the coming months to remind the voters why they elected me mayor in the first place. The taxpayers of this city, and not the special interests, will al-

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

A Quincy Firefighter And Proud Of It

Let me give you an example of how a recent fire was successfully approached.

Keep in mind that although firefighters prefire plan their methods of approaching fires in specific occupancies and routinely drill in rescue techniques, an officer responding to a structure fire must make his decisions and formulate tactics within seconds of his arrival. What he finds then and there will dictate his immediate response and action taken.

On Friday morning at 5:45 a.m. this department received a call for a house fire at 4 Merrymount Ave. Quincy Fire Department dispatched then immediately announced throughout the eight fire stations that there was a report of a fire at that address. Firefighters then know what streets are within their districts and were preparing to leave those stations even before the formal assignments were announced.

In this incident Engine 4 and Ladder 2 were the first trucks to arrive considering that Merrymount Ave. is within their district. They arrived within two minutes of the initial call. It is my understanding that upon arrival there was heavy smoke and fire showing, much of it from the rear of the building. Engine 4 lead by Lt. Daniel Coletti, with firefighters Pat Bryan and Jim Devlin dragged a line into the building to begin extinguishment efforts. A charged line not only extinguishes fire, but also facilitates rescue attempts and protects personnel.

While this was taking place, Ladder 2 positioned themselves in the front of the building to rescue the occupants perched on the roof, one on the upper roof, another on a lower roof. It is my understanding the FF John Cadegan and FF Mark Paolucci assisted one of these occupants over the truck's aerial ladder while Lt. Ronald Shannon and FF Paul Kearns assisted the other over a ground ladder thrown against the building by FF Kearns. Both occupants were threatened by impinging heat and smoke and were rescued in time.

I'm attempting to convey one portion of a fire incident, typically the most important part, the initial sizeup and action taken by first apparatus on the scene. It tends to set the trend for the entire incident. In this incident these companies successfully approached the incident with the protection of a charged hose line in tandem with the successful rescue attempts over effective ladder placement. The outcome is certainly worth noting.

Although this initial aspect of the extinguishment and rescue efforts at a fire is just the beginning of what transpires, it would take too many paragraphs to detail what occurs and what did occur at this fire from the first call to the "all-out." Suffice it to say it takes many hands and much direction from an experienced incident commander.

However, it's the action of these men identified and all others who responded and not mentioned here that make a difference and got the job done on Friday morning. These are the efforts I've consistently witnessed in my 29 years on the Quincy Fire Department and that I proudly recognize here as well.

I'm proud to be a part of it.

Delahunt Panel Examines Declining World Opinion Of United States

Congressman William Delahunt, Chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Oversight Subcommittee, has resumed hearings this week examining the impact of the Bush administration's foreign policies on world opinion towards the United States.

Andrew Kohut, president of the Pew Research Center and the author of a new book, "America Against the World" was scheduled to testify Wednesday before the Subcommittee. Kohut and the Pew Center have done extensive research examining the decline in world opinion toward the United States. His testimony is part of a series Delahunt has organized to inform the Congress and the American people what those living in other countries think about American foreign policies, values, and its people.

Last week, Delahunt joined with Congressman Elliot Engel, Chairman of the Western Hemisphere Subcommittee, to hear from John Zogby, of Zogby International, a widely respected international polling firm. Zogby told Delahunt and other members of the panel that the war in Iraq has helped drive Latin America public opinion about the United States to an all-time low. The testimony was given while President Bush was traveling through South America and visiting foreign leaders, amidst widespread protests.

WILLIAM DELAHUNT

Zogby also pointed out that surprisingly 86% of Latin America's business and civic leaders-or "elites"-gave an unfavorable rating to what they considered the Bush administration's "go it alone" approach to conflict in the world. Zogby indicated that these are people who have typically held more conservative views. He identified the main component of their negative opinion toward the United States as the war in Iraq. However, he also stated that people in Latin America follow very closely United States policies on immigration and free trade.

Zogby testified that "U.S. policies have angered and alienated not only the general population, but also the elite communities who traditionally are more pro-American." He also stated that "to conclude, I would just like to highlight the casual pattern that places these findings into context. Our work has revealed several trends. First, the opinion of the United States handling of relations, immigration and world conflicts has fallen over the last few years, as has the ratings of President Bush. This decline has led to lower opinion of the American people, the American government and the overall importance of the United States as a regional player."

Following Zogby's testimony, Delahunt commented that "the deterioration of our image in Latin America is disturbing. This decline in our approval damages our national security by making it harder for Latin American governments to cooperate with us. The fact that our values and our people continue to receive positive ratings even as our policies are rejected shows that there is disappointment among our friends who perceive that our deeds are failing to match our ideals."

Earlier in the week, the oversight panel also heard from Dr. Steven Kull, from the Program on International Policy Attitudes and Editor of Publicopinion.org. Kull presented compelling testimony that showed a significant drop in world opinion of the United States in the aftermath of the Iraq invasion. He testified to panel members that the unilateral decision to invade Iraq has caused favorable opinions of the United States to drop significantly since 2000 in nearly every country they have polled. In many cases, public opinion dropped by more than 50%.

Kull noted that "there are a few countries that get a lower rating than the United States. In a BBC poll we released this morning, Israel, Iran and, by some measures, North Korea received lower ratings. However, the United States is rated far lower than France, Japan, Canada, China, India and Russia. The good news is that there is an abundance of evidence that the unhappiness with the United States is not a rejection of U.S. values. People around the world say that the problems they have with the U.S. concern its policies not its values."

7 Deadly Mistakes That Will Cost You Thousands When You Sell Your Home

Quincy - A new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9 Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market. The fact of the matter is that fully three quarters of homesellers don't get what they want for their home and become disillusioned and - worse - financially disadvantaged when they put their home on the market.

As this report uncovers, most homesellers make 7 deadly mistakes that will cost them literally thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable.

In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar."

Koch Draws Nearly 1,500 To Mayoral Campaign Kickoff

A crowd estimated at nearly 1,500 attended mayoral candidate Tom Koch's official campaign kick-off in the ballroom at Granite Links Golf Club on a cold, rainy Thursday night last week.

"I'm still in awe and just incredibly thankful," said Koch. "To fill a room that big on such a bad night is a wonderful sign that a real grassroots energy is building for positive change in Quincy. We're going to ride that energy all the way through November— but we still have plenty of work to do."

In a brief speech to supporters, Koch reflected on the values of public service taught by his mother and his late father, Park Commissioner and Koch Club Founder Richard Koch, saying that it was time to restore those ideals to City Hall.

"You work hard, you help people who need it, and you treat every person with respect," Koch said, noting that an "arrogance of leadership" had infected City Hall in recent years.

"It's not about political power— It's about empowering people," he said. "We can do better. We must do better. And with the help of all of you here tonight, we will do better for the future of Quincy."

Organizers said the overflow crowd quickly filled the parking available at the Granite Links lot, requiring shuttle buses to take hundreds of guests to and from a satellite lot nearly a half-mile away. A number of brave souls made the trek by foot up a steep hill from the satellite parking to the event.

Campaign Chairman Jack Nigro said that traffic heading to the event was backed up all the way to Copeland Street— past Curry Hardware. He said that anyone who didn't get to the event because of the traffic and parking crush should contact the campaign for free tickets to its next event.

"I can't thank people enough for coming out on Thursday, and I also want to thank all the volunteers who made the night possible," Koch said. "We had two guys getting soaked escorting people inside with umbrellas, two young men who gave up much of their night to handle the parking situation, and people working tables all night. It was a wonderful vibe."

Nigro said the crowd estimate was based on sign-in sheets that showed 1,250 people had registered and the cash collections for the night totaled more than $25,000, mostly in $20 tickets.

"We know that a number of people didn't sign in, and we told folks that the $20 wasn't mandatory— so I think the crowd number was probably a lot closer to at least 1,500," Nigro said.

Koch told those attending: "I am truly grateful for your presence here tonight and I am overwhelmed with the positive response to our candidacy for Mayor."

"Since our announcement, I have received countless notes of encouragement, donations and help in this effort to bring new leadership to City Hall. And from the bottom of my heart, I say, 'Thank you.' And I might add, 'Keep it up.'"

"I believe a good leaders leads by example, treats everyone with respect and brings people together to solve problems. It's not about who gets the credit; it's about getting results. It's not about assigning blame; it's about taking responsibility. It's not about political power; it's about empowering people."

"Most of you know that, in January, I left a job I loved. It was not an easy decision— one that had great implications for my family. But the overwhelming desire to stand up for what is right and to do something to protect our great city's future compelled me to take on this challenge. I believe we can do better."

"Nobody should be afraid or intimidated to reach out to City Hall. Nobody should feel their concerns are not being addressed, their phone calls not returned, their requests for help ignored. This arrogance of leadership has infected almost every major issue facing the city today— from the school construction which has become Quincy's own Big Dig to our neighborhoods, to public safety, to taxes and finances. It burns every bridge that it crosses. It treats people disrespectfully and it fails to take responsibility for its own actions. We can not let it continue."

"My friends, this city needs new leadership. We need to put people first. I know we have difficult challenges ahead. But if we put the right people in the right places, bring people together and roll up our sleeves, there is nothing we can't accomplish. We can create a positive new connection between government and our people. We can take the best that every person has to offer and put it to work. We can treat every person, no matter who they are or what they do, with respect."

"It is time for a positive new vision for Quincy, and over the coming weeks and months we'll take our campaign to every ward, precinct, neighborhood and street. We'll be listening to residents, and sharing our ideas on how we'll meet the challenges head-on that face our city."

"I humbly ask you all tonight to let me use my lifelong dedication to this city in the place where it can do the most good: The office of mayor."

Ladies and gentlemen, elections are about the future. And for the future of Quincy, the best is yet to come. We can do better. We must do better. And with the help of all of you, I know we will do better for this great city."

Live Auction Raises $130,000 For Mini Fenway Park

Fans of the Boston Red Sox and of youth baseball and softball will be thrilled to hear that Fenway Park License Plate is now available and can be ordered by going to the Registry of Motor Vehicles' Website at www.mass.gov/rmv/express/plates.htm.

The license plate features an artist's rendition of the 95-year-old Fenway Park, the home of the Boston Red Sox.

Proceeds from sales of the Fenway Park License Plate will benefit Mini Fenway Park, a kid-sized replica of Boston's fabled ballpark to begin construction in Quincy in late spring. Funds collected will help support both capital and operations needs for building the facility and implementing its youth development programs.

On April 7, a live auction of 12 license plates at Fenway Park's State Street Pavilion, helped raise about $130,000, said Ron Iacobucci, chief executive officer of Kids Replica Ballpark, Inc., a non-profit organization licensed by the Boston Red Sox and Major League Baseball to build the replica park.

Overall, the license plates and the live auction at Fenway Park generated more than $200,000 for Mini Fenway. About $60,000 came from the sale of the initial 1,500 license plates, $25,000 for ticket sales for the fundraiser and $20,000 from in-kind contributions.

Proceeds from an online auction of the plates that were part of the fundraiser are still being tabulated by Major League Baseball and could generate another $100,000.

Jayne Parker, NESN SportsDesk reporter hosted the live auction, and the auctioneer was Dan Flynn, real estate developer and manager.

Others attending the event included former Red Sox pitcher Luis Tiant; Dr. Charles Steinberg, Executive Vice President of the Boston Red Sox; Shonda Schilling; Joe Brill, president QHS Baseball Hall of Fame and Pat McDermott, Norfolk County Register of Probate.

"The public is encouraged to go the Website and place an order for their own Fenway Park License Plate," said Iacobucci this past week. "They are in production and we are looking to add at least another 1,500 within the next two years."

Mini Fenway will be built on 12 acres of land in the Blue Hills Reservation (Quincy) located directly off Exit 8 on I-93.

For more information, visit www.redsox.com/minifenywaypark or info@kidsreplicaballpark.org.

Quincy Youths Awarded Scholarships To BC High

William J. Kemeza, president of Boston College High School, announces five Quincy residents have been named recipients of Boston College High School scholarships.

The students are: Justin R. Coscia, Hugh G. O'Connell, Brian W. Tam, Phillip W. Toomey and Daniel G. Wu, all of Quincy.

Coscia and O'Connell are eighth graders at St. Ann Elementary School, Quincy; Tam at The Boston Archdiocesan Choir School, Toomey and Wu at Central Middle School.

Toomey won a Freshman scholarship; Coscia, O'Connell, Tam, and Wu won Ignatian scholarships, named for St. Ignatius of Loyola, founder of the Society of Jesus.

Each year, Boston College High School awards over $2.5 million in scholarship and financial aid to qualified students from all four-class years. The scholarships were awarded to students from a diverse and highly competitive applicant pool to the BC High class of 2011.

The five young men were selected based on their outstanding work on the entrance examination, recommendations from teachers and distinguished academic performance at their schools. They will join the BC High Class of 2011.

Real Estate Sales Addendum

The sales contract addendum is your best friend when you're buying a house. The real estate agent might have mixed allegiances and the home seller might push for top price, but with the addendum you can cover many if not all of your wants and wishes.

Tops on your list should be safety concerns about health hazards. Most states require disclosures to be given by the seller to the buyer for things like previous flood or fire, but not all states cover all contingencies. You can cover that yourself via the contract addendum. Keep in mind the eventual value of your home when you sell because these same issues can come up then, too.

Radon is a colorless, odorless gas that causes lung cancer. It comes up from the soil into the house, where it's breathed into the lungs. The Environmental Protection Agency sets a safety limit on radon. After that cutoff is reached, radon abatement (removal) is recommended. Contact the EPA branch in your state or go to epa.gov for more information on the types of tests (short term vs. long term) for radon, and for qualified radon inspectors. Include in your addendum who will pay for abatement should radon be found.

Asbestos, if found, comes under state and federal regulation when it comes to removing it. Often it's contained (painted over) instead of being removed, as that keeps the fibers from being released. Asbestos can be found in places such as siding, pipes, vinyl tile and roofing in older homes.

Lead-based paint disclosures are generally required for any house built before 1978, but ask for a test if you're not given a disclosure.

With a home inspection you might need to ask for additional tests for some concerns, such as termites and mold, as they might not be covered under a general inspection.

Other areas to investigate before you buy: Superfund (contaminated waste) sites in the area, and the location of nearby sex offenders.

No matter what your state's laws, remember that as a buyer you can ask for anything in your offer to purchase. Your health, plus the future value of your home, could be at risk.

David Uffington regrets that he cannot personally answer reader questions, but will incorporate them into his column whenever possible. Write to him in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475 or send e-mail to letters.kfws@heartsinc.com.

Five Steps To A Beautiful Garden

(NAPS) – OK, you've seen all the garden magazines, and you've been to your friend's house with the garden that says "Wow!" Now you want to try your hand at designing one that's an extension of your personality.

"Like your wardrobe, your garden is uniquely yours," says Bayer Advanced Garden Expert Lance Walheim, co-author of "Landscaping for Dummies." "Don't be afraid to choose colors and textures that show off your personality."

Of course, a great garden takes planning:

• Work with what you already have – If a large tree is already part of your landscape, make it a part of your new garden design by layering. Plant smaller trees next to it, then shorter shrubs next to those. Fill in with plants and flowers that grow lower to the ground for a balanced look.

• Keep your god looks growing all year – Choose plants and shrubs that provide more than one season of color. By using a combination of flowers, fruit and foliage, as well as interesting barks, your garden's beauty will appear different each season. Azaleas can show off bright blooms from early April through July. Hawthorns flower in mid-spring, and have orange-to-red leaves in the fall and berries in winter.

Summer-blooming crape myrtles have shiny, peeling bark and orange-red color in autumn.

• Looks good, tastes great – Many fruit and nut trees have fragrant flowers, gorgeous foliage and delicious fruit. The textures and colors of many vegetables make them ideal for planting with flowers. Low-growing berries work well as ground flowers.

• Don't forget about fragrance – A variety of scents will add an extra dimension to your garden. Fragrances evoke emotional responses, and certain scents will set specific moods. Put strongly scented plants-citrus trees, gardenias or roses-toward the center of the garden and lightly fragrant ones-like paper whites, lilies of the valley or scented geraniums-closest to pathways or edges.

• Protect against pests – Snails and slugs are among the most frustrating and destructive garden pests. They'll consume almost anything with fruit, flowers or foliage before you even know they're there. Bayer Advanced Dual Action Snail & Slug Killer Bait quickly attracts and kills snails and slugs. And there's good news for the 64 million pet owners in the U.S.: This product can be used around pets and wildlife.

The Active Consumer

How to Choose In An Open Energy Market

By MIKE BECK

(NAPS) – Choosing an energy provider is just like other household purchase decisions: You should look for reliability; direct and friendly service and the type of offering that matches your lifestyle.

In the same way that deregulation of the telecommunications industry led to a variety of value-added services, competition in the electricity and natural gas industry has prompted companies to think about new ways of providing you with value. Some of these offerings include:

• Fixed pricing: Choose a payment plan that sets the monthly price for your energy costs.

• Bundled Options: You can choose to have your gas, powered and electricity-related services packaged together in one bill.

• Green Energy: You can now choose a plan with a certain percentage of the energy coming from alternative sources, such as wind power or other renewable forms of energy. With these options in mind, you can now go to the next step, which is choosing your natural gas and electricity provider. Check your state's energy Web site to see if you have a choice of supplier in your market and review the list of suppliers. Against this backdrop, you can now apply a filter in evaluating suppliers.

• Cost should not be the only factor: Customer service, years of experience in deregulated markets and a commitment to your positive experience are also very important. You can find out who has the best customer services and, on the flip side, see the complaint records against a company.

• Competition is all about choice: Take time to find out what competitors offer in your region.

• Beware of hidden charges: Watch out for natural gas and electricity companies that have a "customer charge" or "administration fee."

• Don't be afraid to ask: Friends and neighbors can share with you their experiences with energy suppliers.

For more information, visit the Web site of the provider you've chosen or call its customer service number. Or, visit Direct Energy at www.directenergy.com or call (866) 348-4194.

Avoid Common Moving Mistakes

(NAPS) — The U.S. Census Bureau estimates that more than 15 percent of the population moves every year.

By Samantha Mazzotta

Microwave's Lifespan Is Finite

Q. I have a microwave that has rust in the inside corners. I would like to know if I can paint over the rust. Do I need a special type of paint? — Matt M., East Stroudsburg, Pa.

A. One of the important things to know about microwave ovens is that, while they are very convenient and very safe to use when in good condition, once they begin to age, they can become not so safe to use. When a microwave oven's door seals begin to break down or rust is seen in the cooking area (the inside compartment), the unit should not be used at all.

In the case of interior rust, microwave "leakage" is not really a concern (unless the rust is extreme and compromises the metal box that comprises the cooking area), but electrical arcing is a potential problem. Have you ever accidentally put something containing metal into the microwave and been frightened by the loud popping, sparks and burning odor that immediately start up? Rusty, exposed spots can do that as well, usually to a smaller extent, and you just don't want stray electrical arcs inside any electric appliance.

Many eons ago, when dinosaurs roamed the Earth and I was just a wee lass, microwave ovens were big and expensive and didn't even have digital clocks. Taking them in for repairs back then made sense: They weren't just a small appliance, they were an investment. Today, small-to-medium-size microwave ovens sell for as little as $50 and are very energy efficient.

I recommend that you assess the amount of use the oven actually gets. Do you cook whole turkey dinners in it, or just use it to reheat plates and make popcorn? If it's the latter, a smaller, inexpensive unit will serve. In the meantime, dispose of the old microwave according to your local municipality's guidelines — these can be checked by calling the city or county directly, or visiting its Web site.

Send questions or home-repair tips to homeguir2000@hotmail.com, or write This Is a Hammer, c/o King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

If you're ever among them, there are a few things you should know that can help make the process less confusing and complex.

First, be aware that less than 5 percent of consumers were totally satisfied with their move experience, according to a benchmark survey recently completed by a free Web site designed to guide users through each step of a real estate transaction and move. Often, that's the result of failing to properly plan and prepare for such a life-changing event. For instance, did you know you need to select a moving company at least four to six weeks in advance? More common mistakes that movers make include:

Failing to start early enough: The entire move process can take six months to a year. It's not as simple as putting one house on the market and buying the next; you need to determine where to live, how much you can afford, whether to rent or buy and what the timeline is. The earlier you start to prepare, the smoother the journey.

Forgetting to prepare your current house: Often, consumers jump into the fun "house hunting" stage when they should put more effort into preparing their current home for sale. Take time to make necessary repairs, plant flowers, and repaint and declutter rooms to make your home more appealing to buyers. It saves last minute rushing and lets you maximize the selling price.

Underestimating the power of an advocate: Prospective buyers forget that when responding directly to a property listing, they are working with the seller's agent, not their own. Lisa Manfredi, TotalMove Real Estate Coordinator, explains, "It's imperative to enlist the help of a buyer's agent. He or she is your advocate and there to protect your interests." Her company discovered that less than 20 percent of consumers were completely satisfied with the performance of their agent, which is why it's important to have an unbiased advocate guide you to the best agent for the job.

Believing the process ends with the sale: Some of the most stressful events can include moving your belongings and settling into your new surroundings. It's important to continue your relationship with a knowledge expert who can make sure you're prepared for each issue you have to face and that your transition is a smooth one.

Do-It-Yourself Moving Tips

- Truck Selection. Most movers find the 12- or 16-foot truck perfect for moving a few large items or the contents of a small condo or apartment.

- Reserve your truck at least two weeks in advance.

- Pack smart, loading the heaviest items on the truck first.

- Mark your boxes as you pack, so it's easier to put them in the right room when you unload.

- To ensure a smooth moving day, pick up your truck a day early and practice driving it.

- Take extra precautions when the truck is loaded. Use caution near low hanging tree branches and building overhangs and when cornering. Park in well-lit areas and padlock the rear door.

- Make safety and security a priority. Trucks are taller, wider, heavier and require more stopping distance than the vehicle you are used to driving. Drive slower and take extra precautions, especially when the truck is loaded. When traveling, park in well-lit areas and padlock the rear door.

Create a travel bag for moving day to keep important paperwork, credit cards, identification, change of clothes, drinks and snacks close at hand.

Targeting Thighs With Step Aerobics

Q. I want to lose weight in my legs and thighs. I do step aerobics classes three times a week, but feel like I may be slimming in the wrong places. Is this a possibility?

A. Step aerobics can be a great source of cardiovascular exercise. Using choreography and raised floor steps, you can expend a great amount of calories with this activity. While participating in activities such as step aerobics it is definitely possible to lose weight and body fat throughout your whole body.

The ability to lose weight in one particular area and not others is called "spot training" (or spot reducing). This type of training is unsuccessful because you are unable to choose where and when your body will lose weight and body fat first.

While you are completing a step aerobics program, your whole body is responding to the stresses being placed on it, not just one area. Although you feel your legs and heart doing the majority of the work, your whole body is working together to achieve your goal of finishing the program.

Don't get discouraged—all of your hard work is not going to waste. Your body will respond to your exercise routine and over time show results where you desire. Consider that as you complete a step aerobics routine, you are strengthening your legs and gaining endurance, which will lead to the ability to burn more calories, helping your thighs to lose body fat.

Oftentimes we identify a "problem area" and focus on that area because it is our biggest challenge. Even though our body is working on the area (at its own pace) the progress is sometimes not as quick as we would like. Believe that as long as you are consistent and modify your program accordingly, your exercise routine is working to get the job done.

The changes you are seeing with your body are great. Although the changes may not yet be visible in the thighs and legs, as you desire, your commitment to exercise is improving your overall health.

Remember that a strength-training routine and proper nutrition are important to seeing lasting results. Keep working hard and stay patient and consistent with your exercise program. You may be just a few steps away from seeing the results you desire.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. Here Comes The Sun

People With Diabetes Need More Than Sunglasses To Protect Their Eyes

The crack of the bat on Opening Day at Fenway Park is a sure sign that summer is on its way. From the Green Monster seats to the dunes of Cape Cod, summer means bright sun, ultraviolet rays and of course, sunglasses.

But did you know that people with diabetes need more than sunglasses to protect their eyes?

Diabetes puts people at risk for cataracts, glaucoma and diabetic retinopathy, a leading cause of vision loss. But in the majority of cases, vision can be preserved if the disease is caught early and treated.

The experts at Joslin Diabetes Center's Beetham Eye Institute offer these quick reminders to keep your eyes in great shape not only in the summer but also all through the year:

- Diabetic eye disease can be painless until it reaches very advanced stages, and the earlier you can catch it, the more likely you can preserve your sight.

- You can have perfect vision and still have diabetic eye disease.

- An annual dilated eye exam can identify eye complications early on.

- If your doctor finds early signs of diabetic eye disease, a number of treatments may be recommended, including laser eye surgery, contact lenses, glasses and medications.

- Keeping your A1C (average monthly blood glucose levels) on target, controlling blood pressure and quitting smoking also can help preserve vision and prevent vision loss.

Joslin Diabetes Center has been on the cutting edge of diabetes-related eye disease prevention and care since its inception and has set standards across the world for the treatment and care of people with diabetes.

With more than 360,000 people in Massachusetts diagnosed with diabetes, and thousands more having the disease and not knowing it, there is great risk of vision loss due to diabetic retinopathy.

Comprehensive eye exams on an annual basis, proper management and care of your health, and of course, your favorite pair of sunglasses are all key to seeing your eyes in a new light.

For an appointment at Joslin's Beetham Eye Institute, call (617) 732-2552. For more information on Joslin, visit <http://www.joslin.org/>.

Older Adults and Their Caregivers Benefit From Short-Term Assisted Living Program

What if one of your parents fell, fractured a hip, and after surgery and rehabilitation still didn't feel ready to go home? How would you advise them on the next steps? Who would you turn to for advice and where would they go that would give you both a little peace of mind?

The training staff at Allerton House at Hancock Park in Quincy understands the need for a quick, short-term solution. The community's Short-Stay Program is custom-tailored to meet the needs of older adults and their adult caregivers. The emphasis is on recuperation, wellness, social support and recreation in a supportive residential environment.

"A period of transition at Allerton House offers time for healing and recuperation post-surgery, and is comforting to family members who know their loved ones will have round-the-clock care and wellness services when they need them," says Kelly Richards, marketing director, Allerton House at Hancock Park.

Apartments are spacious and tastefully furnished. There is plenty of guest parking, and many of the fulltime residents are long-time area residents who are well known among the assisted living community and the greater Quincy area.

Short-term residents can select from a range of engaging activities in which to participate.

Accommodations can range anywhere from a few days to a few weeks or months, depending on the needs of an individual and their family. Some short-term services include the same gracious dining and menu choices full-time residents enjoy, 24-hour staffing, full housekeeping and linen services, medication reminders and assistance with personal care such as bathing, which can be difficult and taxing following certain medical procedures.

Allerton House at Hancock Park is an ideal choice for seniors interested in short-term assisted living.

This 42-apartment community is located in the heart of historic Quincy at 164 Parkway and offers an environment supportive of residents' independence and dignity. Allerton House at Hancock Park is owned and managed by Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, a leading provider of housing, healthcare and rehabilitation services for seniors for 55 years.

For a personal tour or more information, call Kelly Richards, marketing director, at (617) 461-2600.

Make Your Favorite Foods Calorie Friendly

(NAPS) — Americans are always hungry for tips that take the misery out of cooking healthy versions of their favorite indulgence foods. That's the idea behind a new television series that lets viewers in on the secrets of making mouthwatering, calorie-friendly favorites.

Devin Alexander, the host of "Healthy Decadence With Devin Alexander," believes you don't have to deprive yourself to be fit and healthy. She has maintained a 55-pound weight loss for over 15 years by making small adjustments when cooking her favorite foods. For instance, did you know you can transform a low-fat tortilla into a thin and crispy pizza crust very similar to the ones you find at your favorite local pizza place? Or that adding instant coffee to brownie batter provides a richer chocolate taste without the unnecessary fat or calories?

Here are some more of Devin's tips that will help you have fun preparing healthy and delicious foods:

- An olive oil sprayer—one that you fill yourself—is essential in healthy cooking. You can use it for so much more than spraying pans. For instance, make faux-fried chicken by breading chicken, baking it, then spraying it with a light mist of olive oil spray. You only need a light coating, but it will register much stronger in your brain because the oil will be the first thing to hit your tongue.

- When cooking burgers, never smash them down with a spatula—this will eliminate all of the juice along with only a tiny bit of fat, particularly if you've started with a lean cut of beef, guaranteeing a dry burger.

- Instead of buying meats from your local deli counter, most of which are chock-full of sodium, try making your own top round roast or turkey roast, then using the leftovers as deli meat. Not only is it likely to be much leaner, you'll save tons of sodium. Plus, you'll also save money.

- A lot of people think turkey burgers or other dishes made with ground turkey are inferior in texture and flavor to their beef counterparts. This is often because people simply swap turkey for beef in recipes that were developed for beef. Because the moisture content is vastly different between turkey and beef, simply substituting one for the other will not yield ideal results. Instead, if you want to serve turkey, take a little bit of extra time to hunt down a recipe that was originally made with turkey or doctor your favorite family recipe to account for the decreased moisture before serving it.

- Make chopped salads instead of salads with chunks of veggies. Chopped salads provide a flavor explosion in your mouth before you even add any dressing, since you meld all of the flavors in each bite. Thus, they require less dressing—which is the most fattening part of most salads.

"Healthy Decadence With Devin Alexander" airs Thursdays at 10:30 p.m. and Sundays at 11:30 a.m. on Discovery Health. For more information about "Healthy Decadence," log on to www.discoveryhealth.com.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

STANDING UP TO PRESSURE

Not only are dental implants nearly identical to natural teeth in terms of appearance, they are just about their equals in terms of function. This is an important factor that patients will want to consider while making their decision about which tooth-replacement method they prefer. While most natural teeth can withstand biting pressure of up to 540 pounds per square inch, implants can withstand 450 pounds per square inch. By contrast, dentures can only withstand about 50 pounds per square inch of biting pressure. On top of that, implants can help prevent gum recession and reabsorption of the jawbone by actually mimicking the architecture of the natural teeth they replace. These functional advantages make dental implants the natural choice.

Dental implants look and feel like your own teeth. And because they are designed to fuse with bone, they become permanent. Dental implants can give you back your smile, and help you feel better about yourself. We are a highly qualified and experienced team of professionals — and we're able to help you make the most of your smile. For quality, compassionate dental care, please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. At our office, located at 44 Greenleaf Street, we are proud of our staff — a staff dedicated to helping you look and feel better. We are grateful for the trust our patients have placed in us by choosing us to provide their dental care. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. A dental implant is an artificial tooth root (made of titanium) that is surgically anchored into the jaw to hold a replacement tooth or bridge in place.

Presidents Crush Somerville In Opener

By SEAN BRENNAN

Guess the Quincy Presidents' varsity baseball team didn't get the message about how the cold weather is supposed to favor the pitcher and not the batter.

Quincy (1-1) finally got to play its 2007 season opener last Tuesday afternoon against Somerville High School at Adams Field. The Presidents, behind the pitching of senior Dan Myers and the hitting of its entire lineup, stormed back from an early first-inning 4-0 hole, to beat Somerville 15-5.

"We finally got to play our season opener," said relieved head coach Mike Draicchio. "The boys were itching to get out and play and after we fell behind 4-0 after the first inning, our pitching and offense really turned it up. Dan Myers got through the opening inning and settled down to pitch into the fifth inning to earn the win."

"The entire team hit the ball well, but it was John Alexander who got us started with a big run scoring double in the first inning."

Quincy received production on offense from Teddy Walsh (2-4, 2 RBI), Rick Sulvucci (2-4, RBI), Steve Connolly (1 RBI, 3 runs scored), Wendell Cosgrove (4-4, triple, 4 RBI), Anthony

BASEBALL

Gilbody (RBI) and Myers (2-4, 2 RBI).

"It was a great all-around performance for us on offense," Draicchio said. "Once we got the bats started, it just continued for the whole game. It was a good game because with the big lead I was able to get every player into the game. Once Dan settled down, he controlled the pace of the game."

The team continued its torrid hitting on Saturday morning against King Philip Regional High School, but a spotty pitching performance cost the team dearly in a 12-8 loss.

"We played pretty well for a Saturday morning game," Draicchio said. "We fell behind early (5-0 after two innings) and the large number of walks we gave King Philip really hurt us in the end. The offense did everything it could to try and get us back into the game, but in the end it was not enough."

In the third inning, Quincy cut the deficit to 9-4 behind some clutch hitting from Mike Leone (single), Rick Sulvucci (RBI single) and John Alexander (2-run HR), but the team gave it right back in the fourth inning and could never catch up.

"When you score eight runs in a game you expect to win," Draicchio said. "The walks early cost us, but the positive that came out of the game was that we did fight back for the second straight game on offense."

"It has only been two games, but so far we have been doing great at all three levels of our baseball program. The varsity is hitting the ball well and looking forward we should be in good shape, our jayvee team is currently 2-0 and our freshman team is sitting at 1-1. The baseball program is doing well and that is good news for today and in the future."

Quincy was scheduled to begin their QHS/NQHS Baseball Tournament on Tuesday (weather permitting). The team is already behind the 8-ball in Atlantic Coast League play. The team's scheduled league opener against Nauset High School was rained out last Thursday and will have to be rescheduled at a future date.

After the school vacation, the Presidents play host to Plymouth North on Monday (4/23) at Adams Field. The game begins at 4 p.m.

THE QUINCY SQUIRT Bs celebrate with their trophies after their 5-4 triple overtime victory over Hyde Park in the Greater Boston League Championship. Mike Finn scored the game-winner.

Wins 5-4 In Triple Overtime

Squirt B's Edge Hyde Park For League Championship

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt B team recently won the Greater Boston League Championship with a 5-4 triple overtime victory over the Hyde Park Squirt A team.

After finishing a season that included games against some of the best Squirt A teams in the area and a Gold Medal Round appearance at the Lake Placid, NY Hockey Tournament in January, the Quincy Squirts fought their way into the playoffs.

Quincy knocked off the 11-1 Brookline Squirt A team in the opening round 4-3 behind three goals from Mike Finn. Mike Gendreau also scored to help Quincy advance to the championship game against Hyde Park.

In the finals, Quincy's victory was a total team effort. Backed by the exceptional goaltending of Nolan Greene and Ryan Higgins, Quincy won in three overtimes. Scoring for the Quincy Squirts were Mike Gendreau (1 goal), Sam Silcox (3 goals) and Mike Finn (overtime game-winner).

Quincy Police Marine Unit Co-Sponsoring Boating Safety Course

The Quincy Police Marine Unit, in partnership with the Massachusetts Environmental Police, will present a Basic Boating Safety Course at no cost to the public. The course is designed for persons of all ages, regardless of boating skill.

This course is federally approved and completion of the course will allow persons to legally operate a boat in states that require completion of a Basic Boating Safety Course.

Everyone who completes the course will be issued a basic Boating Safety Certificate. Completion of the course by persons between 12-16 years of age will allow them to operate a motorboat without adult supervision. In addition, some insurance companies offer policy discounts for customers that complete a Basic Boating Safety Course.

The course will be held from 12 noon to 4 p.m. on three consecutive Saturdays: April 21, April 28 and May 5.

The course is taught at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 137 Bayview Ave. (next to the Quincy Yacht Club on Sea St.).

For more information, call the Massachusetts Environmental Police at (508) 790-9360 or the Quincy Police Marine Unit at (617) 594-4848.

Honors For 19 New Inductees

QHS Baseball Hall Of Fame Banquet May 10

The Quincy High School Baseball Alumni Association and Hall of Fame Committee would like to announce that Bill Monbouquette will be the guest speaker at the QHS Baseball Hall of Fame banquet.

Monbouquette wore the number 27 for the Red Sox, making his first Major League start on July 18, 1958. He won at least 14 games from 1960-63, with a career-high 20 victories in 1963. He was a four-time all-star and pitched a no-hitter in 1962 against the Chicago White Sox and set a club record with 17 strikeouts against the Washington Senators in 1961.

The Quincy High School Baseball Alumni Association and Hall of Fame Committee announces the names of fifteen former Quincy High School baseball players to be inducted into the Quincy High School Hall of Fame on May 10, 2007.

The Hall of Fame Banquet will be held at the Quincy Sons of Italy. The social hour is from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m., with dinner and the awards ceremonies to follow. Tickets to the Hall of Fame Banquet are $25 and can be purchased by contacting Joseph Brill, chairman of the QHSBBAA, at (617) 770-4813.

The 2007 inductees include Gerald Curtis ('46), Bob Gumpwright ('41), Frances "Frannie" Pineau ('49), Dan Raymond ('65), Ted Meyers ('69), Bob Pettinelli ('69), Bob Lane ('73), Joe Brill ('74), Paul Sutherland ('76), Gary DiNardo ('81), Tom Balzano ('91), Robert "Robbie" Kane ('93), Tom Malvesti ('94) and the late Steve Barrett ('95).

For the first time the QHSBBAA/Hall of Fame Committee is including the Old Quincy Trade School and announces that Gino Pettiti ('39) and Frances "Shorty" Donovan ('42) have been inducted.

George Burke will be inducted as only the third Honorary Member into the Hall of Fame, joining former Quincy mayor James Sheets and former Minnesota Twins manager Sam Mele.

Warren Finley and A. "Bud" Mosher will join the Hall of Fame as former coaches.

The Hall of Fame committee will also honor four youth coaches who have given their time to teaching the game of baseball to so many kids for so many years. The four include Bill Draicchio, Dick Lombardi and the late John Rossi of Quincy Youth Baseball and Tony Constantino from St. John's Baseball.

The Paul Grasso Memorial Baseball Book Scholarship will be awarded to a senior who will further their education and baseball skills at the college level. Grasso, who graduated from Quincy High School in 1967, was killed while serving his country during the Vietnam War. Book Scholarships in the name of the late Bill Sullivan and Joe Conti will also be awarded.

A Job Well Done

On Easter Sunday, April 8, at approximately 12:45 p.m., Officers Paul Matthews, John Leuchte and John Landry were dispatched to Faxon Commons on a report of a female screaming and crying for help.

As the officers arrived on the seventh floor, they located the caller, who pointed to the apartment and said, "She's in trouble - they have been fighting like this all day."

As the officers listened outside the apartment door, they heard a female screaming and male yelling and threatening her. They also heard banging and items being thrown. The officers immediately began banging on the door with their fists and then with their nightsticks when no one answered. The officers knew they would have to enter the apartment to rescue the female from an unknown danger. Officer Matthews gave the door two kicks near the lock and forced the door open. The officers scanned the area for direct threats.

They suspect a male (suspect) with pants ripped in the crotch area, out of breath and sweating profusely. The officers also found a female (victim) in the corner of the bathroom wrapped in a towel, visibly upset and crying. After learning they were husband and wife, the officers removed them to separate rooms to determine what happened.

The wife was brought to their bedroom, which was in complete disarray, with the television and clothing strewn about the floor. Officer Leuchte discovered an iron on the bed with a trace of blood on it. He also observed the female had reddish marks on her neck and chin.

Officer Matthews learned from the suspect that he and his wife had an argument, which escalated into the suspect going around the apartment destroying his own property. When asked if he hit his wife during the argument, the suspect said, "I might have pushed her once or twice."

The suspect said he was not aware of any marks around her neck and she said that she did it to herself. With doubtful looks from the officers, she quickly changed her story, stating "it might have happened the night before."

The officers learned that, based on their training and experience, the wife was not telling the truth. Based on the suspect's statement that he may have pushed her once or twice, the volatility of the verbal argument, the freshness of the marks, the condition of the apartment and the knowledge that victims often are afraid to come forward with a verbal statement against their partner for a multitude of reasons, Officer Matthews placed the husband/suspect under arrest for "domestic assault and battery."

The wife was given a pamphlet explaining her rights of protection. The officers told her they would assist her in getting a restraining order against her husband, but she was adamant that she did not want one and only wanted her husband back home.

The officers further explained that a restraining order could be sought with the condition that he could live with her but was not to physically or verbally abuse her.

Again, she refused our offer to help. Unfortunately, when someone is a victim of domestic violence and does not take action, there is a high chance that we will be back again, and often times the physical violence is worse.

To the officers, nice work!

FRAUD SCHEME: From Day Patrol Lt. John Steele: Two recent reports of "flim flam artists" who are entering Asian businesses posing in the Greater Boston area as "government compliance officers" or a similar title, telling proprietors that they are required to purchase and post signs such as minimum wage and other labor laws. The signs are actually free of charge from appropriate state agencies, but these unscrupulous people are trying to scam and intimidate those unfamiliar with the law.

HOCUS-FOCUS BY HENRY BOLTINOFF

Find at least six differences in details between panels.

Differences: 1. Sign is missing. 2. Step is added. 3. Window is smaller. 4. Tree is added. 5. Vest is added. 6. Hat is different.

The Garden Bug

Plan for vine growth

When planting a flowering vine, consider its light requirements, and its support needs when fully grown. A vigorous, thick-stemmed grower might outstrip a flimsy, store-bought trellis in one summer, and insufficient sun might cause it to flower poorly or not at all.

Salome's Stars

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) There still might be some communication problems in the workplace, but they should be resolved soon. Meanwhile, that "tip" from a friend should be checked out.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A new relationship appears to need more from you than you might be willing to give right now. Best advice: Resist making promises you might not be able to keep.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) That restless feeling encourages you to gallop off into a new venture. But remember to keep hold of the reins so you can switch paths when necessary.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A demanding work schedule keeps the high-spirited Goat from kicking up his or her heels. But playtime beckons by the week's end. Have fun. You earned it.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're beginning to come out from under those heavy responsibilities you took on. Use this freed-up time to enjoy some much-deserved fun with people close to you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Before you get swept away by a tidal wave of conflicting priorities, take time to come up for air, and reassess the situation. You might be surprised by what you'll find.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your leadership qualities are enhanced by a practical sense of purpose that keeps you focused on your goals.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The Lamb loves to be surrounded by flocks of admirers. But be careful that someone doesn't take his or her admiration too far. Use your persuasive skills to let him or her down easily.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This is a good time to begin setting far-reaching goals and connecting with new contacts. Aspects also favor strengthening old relationships — personal and/or professional.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A personal disappointment should be viewed as a valuable learning experience. Go over what went wrong and see where a change in tactics might have led to a more positive outcome.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Don't leave projects unfinished or personal obligations unresolved, or you might find yourself tripping over all those loose ends later on. A relative has important news.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Expect a challenge to the usual way you do things. Although you might prefer the tried-and-true, once you take a good look at this new idea, you might feel more receptive to it.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Much work has yet to be polished a still-rough idea into something with significant potential. Expect to encounter some initial rejection, but stay with it nonetheless.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Walk For Hunger To Benefit Local Food Pantries

More families than ever are turning for help from the emergency food programs funded by Project Bread's Walk for Hunger. To respond, Project Bread is asking everyone to recruit teammates and donors for the 2007 Walk which is scheduled for Sunday, May 6.

In Massachusetts, 450,000 people struggle to put food on the table, and more people than ever are living up for meals and groceries from emergency soup kitchens and food pantries.

The Walk for Hunger is the oldest continual pledge walk in the country and the largest event to relieve local hunger. The event benefits 64 emergency food programs in the South Shore area, including several in Quincy.

"We see an average of three to five clients a week," says Cathy Jacques, pantry coordinator of the Germantown Neighborhood Center Pantry in Quincy. "We're seeking people who own homes, but just can't make ends meet. We also have single mothers, seniors, and families — all of which are struggling to provide the daily nutrition they need to survive."

For 38 years, the Walk for Hunger has provided critical resources for hungry people in Massachusetts. This year, 42,000 people are expected to take part in the event, walking with friends, family, or as part of a team.

Participants can walk all or part of the 20-mile scenic route, which weaves through Boston, Brookline, Newton, Watertown, and Cambridge.

For more information, call 617-723-5000.

First Baptist Selected For Small Church Meeting

First Baptist Church of Wollaston has been selected to be one of 25 participants in a nationwide conference in support of small congregations June 20-28 at the Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria, VA.

The annual Summer Collegium is funded by the "Making Connections" initiative of the Lilly Endowment, Inc., which enables the Seminary to offer it at no cost. The estimated cost per clergy participant is more than $15,000.

Participating clergy and their spouses/partners will spend nine days learning and renewing their appreciation for the small church by taking workshops led by small church experts.

The Rev. C. Michael Cunningham and his wife, Vickie, will prepare for their visit to Alexandria by reading assigned texts and working with their congregations in preparation for the Collegium and will do a follow up project later.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

People who are sensitive to the suffering and misfortune of others are generally happy people. Showing pity for kindly action is like lending a helping hand.

Jesus said on one occasion,

"Lay not up for yourselves treasures on earth... but lay up for yourself treasures in heaven."

Every time we do something for someone else, every time we set ourselves aside that another may live a fuller life, every time that we contribute to some project for human betterment, we are laying up spiritual treasures. If we think about the matter for a moment we realize that the only money we have truly saved unto eternity is the money we have spent unselfishly for the benefit of others. There are treasures stored away "where moth and rust do not corrupt."

SPRING CAR CARE

Make Used-Car Shopping Simple, Easy... And Fun!

(NAPS) - If you're one of the millions of Americans who are considering purchasing a used car - perhaps a second vehicle for your teen - no problem. That is, unless you unwittingly buy a lemon. Then you've got problems.

Annual U.S. used-car sales exceed 42 million. Only 1.4 million certified used vehicles were sold at dealerships last year. Millions of other uncertified purchases took place at used-car lots and private sales.

While people continue to buy used cars in large numbers, they also find it very stressful. Half of today's used-car buys are women, and a whopping 78 percent find car buying to be their least satisfying retail experience. Fast-talking salesman intimidate some, but others simply don't obtain sufficient information to buy wisely.

So what can one do when considering purchasing a vehicle that may look perfectly fine but in reality may be hiding a Pandora's box of problems under the hood?

If possible, take a mechanic with you. Mechanics can detect engine problems, electrical failures, bad brakes, flood damage and more.

But what if your mechanic is not available?

Many shoppers are turning to CarMD. An easy-to-use, handheld diagnostic device, it incorporates the same basic technology as a mechanic's tools but costs much less. It's like having a mechanic's opinion in your pocket.

You simply plug the tester into the vehicle's OBD2 port (generally found under the dashboard), turn the ignition on and wait a few seconds for the beep. Color-coded LEDs will instantly tell you if the vehicle has any hidden problems.

A green light on the tool indicates that all emissions-related systems are running normally, a yellow light indicates a potential problem, and a red light indicates trouble. It could be something as simple as a loose gas cap or a much more serious and costly problem.

If the "Check Engine" light comes on, ask the seller how long it's been on and when service was last performed on the vehicle.

You can also call 888.MyCarMD from the lot for a free diagnosis on the vehicle you like. Before making an offer, buyers should check other parts of the vehicle not covered by the tester.

Other Handy Tips:

Do your homework before shopping. Check online for evaluations, recalls, technical service bulletins and retention value for the makes and models you prefer. Determine the vehicle's worth before negotiating the price; order a VIN history report/ "lemon check" and proof of mileage.

When shopping, bring a friend along for a second opinion. Also, bring your driver's license and proof of insurance. Other helpful items include a tire gauge, a magnet (to check for body filler under the paint), a flashlight to look under the car and a CD to check the sound system.

Lastly, ask probing questions:

- Who originally owned the vehicle?
- Why are you selling?
- Were there major repairs?
- Has the vehicle passed an emissions "smog" test?

For more used-car-buying tips, visit Used Car Buy/Sell section on the Web site www.CarMD.com or call (888) 692-2763.

For Outstanding Community Service Vincent Moscardelli, P.J. Foley Honored As 'Sun Citizens Of Year'

Vincent R. Moscardelli and Patrick "P.J." Foley were honored Sunday as The Quincy Sun Citizens Of The Year for their outstanding community service.

They are the first co-recipients of the award since it was established in 1985-22 years ago.

Nearly 200 guests-including city and state officials, family and friends-attended the reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center where they received their awards.

A panel of judges selected Foley and Moscardelli as the recipients from among 36 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers. Foley and Moscardelli were in a deadlocked tie vote.

Moscardelli, former principal of Central Junior High School, was selected for his generous support of high school and youth sports and other worthy causes. Foley, was recognized for his dedicated volunteer environmental and conservation efforts and accomplishments.

"We congratulate Vin and P.J. on their selection for the award and also the other 34 nominees," Sun publisher Henry Bosworth said. "Being nominated is an honor in itself."

He and editor Robert Bosworth presented the two recipients with individual clock plaques and framed special Page Ones of The Sun telling of their selection, the names of the 34 other nominees and the selection panel. Copies of the Page One were presented to those attending.

The inscriptions on the plaques read:

"To Patrick "P.J." Foley" For Outstanding Community Service

"Through his untiring environmental and conservation efforts, leading fellow volunteers to restoring over 1,000 acres of precious salt-water marsh and his latest effort to determine the feasibility of renewable wind energy in Quincy."

"To Vincent R. Moscardelli" For Outstanding Public Ser- vice

"As a generous supporter of high school and youth sports, the Muscular Dystrophy Association and other worthy causes, and as a positive role model for his students during his 20 years as a Quincy school teacher and principal."

David Murphy represented Mayor or William Phelan whom he said regretted not being able to attend because he was at a college entrance interview with his daughter.

"Both Vinny and P.J. are personal friends of his and he sends his warmest congratulations to both," Murphy said.

Murphy noted that Moscardelli was one of Phelan's teachers at Central Junior High School "and one of his strongest influences."

A personal friend of Foley's, Murphy called him "Quincy's secret weapon... isn't a cause P.J. isn't involved in... a laundry list

Hundreds Of Leaks Estimated Gas Leaks Seen As Major Threat To City's Trees

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Trees are dying in Quincy because hundreds of gas leaks are seeping into the soil and draining off the oxygen needed for their survival, according to Jan Schlichtmann of the Massachusetts Public Shade Tree Trust.

Schlichtmann outlined his proposal for solving the problem Monday at a meeting of the City Council Oversight and Public Works Committee. Attending the meeting with Schlichtmann were attorney William J. Crowley of Westwood and Bob Ackley of Gas Safety Inc.

Known as the hero of the book and movie entitled "A Civil Action", Schlichtmann is already experienced in dealing with challenging environmental issues and his latest challenge is making utility companies pay for damage to trees.

At Monday's meeting, Ackley estimated that there are from 750 to 1500 gas leaks in the city. Ackley conducts gas leak surveys for cities and towns, which are members of the Shade Tree Trust. Ackley cited reports obtained from Keyspan which supplies natural gas through pipelines to area customers.

On Tuesday, Keyspan's spokesperson Carmen Fields disputed Ackley's estimate and said, "Our current documents indicate the number (of gas leaks currently in Quincy) is considerably less than 750.... The number is around 600."

Fields also said that the number of emergency gas leak reports is minimal compared to the total 600. She explained that gas leaks are rated on a scale of 1 through 3, according to guidelines from federal agencies.

Under the guidelines, any gas leak with a number 1 rating is an emergency and gets immediate attention with leaks rated 2 allowed

Weekly Yard Waste Pickup Resumes This Week

Mayor William Phelan and DPW Commissioner Steve O'Donnell announce that weekly curbside yard-waste pickup will resume this week. Quincy residents can place leaves, grass clippings and other small materials in appropriate bags and containers to be picked up on their regular trash pick-up day.

"We are proud to be one of the few communities to provide this convenient service to our residents," said Phelan. "Most Quincy residents take great pride in the upkeep of their properties and the city will continue to do its part to encourage residents to keep their yards beautiful and clean."

Residents can place leaves, grass and twigs in brown paper yard waste bags or open boxes or barrels (no lids). Yard waste in plastic bags will not be picked up. Tree branches must be cut into pieces three feet in size or less. Residents can drop off large brush and tree limbs at the DPW yard at 55 Sea St. Monday through Friday 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Commercial landscapers must purchase a permit to use the facility.

Weekly yard waste pick-up will continue through June. During the summer months of July, August and September, yard waste will be picked up curbside every other week.

"I want to thank all those residents that do a great job maintaining their yards," Phelan said. "A beautiful yard can make for a beautiful neighborhood and beautiful neighborhoods make for a beautiful city."

For questions concerning yard waste pick-up, call the Public Works Department at 617-376-1953.

Adams National Historic Park Begins 60th Year City Leaders, Students Share Ideas On Attracting Tourists To Park, City

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Dice K, the new Red Sox pitcher, is drawing thousands of new visitors to Boston, and Quincy's city officials and business leaders hope to bring home some of those tourist dollars and a lot more.

Topping the wish list for making Quincy more tourist-friendly is an improved transportation network, according to Joe Hajar, a marketing development officer for Water Transportation Alternatives (WTA).

Hajar says WTA's Harbor Express can get tourists to Quincy's shores but they need wheels to get from its parking lot into and around the city center to its businesses and historic spots.

"Boston is loaded with international visitors," Hajar said, adding they can board WTA's ferries with a destination of Quincy, but need a lift from there.

According to Hajar, there's a 1000 car parking lot at Fore River with dollar-a-day spots but he explained there's no way to get out except by car or on foot. Hajar said that there is no bus or trolley or even private van service connecting WTA's Harbor Express drop-off at Fore River to the city center and its historic sites.

"The missing link is transportation," Hajar said last week at a Listening Session held on this season's Opening Day for Adams National Historic Park. This year, the Adams Park marks its 60th Anniversary as part of the National Park Service (NPS).

Sponsored by the National Park Service, Listening Sessions are being held across the country as the Park Service gears up for its Centennial Celebration in 2016. Such sessions are mini-think tanks aimed at drawing out new proposals and ideas from the public for the nation's park system.

Last week, Superintendent Marianne Peak hosted the Listening Session at Adams Carriage House where some 50 city officials, business leaders, residents, and students exchanged ideas on the national park system, Quincy's historic sites and tourism initiatives.

"You never know where your ideas are going to go," Peaks told the group before the discussion kicked off.

Hajar was one of the more than a dozen participants who outlined their ideas for attracting more visitors to the Adams site, national parks and city businesses.

Speakers not only targeted the need for a transportation system, but, also, the critical need for technology, education and communication, and a friends group.

After calling the Adams Park "an immense resource," Edward Keohane, president of Quincy's Partnership, suggested tie-ins with Quincy hotels, such as the Adams Inn, Marriott and Best Western.

At those hotels, discount coupons for local restaurants and businesses could be packaged along with city tours.

Peter Forman, president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, suggested linkage not only with Quincy sites, but also with the many historic landmarks in other cities and towns from Quincy to Cape Cod National Park.

Park Ranger Tom Speer suggested new booklets and maps featuring trolley stops while others promoted special annual festivals which could highlight historic events and draw visitors to the city and parks.

Mayor William Phelan opened the session by predicting that this season will be a wonderful year for the Adams Park and for added tourism in Quincy that will continue to grow the economy.

Phelan is currently working with Congressman William Delahunt on a project that would link the state's national parks from Boston to the Harbor Islands to Quincy's historic sites straight down to Cape Cod National Seashore.

Under one plan, tourists would use the state's 1000 car parking lot at Squantum Point Park. That lot and a pier adjacent to Marina Bay were built for Deer Island sewer pipeline workers and has been unused since the job was completed.

Deputy Regional Director Sandy Walter spoke after

MRS JOHN QUINCY ADAMS joins Sandy Walter, National Park Service Deputy Regional Director, and Marianne Peaks, Superintendent, during opening day events at Adams National Historic Park. The Adams Park marks its 60th anniversary as part of the park service.

Phelan and outlined President Bush's Centennial Challenge proposal. The Centennial Challenge could bring as much as $3 billion into the nation's park system over the next decade through a 50/50 match of federal and private partnerships.

According to Walter, the first billion is already earmarked for 2008 when, among other projects, the money will bulk up the Ranger Service, offer internships, and improve park properties.

Now the federal agency's directors want ideas from the public and they're particularly targeting the I-Pod generation whose numbers are down at parks across the country. Attracting, educating and inspiring the nation's younger generations is a key goal of the Centennial Challenge and is essential to the park system's survival.

"I'm delighted to see kids from the colleges here. They will inherit these parks," Walter said of the 15 coeds from Quincy College who attended and participated as did Ron Pacy, their history and government professor.

Session speakers were clear that technology is the major route to reaching the younger generation. Speakers repeatedly said that, on both the national and local level, Adams Park and the park system, as a whole, must reach out through websites, video presentations and pod-casts.

However, there should be other outreach as well, according to both Pacy and his students. They suggested that the Adams park service reach out to local schools and colleges with courses, partnerships with professors, and visits to American history classes.

"Surprisingly, few of my students knew of it," Pacy said, noting that Adams Historical Park "is right in the same neighborhood and nobody knows it exists."

Crime Victims Remembered At City Hall Plaza Ceremony

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Victims of crime suffer long after the headlines fade and public outrage diminishes, Mayor William Phelan said Monday as he addressed some 50 persons holding a vigil for crime victims on City Hall Plaza.

Phelan began Quincy's ceremony observing National Crime Victims' Rights Week with a moment of silence for the families and victims suffering from the violent tragedy at Virginia Institute of Technology where 32 people were shot to death.

"Unfortunately, violence is prevalent through-out our society," Phelan said, adding that such scars last "long after the specific act of violence. We must continue to help those impacted by crime."

Joining Phelan at the vigil were Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti, Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating and victims' advocates Stephanie Flaherty, Executive Director of DOVE, Inc., Sarah McAllister, Brockton Family and Community Resources, and Marsha Szymanski, Director of Woman's Place Crisis Center.

"The victim does not go away with the court case," Bellotti said, noting that, far too often, society "moves beyond the victim too quickly." He suggested that more efforts be made "so they feel safe and empowered."

After citing the nightmares that victim endure after crimes, Keating called for the public to join victims in battling violence.

"Let's not be passive," Keating said after asking the public to "be part of it" and join victims in "not taking violence for granted as a part of life."

Keating also believes that efforts to staunch violence can begin in classrooms and he supports increased outreach to victims.

Dove's Flaherty introduced the speakers. Flaherty described the resilience and courage shown by the victims she works with.

Flaherty said, "I am humbled by the courage of the victims to rise above the crime." Their actions tell her "I refuse to be reduced by it."

In a new development, Szymanski announced a new collaboration between Woman's Place and DOVE. Under the plan, DOVE now will share the services of their trained RAPE counselors with Woman's Place.

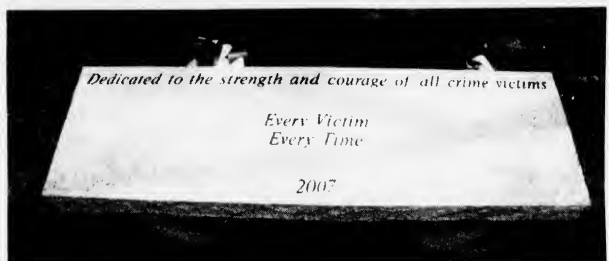

All participants at the ceremony received packets of "Forget Me Not" seeds as well as candles which they struggled to light in honor of victims everywhere. However, a lively breeze snuffed the candles and tossed about the blue and orange balloons marking the colors of this year's theme.

At the conclusion, officials dedicated a new granite bench at City Hall Plaza. The bench is engraved with this year's theme, "Victims Rights: Every Victim. Every Time." Federal funds support victims' awareness programs.

SPEAKERS AT MONDAY'S VIGIL for crime victims included Sarah McAllister of Brockton Family and Community Resources. Shown standing behind McAllister are Monday's other speakers Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating, Mayor William Phelan, and Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti with Ward 4 Councillor Kevin Coughlin.

THIS GRANITE BENCH was dedicated Monday to the strength and courage of all crime victims with this year's theme engraved in the center. The theme is "Every Victim. Every Time." This week is Crime Victims Rights Week.

The case for consolidating your mortgage and home equity line into one loan right now

You had a great rate on your mortgage and didn't want to touch that. But there was something you needed or wanted money for. And adjustable home equity line rates were low-low-low. So you took one out. Now that line keeps adjusting up-up-up. You're feeling the squeeze and suffering with the squeeze. You are not alone. If you're worrying about where rates are going next and simply want to have the same mortgage payment every single month, consider consolidating your original mortgage and that home equity line into one new locked-in fixed rate 30-year loan while those rates are still near historic lows. Come see us and we'll help you figure out if consolidating is right for you. Or call Richard Coleman or Angela Blanchard at 617-471-0750.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On April 23, 1564, according to tradition, English dramatist and poet William Shakespeare is born in Stratford-on-Avon. It is impossible to be certain of the exact date of birth, but he was baptized on April 26. Three days was the customary amount of time to wait before baptizing a newborn.
- On April 26, 1913, 13-year-old Mary Phagan is murdered in Georgia. In spite of lack of evidence, Leo Frank, the Jewish owner of the factory where Phagan worked, was found guilty of the crime. Gov. John Slaton initiated his own investigation, concluded that Frank was innocent and commuted his death sentence. A mob pulled Frank from a prison farm and hanged him while police did nothing to stop the spectacle.
- On April 24, 1936, a group of firemen responding to an alarm in Camden, N.J., is televised. It was the first time an unplanned event was broadcast on television, anticipating the development of live TV news coverage.
- On April 29, 1944, "Dancing Romeo," the last

Our Gang film, is released. In all, more than 100 Our Gang films were made. Later, they were shown as TV comedies under the name "The Little Rascals."

• On April 27, 1954, "White Christmas," Paramount's first wide-screen film, starring Bing Crosby and Danny Kaye, debuts. Wide-screen technology had existed since the 1920s but was not pursued aggressively by Hollywood until the 1950s.

• On April 28, 1965, more than 22,000 U.S. troops land in the Dominican Republic in an effort to forestall what President Lyndon Johnson claims will be a "communist dictatorship" on the island nation.

• On April 25, 1988, publishing rights to a "Gone with the Wind" sequel are sold to Warner Books for $4.94 million. The book, "Scarlett," by Alexandra Ripley, was published in 1991. The novel topped the bestseller list despite a cold response from critics and was made into a TV miniseries.

God, A Coin And A Sneeze

Have you seen the new George Washington $1 coin?

John Laukkanen of Woodcliff Road, West Quincy, has one and doesn't like what he sees.

Missing from the front of the coin is the traditional "In God We Trust." But if you look close enough you'll find it, on the edge of the coin—almost unreadable.

"You need a magnifying glass to find it," Laukkanen says.

A World War II Marine combat veteran of the Pacific, Laukkanen wonders if this is another surrender to those who don't want God in classrooms and other public buildings. And now on U.S. coins.

"They keep chipping away at God, eroding our traditional values," he says.

The George Washington golden color coin—a little larger than a quarter, is the first in a series of Presidential $1 coins honoring our presidents. The U.S. Mint will issue four a year, in the order the Presidents served.

Coming up this year after Washington are John Adams, Thomas Jefferson and James Madison.

First President

1789-1797

On the back is the image of the Statue of Liberty.

The first issue of the coin didn't have "In God We Trust" anywhere on it. Which might make you wonder if the designer forgot to put it on the front and when it was discovered, put it on the edge of the coin, instead of having to redesign the coin.

But apparently "In God We Trust" is going to stay virtually hidden on the edge of the John Adams coin and the entire Presidential series.

As for those who would keep God out of classrooms and public places, Laukkanen says:

"They're undermining the very foundation on which this country was built. Rules and regulations changing our daily activities. Towns, cities and even states have passed laws declaring that God cannot be brought into public schools or any public institutions."

But, he says, all is not lost.

He tells of a public high school graduation ceremony in Wisconsin from which God was banned.

No invocation. No clergy blessing. The valedictorian and various community leaders spoke without mentioning God as instructed.

But the 92 graduates found a way to let God in.

Ninety-one of them individually stepped forward to receive his or her diploma and returned to their seats.

And, as the 92nd—a boy—was about to receive his diploma the other 91—as they had planned—stood up and sneezed.

And that 92nd student quickly called out for all to hear: "God bless you, each and everyone."

THINKING OF RUNNING in this year's city election?

Well, City Clerk Joseph Shea wants you to know nomination papers will be available starting next Tuesday, May 1 in the Election Department.

But you don't have to rush to pick them up. Deadline for filing them isn't until Tuesday, July 24 at 5 p.m.

Speaking of Election Year 2007, only six candidates—three incumbents, three challengers—have announced or otherwise indicated they'll be on the ballot:

Incumbents Mayor William Phelan, Councillor at large Joe Finn, Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly. Challengers: Tom Koch, for mayor; Jennifer McCauley Logue, councillor at-large and Nick Puleo, school committee.

SHEA

WARD 1 COUNCILLOR Leo Kelly hasn't officially announced he is running for reelection, but he definitely is.

He has a fundraiser coming up Thursday, May 10, 6 to 9 p.m. at the Quincy Yacht Club, Sea St., Houghs Neck. Donation $20. (Senior special $15).

The event is being hosted by P.J. Foley, Margaret LaForest and John Chenette, Jr.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1948 real photo postcard reproduction showing the Adams Theater that was at 15 School St. in Quincy Center, across from today's Firestone store. When built in 1932, this was known as the Plymouth Building with apartments on the top floor. The theater space shown here was home for a few years to the Capital Garage that sold and serviced Packard automobiles. In 1934, after the garage moved out and until the start of WWII, this space was used by the Quincy Arena and was the site of amateur and semi-pro boxing and wrestling matches.

The Adams Theater opened here after the Arena closed and it was open for almost 20 years. On Saturday afternoon admission was only five cents. On the right was the Adams Barber Shop and the Art Studios was on the left. There still are apartments on the second floor, but the building is now known as the Aphorpe Building and the theater space is home to the Low Overhead Discount Carpet store and other shops. Quincy Legion Baseball Thanks Dr. Mark Jaehnig

The American Legion Quincy Post 95 baseball team lost its team manager, Dr. Mark Jaehnig. Jaehnig was recently named as the new executive director of the Park and Recreation Department. Our loss was their gain, said Lenny Seitz, Post 95 Athletic Officer and executive board member.

Mark literally saved our baseball program when he stepped in to recruit players, hire coaches and comply with American Legion's stringent rules and regulations. He met these requirements, literally on the last day of registration over five years ago, and he has been non-stop ever since.

He rebuilt our program and helped us qualify for a playoff berth in 2005. It was our first appearance in the post-season in five years.

Mark guided Post 95 to four straight victories over our cross-city rival, Morrisette, for the first time ever. No small feat, considering the caliber of this most talented and heady ballclub and the top notch coaching staff headed by Steve Maze and their manager Ray Cattaneo.

Jaehnig began a developmental squad preparing Legion hopefuls by instructing them in solid baseball fundamentals and techniques necessary for high school and college ball.

Mark has a fall baseball program for younger kids age eight and up. This program also stresses proper fundamental baseball for all. More importantly, it affords all kids the opportunity to play every inning and any position they want to play. The kids and parents love it and the program keeps growing every year.

He did the bulk of 95's fundraising through the above programs as well as his individual efforts providing 95 ballplayers and coaches with the tools and equipment necessary to succeed.

Mark provided us with his own batting cage, filling half of his swimming pool to make room for the cage. This quickly became a meeting place for all the players to take batting practice and to bond as a team.

He also instituted an alumni game for all Post 95's former players to suit up and compete against the current 95 team. This helped to create an atmosphere for veteran players to reacquaint with 95, get more involved with our programs and have fun and socialize in the post-game dinner and activities.

He was instrumental in promoting a memorial tribute to Dennis Thomson and his family. Dennis passed away while serving his country at the age of twenty. Dennis was a well-known student, athlete and friend of many attending North Quincy High School.

He was a true competitor; captain of multiple teams at NQHS and was captain of Quincy Post 95's baseball team. The memorial was well attended by former coaches, players and friends.

His family was presented with a glass-encased uniform where his number eight was retired. His number and a memorial tribute are housed on display at the Quincy Post 95. A memorial game was played between Morrisette and Quincy Post 95.

Mark's contributions in his five-year tenure at the helm of Post 95 have been most instrumental in the fostering and sustaining our competitive and well-coached team. His work ethic, drive to succeed, coaching abilities and love of the game have been an inspiration to serious ballplayers and those willing to give all they got in their quest to be the best and keep their dreams alive. Mark's no-nonsense approach and respect for the game has served Post 95 alumni well in their own quest to succeed in the highly combative venue of college baseball.

On behalf of American Legion Quincy Post 95 Commander Fred McCray, Post 95 veterans, sons of veterans, ballplayers, parents, fans and this writer, a sincere wish and best of luck in your new position is gratefully extended.

Post 95 would also like to give a special thanks to Mark's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jaehnig, for their fan loyalty, support and assistance to our team.

City Budget Looks Like $117.8 Million

By FRANK MCCAULEY

If this week's City Council Finance Committee meeting is a sign, it appears that the city's $117.8 million dollar budget for fiscal year 1990 will be approved with little or no changes.

The committee reviewed a number of departmental budgets and passed most of them. Only a handful did not receive committee support, but it appears there will be another budget review meeting.

Finance Committee Chairman Stephen McGrath said another committee meeting would be held May 8. At that time other departmental budgets including fire, police and schools will be analyzed.

$275,000 ANIMAL SHELTER TO BE DEDICATED

Quincy's new animal shelter will be dedicated at its Broad Street location May 2, by Mayor Francis X. McCauley. Other officials expected to attend the dedication of the $275,000 shelter include: Althea Griffin, president of the South Shore Humane Society; John McDuff, president of the Quincy Animal League; Thomas White, director of the Animal Rescue League, as well as Phyllis Berluch, Animal Control Officer.

According to David Colton, deputy commissioner of Public Works, the structure will have 15 to 20 cages for dogs, plus a separate room for cats and puppies.

6 CITY EMPLOYEES TO BE HONORED

Six city employees will be recognized at the seventh annual Mayor's Employee Appreciation Award Ceremony May 11.

The 1989 recipients include: Valerie Palmer, a registered nurse at Quincy Hospital; Ann McLaughlin, assistant director of The Thomas Crane Library; Patricia Ryan, assistant dean at Quincy Junior College; Duncan Blight, building custodian at City Hall; Mary (Fee Curtin) Pace, a teacher at Atherton Hough School and Janet Ellis, Equal Opportunity Administrator for the City of Quincy.

Atria Marina Place, 4 Seaport Drive, North Quincy, will host a two-day Council on Aging-sponsored safe driving course for the mature driver on Thursdays May 17 and 24.

Each session will be four hours in length from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. with lunch provided. There is a fee of $10 per person for the full course, payable in advance. Make checks payable to the AARP.

For a reservation, call the COA at 617-376-1506.

THINKING OF RUNNING in this year's city election?

Well, City Clerk Joseph Shea wants you to know nomination papers will be available starting next Tuesday, May 1 in the Election Department.

But you don't have to rush to pick them up. Deadline for filing them isn't until Tuesday, July 24 at 5 p.m.

Speaking of Election Year 2007, only six candidates—three incumbents, three challengers—have announced or otherwise indicated they'll be on the ballot:

Incumbents Mayor William Phelan, Councillor at-large Joe Finn, Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly. Challengers: Tom Koch, for mayor; Jennifer McCauley, logistic, councillor at-large and Nick Puleo, school committee.

WARD 1 COUNCILLOR Leo Kelly hasn't officially announced he is running for reelection, but he definitely is.

He has a fundraiser coming up Thursday, May 10, 6 to 9 p.m. at the Quincy Yacht Club, Sea St., Houghs Neck. Donation $20. (Senior special $15).

The event is being hosted by P.J. Foley, Margaret LaForest and John Chenette, Jr.

COINCIDENCE DEPT: In his "Scenes From Yesterday" in last week's Quincy Sun, historian Tom Galvin featured a 1908 photo postcard of the main house of the old Pratt estate at 53 Park Ave., Squantum when it became Lee's Inn.

Mary Collins of Century 21 Annex Realty quickly recognized it as the renovated three family house now up for sale. Listed at $799,900.

If you're interested give her a call at 617-472-4330.

THEN - The main house of the old Pratt Estate on Park Ave., Squantum in 1909 when it became Lee's Inn.

NOW - Altered externally and renovated it is now a modernized three-family house up for sale.

Foot Screening For Seniors

Podiatrist Jordana Szpiro will be available to seniors for foot screening on the first Monday of every month at the Council on Aging office, 83 Saratoga St.

She will also treat feet for a fee of $20 per person payable at the time of the visit. Such payments are not covered by health insurance.

Treatments will include nail trimming and general diabetic foot care.

For an appointment, call 617-376-1506.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1948 real photo postcard reproduction showing the Adams Theater that was at 15 School St. in Quincy Center, across from today's Firestone store. When built in 1932, this was known as the Plymouth Building with apartments on the top floor. The theater space shown here was home for a few years to the Capital Garage that sold and serviced Packard automobiles. In 1934, after the garage moved out and until the start of WWII, this space was used by the Quincy Arena and was the site of amateur and semi-pro boxing and wres-ting matches. The Adams Theater opened here after the Arena closed and it was open for almost 20 years. On Saturday afternoon admission was only five cents. On the right was the Adams Barber Shop and the Art Studios was on the left. There still are apartments on the second floor, but the building is now known as the Aphorpe Building and the theater space is home to the Low Overhead Discount Carpet store and other shops. Quincy Legion Baseball Thanks Dr. Mark Jaehnig

The American Legion Quincy Post 95 baseball team lost its team manager, Dr. Mark Jaehnig. Jaehnig was recently named as the new executive director of the Park and Recreation Department. Our loss was their gain, said Lenny Seitz, Post 95 Athletic Officer and executive board member.

Mark literally saved our baseball program when he stepped in to recruit players, hire coaches and comply with American Legion's stringent rules and regulations. He met these requirements, literally on the last day of registration over five years ago, and he has been non-stop ever since.

He rebuilt our program and helped us qualify for a playoff berth in 2005. It was our first appearance in the post-season in five years.

Mark guided Post 95 to four straight victories over our cross-city rival, Morrisette, for the first time ever. No small feat, considering the caliber of this most talented and heady ballclub and the top notch coaching staff headed by Steve Maze and their manager Ray Cattaneo.

Jaehnig began a developmental squad preparing Legion hopefuls by instructing them in solid baseball fundamentals and techniques necessary for high school and college ball.

Mark has a fall baseball program for younger kids age eight and up. This program also stresses proper fundamental baseball for all. More importantly, it affords all kids the opportunity to play every inning and any position they want to play. The kids and parents love it and the program keeps growing every year.

He did the bulk of 95's fundraising through the above programs as well as his individual efforts providing 95 ballplayers and coaches with the tools and equipment necessary to succeed.

Mark provided us with his own batting cage, filling half of his swimming pool to make room for the cage. This quickly became a meeting place for all the players to take batting practice and to bond as a team.

He also instituted an alumni game for all Post 95's former players to suit up and compete against the current 95 team. This helped to create an atmosphere for veteran players to reacquaint with 95, get more involved with our programs and have fun and socialize in the post-game dinner and activities.

He was instrumental in promoting a memorial tribute to Dennis Thomson and his family. Dennis passed away while serving his country at the age of twenty. Dennis was a well-known student, athlete and friend of many attending North Quincy High School.

He was a true competitor; captain of multiple teams at NQHS and was captain of Quincy Post 95's baseball team. The memorial was well attended by former coaches, players and friends.

His family was presented with a glass-encased uniform where his number eight was retired. His number and a memorial tribute are housed on display at the Quincy Post 95. A memorial game was played between Morrisette and Quincy Post 95.

Mark's contributions in his five-year tenure at the helm of Post 95 have been most instrumental in the fostering and sustaining our competitive and well-coached team. His work ethic, drive to succeed, coaching abilities and love of the game have been an inspiration to serious ballplayers and those willing to give all they got in their quest to be the best and keep their dreams alive. Mark's no-nonsense approach and respect for the game has served Post 95 alumni well in their own quest to succeed in the highly combative venue of college baseball.

On behalf of American Legion Quincy Post 95 Commander Fred McCray, Post 95 veterans, sons of veterans, ballplayers, parents, fans and this writer, a sincere wish and best of luck in your new position is gratefully extended.

Post 95 would also like to give a special thanks to Mark's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jaehnig, for their fan loyalty, support and assistance to our team.

City Budget Looks Like $117.8 Million

By FRANK MCCAULEY

If this week's City Council Finance Committee meeting is a sign, it appears that the city's $117.8 million dollar budget for fiscal year 1990 will be approved with little or no changes.

The committee reviewed a number of departmental budgets and passed most of them. Only a handful did not receive committee support, but it appears there will be another budget review meeting.

Finance Committee Chairman Stephen McGrath said another committee meeting would be held May 8. At that time other departmental budgets including fire, police and schools will be analyzed.

$275,000 ANIMAL SHELTER TO BE DEDICATED

Quincy's new animal shelter will be dedicated at its Broad Street location May 2, by Mayor Francis X. McCauley. Other officials expected to attend the dedication of the $275,000 shelter include, Althea Griffin, president of the South Shore Humane Society; John McDuff, president of the Quincy Animal League; Thomas White, director of the Animal Rescue League, as well as Phyllis Berlucchi, Animal Control Officer.

According to David Colton, deputy commissioner of Public Works, the structure will have 15 to 20 cages for dogs, plus a separate room for cats and puppies.

6 CITY EMPLOYEES TO BE HONORED

Six city employees will be recognized at the seventh annual Mayor's Employee Appreciation Award Ceremony May 11.

The 1989 recipients include: Valerie Palmer, a registered nurse at Quincy Hospital; Ann McLaughlin, assistant director of The Thomas Crane Library; Patricia Ryan, assistant dean at Quincy Junior College; Duncan Blight, building custodian at City Hall; Mary (Fee Curtin) Pace, a teacher at Atherton Hough School and Janet Ellis, Equal Opportunity Administrator for the City of Quincy.

QUINCY-ISMS

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, chairman of the Recycling Committee, discussed the upcoming recycling program at a meeting of Ward 2 residents held at the Fore River Club House. John McDuff, animal rights activist from Quincy Point, was planning a campaign for a seat on the School Committee.

Dist. Atty. William Delahunt will receive the James R. McIntyre Humanitarian Award at the Quincy District Court's Law Day ceremony, in early May. Delahunt is a former Quincy city councillor and state representative. The Quincy High School Class of 1939 is planning its 50th anniversary reunion for Sept. 15 at the Sheraton Tara in Braintree. Reunion committee members include Nick Pepe, Barbara (Gumprecht) Johnson, Dorothy Giarusso, Tony Cardarelli, Tony Mollica and Edna (Thorne) Canter. Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Zoia, lifetime Quincy residents, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at a reception at Lantana in Randolph. The party was hosted by their 12 children. The Zois (she is the former Elaine Martineau) were married April 19, 1939 at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Wendall Cosgrove Nancy Ross at Quincy Hospital.

The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women was offering the following programs during the month of May: May 4: "Beyond the Birds and the Bees"; May 11: "Insurance"; May 18: "What's In and What's Out in Divorce"; May 25: "Up Close and Personal"; Sharon Goodman, a senior at Quincy High School, was a speaker at the 61st annual awards dinner of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister at Bethany Congregational Church, will speak on the topic, "Divine Dance, Considering the Trinitarian Nature of God". Brian Buckley and John Noonan co-hosted a Quincy Community Television telethon to raise funds for an AARP scholarship to a nursing school in memory of the late Barbara Nash. The Pilgrim Fellowship of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, sponsored a spaghetti dinner followed by a musical variety show at the church hall. South Shore Buick, 50 Adams St., Quincy, was advertising its "Feature Car of the Week," a 1989 Buick Regal for $12,800.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

36th Annual Summer Festival July 19-21 In Quincy Center

Quincy's 36th Annual Summer Festival will kick-off Thursday, July 19, and continue through Friday, July 20, and Saturday, July 21st. The programs are hosted by the local business community in cooperation with Mayor William Phelan.

Traditionally, the city closes Hancock Street in Quincy Center to vehicular traffic for these summer festivities. This allows local vendors and crafters to display their merchandise outdoors.

Each year, dinnertime programs provide lively musical entertainment on two evenings and this has proven to be a favorite family event.

The committee anticipates presenting the same top quality programs this year as in the past. Staging created right on Hancock Street allows the audience to enjoy the dining and the daytime and evening events in an open-air venue.

For the luncheon diners, there will be short musical programs and for the young and the young at heart, there will be inter-active games and fun.

Some limited space will be available for crafters and vendors who are not competing with Quincy Business Association (QBA) members.

Contact the QBA at 617-471-3232 or e-mail director@qbaonline.com for additional information.

Abigail's Crossing Offering Mothers' Day Programs

Abigail's Crossing Gifts in Quincy Center plans special treats for shoppers just in time for Mothers' Day shopping.

Two free programs will start Friday, May 4 and continuing through Saturday, May 5 and Sunday, May 6.

The gift shop located at 1360 Hancock Street will host an in-store Vera Bradley Free Gift w/ Purchase event and, also, offer free raffle tickets for each Vera Bradley item purchased.

Raffle winners will be drawn every hour on the hour all weekend.

On Friday and Saturday, a Crabtree and Evelyn Hand Recovery Event will offer free hand massages to visitors, along with free samples and gifts while they last.

Mount Wollaston Cemetery Walking Tour Saturday

Quincy historian Tom Galvin will lead a walking tour of Mount Wollaston Cemetery Saturday, April 28, leaving the Greenleaf Street

Gate on Southern Artery at 1 p.m.

The tour will focus on the graves of leaders of Quincy's granite industry. Quincy mayor, civic leaders, notable granite monuments and other historical highlights.

Rain date is Sunday, April 29, also at 1 p.m.

Mark Crosby, Michael Duggan Win TV Documentary Award

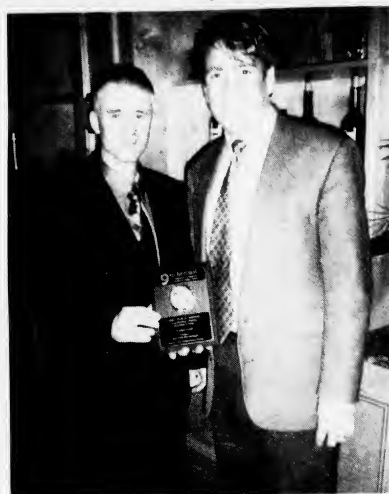

Mark Crosby, director and producer at Quincy Access Television, has won a top documentary award the Alliance for Community Media Northeast Region competition.

"Turning Point," which chronicles a songwriter's journey from the initial concept of composing a song to the completion of the song and music video.

Crosby and Michael Duggan of Plymouth, who produced, directed, video-taped and edited the documentary, were presented the award at ninth annual conference of the ACM-NE.

Quincy Access Television provided the studio space and equipment that enabled Crosby and Duggan, as independent producers, to share their vision with others.

Crosby has been involved in video production since 1986 and has received rec-

Fashion Show May 4 To Benefit Maria Droste Agency

A fashion show and benefit for the Maria Droste Agency will be held Friday, May 4, at Lantana's in Randolph. Planned events also include a cocktail hour, and dinner as well as auctions and raffles.

Guest speaker will be State Rep. Martin Walsh and Paul McDewitt will serve as master of ceremonies. Both were longtime friends of the late Darlene Sheehan.

Once again, the spring event will be dedicated in honor of Darlene as the Maria Droste Fund Raising Committee and "Friends of Darlene Sheehan" have proved to be a winning team.

Both male and female "Friends of Darlene" will model the spring fashions including evening designs from Michael De Paulo, a rising star in the fashion design world, and ready-to-wear assortments for work and play from Caryn's Corner, Quincy.

For men, there will be fashions from Milton's in Braintree which offers a wide range of sports and formal wear.

Interested persons may call 617-471-5686 for reservations. The Maria Droste Agency is staffed and operated by the Sisters of the Good Shepherd along with several clinically trained professionals who serve as volunteers.

The staff and volunteers provide counseling services to clients ranging from ages 5 to 75 or over with fees determined by ability to pay.

Lena Lowry Marks 100th Birthday With Room Full Of Love

By MIRIAM JOSEPH

In 1907, Teddy Roosevelt was in the White House. Women were fighting for the right to vote in the federal election. A first-class stamp cost two cents.

And Lena Lowry was born in Bologna, Italy, destined to spend the rest of the century and more in America.

She celebrated her 100th birthday last Friday with 85 friends and neighbors at Town Brook House, where she has resided for the past 26 years. Surrounded by a "lot of love," as her son Walter commented, Lena was overwhelmed by the outpouring of affection from her fellow residents at the facility and by their generous gift giving.

Lena's sons Frank, 73 and Walter, 71, and their wives Elaine and Penny, attended a second birthday celebration the following day for the lifelong friends and family members, including Lena's nine grandchildren, 18 great grandchildren, and her only surviving sibling, her 90-year-old sister, Babe.

Smartly dressed for the occasion and looking years younger than her age, this petite and slender 103-pounder of elegance says that she "used to be a fat little thing," and works to keep her weight down.

Lena was very young when she immigrated to America, and says that when she was little, "it was five or ten cents for a loaf of bread. It was easy to buy a loaf of bread years ago. I hardly ever went to the movies when I was a kid—I went to a silent movie a couple of times, and I would look at the screen and say "can't they just talk?"

When she married Francis Lowry in 1930, they made their home in a cold-water flat in Roxbury. Her sons recall a space heater in the living room, fueled by oil cans of which they would bring upstairs from cellar. And they remembered their icebox, and how she would put a sign in the window for the ice man when the family needed ice.

Lena worked at Boston City Hospital as a nursing assistant for 26 years.

"Sometimes I took the bus to work, sometimes I walked, the hospital wasn't that far from home, but after we moved (in the 60's) I got a car and I used that to go back and forth."

Friend and fellow resident George Negus, 80, read a congratulatory tribute to Lena from the Quincy City Council. He said that when he jokingly suggested that Lena marry him she had replied, "You just turned 80 years old, you're too old for me!"

Son Frank, a Florida resident, told the guests, "I didn't realize how many friends my mother had here, but now I know and it's just wonderful."

Walter, who moved to Quincy 37 years ago, thanked the party-goers.

"Looking around the room, all I can see is a lot of love...if there is anything else that you folks don't have, you have love."

As Lena rose to speak, her fellow residents were shouting out to her "We love you, we love you, Lena!" She thanked the guests and said "I didn't expect this at all...I knew it was something, but not this...thank you so much."

Although she describes herself as a "full-blown Italian," her sons say that she is a very proud American, a die-hard citizen, and has seldom missed the opportunity to vote. When asked to what she attributed her longevity, Lena replied: "Stay clean."

Her friend Paul Hoadley managed to get her 100th birthday featured on Willard Scott's segment of The Today Show that morning, and was pleased that Willard pronounced Quincy correctly. "Or else he would have heard from me!"

Hoadley, who runs the Thursday-night movie presentations, (which Lena enjoys, with popcorn!) said, "The residents have our own association, and we are a real family here. Lena is a sweetheart, one of my favorites, an absolute love."

A long-time member of the American Legion, Lena served two terms as president, and says she now enjoys bingo, ceramics, dancing and bowling and, of course, her fellow residents at Town Brook!

Banks Renew Commitment To $3.5M Quincy Loan Pool

Nine area banks have renewed their three-year commitments to continue their funding support of the Quincy Loan Pool, it was announced by Quincy 2000 Collaborative.

The Quincy Loan Pool combines the financial resources of the banks to provide some $3.5 million in funding for Quincy-based businesses.

The funding is available for business expansions, equipment purchases, start-up costs and sign and facade improvements.

The banks include South Shore Cooperative Bank, Sovereign Bank, Eastern Bank, Bank of America, Bank of Canton, South Shore Savings Bank, Century Bank & Trust Company, Colonial Federal Savings Bank and Rockland Trust Company.

"On behalf of the city of Quincy, I would like to thank each of the banks for renewing their commitment, which plays an instrumental role in helping our local businesses grow and prosper," said

Mayor William Phelan.

The Quincy Loan Pool and Quincy's Community Development Block Grant program has provided more than $5 million in funding to more than 125 Quincy businesses to create jobs and strengthen their viability.

"Of great importance is the skill and dedication provided by the bank executives who review, approve and frequently enhance the loans offered by Quincy 2000," said Dean Rizzo, executive director of Quincy 2000.

S. Quincy Social Club Moving To Torre dei Passeri

The License Board Tuesday, allowed Charles Towers Jr. a change of location and all alcoholic club license of the South Quincy Social Club to move from 480 Quincy Ave., to 242 Washington St. the site of the Torre dei Passeri Social Club.

Chairman Joseph Shea said the Torre dei Passeri used the first floor for their club's activities, and the second floor for functions. He added that all these some 80 years, the Torre has had a "spotless reputation".

He said the reason for the move from Quincy Ave., was that the building was very big, and that it had a "motivated buyer".

Shea said Torre will no longer have functions, and instead will move to the second floor while the South Quincy Social Club will now use the first floor.

Shea said he had spoken to the Alcohol Beverage Control Commission (ABCC) and said they supported the move. It will now go to the ABCC for approval of the liquor license.

Shellfish Mitigation On Gas Line To Be Explained

Thomas Shields of the State Division of Marine Fisheries will discuss the future of shellfishing in Boston Harbor waters in the wake of the Algonquin natural gas pipeline Tuesday, May 15, at 6:30 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 1394 Sea St.

"Shellfish Enhancement in Boston Harbor" is the fourth and final subject for discussion in mitigation for the pipeline which carries gas for KeySpan to Boston along the shores of Quincy, Weymouth and Hingham.

Previous meetings discussed the restoration of eel grass, the fate of anadromous fish and the creation of an artificial reef.

The program is sponsored by the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission. For more information, call 617-773-1534.

Fallon Gets Green Light On Garaging 60 Vehicles

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

After listening to neighbors and abutters of 199 Commander Shea Boulevard, Joseph Shea, the chairman of the License Board and Police Chief Robert Crowley, both voted against the leased premises of Fallon Ambulance at that site, but after a lengthy discussion, it passed with a 3-2 vote.

At Tuesday's board meeting, Atty. Robert Fleming counsel for Timothy J. Fallon asked the board to allow 60 vehicles and fuel storage and gas/repair license for 2012 gallons of gas and diesel underground, 3000 gas and diesel above-ground and 500 gallons of miscellaneous fluids.

Fleming stressed that there would be no sirens, no lights, and that the employees would be indoors at all times, in an air conditioned area.

Abutters and neighbors, some who lived at the Sea Winds Condo some 50 feet away from the fuel, said they were already weary from noise from the former tenant. Interstate Distributors who were outside in the wee hours of the morning.

They were concerned over the noise of the ambulances opening and closing doors during the night, as well as activity in the day time. They urged the board to consider a "more appropriate site."

They said since Interstate Distributors had left, they were finally able to get an "interrupted night's rest."

Ward 6 Councillor Brain McNamie said he wanted to attach 15 conditions before the board voted on the request.

Some of the conditions included no more than 60 vehicles and no idling of vehicles outside.

Also that Fallon will see that fire suppression safeguards are in place at the refueling depot; that late night and early morning employees use of picnic table abutting 90 Quincy Shore Drive be prohibited; and no music be permitted outside the premises.

Another condition was that to restore perimeter fencing where damage or done with sound absorbing fencing material.

Fleming said most of the conditions were a lot of common sense and that Fallon "did not need restrictions."

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele said that Fallon Ambulance which also has facilities on 115 Brook Rd. in South Quincy has "proved to be good neighbors and that Quincy is lucky to have them located in our city."

Fallon said the company has phased out the facility in Milton, but still has an ambulance in the area.

Maralin Manning, executive director to the Quincy Business Association said she is a Milton resident where there were two Fallon Ambulance areas and that she has never "heard a complaint."

Prior to the vote, Crowley said although he was "not opposed to Fallon, but that he was "with the neighbors on this one" and said he would not support it.

Shea said he was in agreement with Crowley and added that there is an "unpleasant history at that site," and that he also would not support it.

Koch Calls For Full Traffic Plan At North Quincy High

Mayoral candidate Tom Koch this week called for the city to develop a complete traffic plan to improve pedestrian safety and ease congestion in the area surrounding North Quincy High School.

"The timing is perfect. The Foley Chrysler building at the corner of Hancock and Squantum streets is vacant, so we're probably never going to get a better chance to fix that mess," said Koch. "This is an issue that has lingered far too long, and is a glaring example of why we need to fill the traffic engineer's job that has been vacant for nearly two years."

On Monday, Koch attended a subcommittee meeting of the Quincy School Committee held to update parents concerned about safety for students trying to get to school in the morning and home in the afternoon. Parents first raised concerns about safety surrounding the school more than a year ago, and a number of safety measures were implemented recently under the leadership of the school committee.

But Koch noted that the new sidewalks, drop-off area, and a police detail in the morning only scratches the surface of the traffic troubles around the school. He said parents voiced concern that the police officer stationed at the school in the morning is often assigned to other places, which Koch said shows clearly that more permanent measures are needed.

"The school committee has done a great job tackling this issue head-on, but the fact is they've been dealt a lousy hand," Koch said.

"They are school committee members, not traffic engineers. They've done their job, now it's time for leadership from the mayor."

Koch said he wrote a letter to Mayor William Phelan more than two months ago urging him to hire a traffic engineer as soon as possible, pointing out that the job has been vacant since September 2005. At the time, Koch highlighted traffic bottlenecks, poorly timed signals, and dangerous intersections for pedestrians as examples of the deteriorating traffic conditions across the city.

He called the situation at North Quincy High School a perfect example of traffic problems increasing across the city. In response to his letter, Koch said, the mayor suggested that the North Quincy High School situation had been resolved by using a contracted traffic engineer hired to study the area.

"It's pretty clear the issue is not resolved," Koch said. "A quick-shot contractor simply isn't enough. These are larger issues that only a traffic engineer in Quincy every day, watching patterns every day, studying the details every day, and with a passion to improve safety and traffic flow, can adequately address. We need to hire somebody now."

State Approves New Water Heater For Tobin Towers

Tobin Tower residents can look forward to uninterrupted hot water service now that the state has approved emergency funds for a new water heater, according to Jay MacRitchie, Executive Director of the Quincy Housing Authority.

MacRitchie attended the City Council's Housing Committee meeting Monday, as a courtesy, after City Council President Douglas Gutro forwarded complaints that he'd received from Tobin Towers residents.

At the meeting, Gutro described calls he'd received regarding the senior citizens residence at 80 Clay Street, particularly complaints of little or no hot water.

Gutro said he forwarded the complaints to MacRitchie's office and, on his own visit, found the water temperature had improved although it ranged from tepid to warm.

"The water temperature had vastly improved," Gutro said by the time of his visit. Gutro also outlined other problems and complaints raised by tenants, ranging from water backing up into tubs, wet, damp or stained hallway carpeting, and overflowing trash bins.

MacRitchie noted that Tobin Towers was built in the 1970's and rebuilt and renovated in the 1990's. He said that the water heater broke down and was replaced with a temporary heater.

Since then, MacRitchie said he applied for an emergency allocation for a new water heater from the state and received approval that very afternoon. The new heater will be located outside of the building and away from the buildings electrical systems.

MacRitchie expects construction to be completed in late June if the bidding process goes smoothly. As for current condition, he said the warm weather should reduce interruptions.

On the other issues, MacRitchie said that trash is picked up twice a week but people do leave things outside of bins. In addition, the QHA regularly has exterminators and carpet cleaners.

MacRitchie said the agency has not tested for mold.

Committee Chairman John Finn thanked MacRitchie for coming to the council's committee meeting.

Mosquito Spraying Begins May 4

The Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project began the annual spring aerial spraying for mosquito larvae in Quincy wetlands this week and will continue until Friday, May 4.

By Mass. Grand Lodge Order Sons Of Italy Sheriff Bellotti To Be Honored At Law And Justice Day Breakfast

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti will be honored at the 24th annual Law and Justice Day Breakfast sponsored by the Massachusetts Grand Lodge Order Sons of Italy in America, Commission for Social Justice, on Sunday, May 6.

The breakfast will be held at 9:30 a.m. at the Newton Marriott on Commonwealth Ave., Newton.

Bellotti, a Quincy resident, will be presented the Law Award. Other award recipients are Middlesex County District Attorney Gerard Leone who will receive the Justice Award; and State Rep. Robert Deleo, chairman of the House Com-

MICHAEL BELLOTTI mittee on Ways and Means, who will be presented the Public Service Award.

Master of ceremonies for the Law and Justice Day Breakfast will be David Boeri of Channel 5 and 90.9 WBUR FM.

The Commission for Social Justice acts as the anti-defamation arm of the Order of Sons of Italy and its purpose is to ensure equal concern, respect, treatment and opportunity for all Italians, Italian-Americans and those of other ethnic origins.

The commission is recognizing the award recipients as leaders within the community, the state and for the preservation of their Italian heritage.

Adams Memorial Park Opens Season With Record Numbers

Adams National Historical Park opened its 60th season last week as part of the National Park Service with a four-day count of 1,400 visitors, according to Marianne Peak.

Opening Day highlights included a Listening Session with greetings from Mayor William Phelan and the park service's Acting Regional Director Chrysantha Walter of Philadelphia.

Walter oversees the country's 80 national parks from Mammoth to Virginia. Both Walter's visit last week and a visit last month by Dean Reeder, Director of Tourism for the park service, highlight the importance of this anniversary season for Quincy park. Reeder made Quincy the first stop on his East Coast tour.

Peak said she expects this season to be a record breaker all round for visitors at the 13-acre park as she and her park service team plan special events during the anniversary season.

In addition, Peak expects a forthcoming HBO series on John Adams to attract new interest and even more visitors. She noted that park attendance soared from an average of 60,000 a season to 200,000 in recent years.

Most of that increase followed the publication of historian David McCullough's biography of John Adams. McCullough won a Pulitzer Prize for the book.

This year's Adams Park calendar features the October re-enactment of the wedding of John and Abigail Adams, along with several lecture series and plays. The events will be held at the Carriage House at Adams Park and other Adams sites in Quincy and Weymouth. Visitors can use the park's trolley system to visit all the historic Adams family sites.

"We have exciting programs that are not finalized yet," Peak said, adding that additional dates will offer even more unique opportunities for visitors to enjoy the park and its history.

President John Adams and Abigail Adams bought their Quincy home in 1787 while he was Ambassador to England and was their home during his second presidency. Subsequently, their son President John Quincy Adams and four generations of the Adams family lived there.

The Adams Memorial Society operated the park as a private site from 1927 to 1946. That year, the Adams heirs donated the property to the National Park Service (NPS). NPS officially opened Adams Memorial Historical Park on Patriots Day in 1947.

To this day, Adams family members are involved in decisions regarding the property.

Visitors today can visit the main house which Abigail Adams called "Peacefield," the modest Stone Library and tour the grounds where some of Abigail Adams' flowers are replicated. Trolleys transport visitors to Adams' landmarks in Quincy and Weymouth.

Additional information is available at 617-770-1175 or on the park website nps.gov/adam/

Quincy Joins Fight To Protect Climate

Mayor William Phelan joined City Councillor Kevin Coughlin in a signing ceremony to have the City of Quincy join the International Council for Local Environmental Initiatives (ICLE) cities for climate protection campaign.

The campaign calls for municipalities to take specific steps toward reducing their contribution to factors attributed to climate change.

"Councillor Coughlin has taken a leadership role on the City Council relative to the issue of what local people can do to make global impacts," said Phelan.

"Along with Councillors (Doug) Gutro and (Leo) Kelly, they have been working with my administration to ensure that we do our part as a municipality to undertake programs and initiatives to help our local and global environment.

"I want to thank them for their continued support of some very important issues in my administration."

Phelan is set to announce his "Act Locally" program on Arbor Day later this week.

It will entail a number of programs involving renewable energy, energy efficiency and environmental protection initiatives.

"I believe that local government can play a leading role in changing our world," added Phelan. "We are less influenced by those industries and corporations who don't want to see changes happen."

"My environmental program could be a blueprint for local governments. I want Quincy to be a leader on the issue of local environmental leadership."

Puleo Campaign Kickoff May 2

Nick Puleo, candidate for school committee, will kick-off his campaign Wednesday, May 2, 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m., at the Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St.

The invitation sent out citywide says:

"It was once that 'the best way to predict the future is to create it.' Here's your chance. We need Nick on our school committee to ensure a brighter future for Quincy's kids."

Puleo will discuss his vision for Quincy's schools. A pasta dinner will be served, and entertainment provided.

This is a family-friendly event. People are encouraged to bring their children, friends and neighbors.

Suggested donation is $20, and can be paid at the door. It is also possible to pay in advance by check, or by contributing online at www.nickpuleo.com.

For more information, call (617) 835-1253.

This Time Uncle Sam's Message Is Personal

For a dozen years, the billboard at the corner of Newport Avenue and Beale Street in Wollaston has featured Uncle Sam in the role of a crusader for a good cause.

There was the appeal for funds for the homeless at Father Bill's Place; there was the campaign to get out the vote; the plea for support for the nation's veterans; the Red Cross.

But the message that went up today (Thursday) was more personal.

It encourages viewers to educate themselves on the subject of skin cancer and have themselves checked for melanoma, a form of cancer that begins in the skin due to lengthy exposures to the sun.

Only the day before (Wednesday), Uncle Sam Rounseville was undergoing his eighth surgical procedure in the past three years to remove cancerous cells from his face.

His billboard appeal

"May is Melanoma Awareness Month," he said. "Melanoma is a form of skin cancer that we can do something about. There is more information out today regarding preventive measures.

"There are guidelines that include wearing hats, using sun screen and limiting your time exposed to the sun's direct rays. These things we weren't aware of a couple of decades ago."

More information on skin cancer is available from the American Association of Dermatology's website www.aad.org, including signs and symptoms and a resource directory.

Oh, yes, for those of you who came in late. Uncle Sam is his real name, having been changed legally from Leroy Rounseville on Flag Day, June 14, 1990, to enhance his community work.

He was recognized as the official Uncle Sam in a congressional resolution in 1992.

City Leaders, Students Share Ideas On Attracting Tourists To Park, City

After the session, Pacy's students said they loved their visit but really hadn't know anything much about the Adams site before last week's visit.

Rene Murphy said she's lived all her life in Quincy and visited the Adams site only once in fifth grade and she's has long forgotten that visit. Now, she and other classmates are interested in the Park's intern program.

"It's an amazing place," Murphy said, adding that students should have high school tours "when they have more of an understanding of history."

Another of Pacy's students, Hull resident Nick Doyle said, "I wasn't even aware of this place. I'm impressed by its age and how well it's been kept."

Lithuanian exchange student Ada Nemira said the Adams site needs to advertise on the Internet and in papers. She, also, suggested that there should be one special day or annual attraction for the Adams Park. She used the re-enactment Battle of Concord and Lexington as an example.

Business leaders also proposed partnerships with local companies. Walter said the line between partnerships and commercialization of the parks must be maintained.

"I don't think we can survive without private partnerships," Walter said but added the agency must "be careful that it isn't perceived as selling off the parks."

Among the speakers was Mrs. John Quincy Adams of Dover, whose late husband was the seventh generation direct descendant of President Adams. Adams congratulated the park service staff who "do a wonderful job, but manage to keep the spirit of this place." She, also, stressed that efforts must always be made to protect against commercialism. Other participants at last week's Listening Session included Doug Gutro, President Quincy City Council, Mark Carey, Executive Director of Discover Quincy, Michele Pecoraro, Massachusetts Cultural Coast, Dean Rizzo, Quincy 2000, Maralin Manning, Quincy Business, and Kathy Melia from Congressman Delahunt's office.

Council Committee Supports New State Laws To Protect Homeowners

By LAURA GRIFFIN

City Councillors Monday came face to face with a Quincy homeowner who fears she could lose her home due to her sub-prime mortgage and what she believes is real estate fraud.

North Quincy's Pat Jones spoke at the Council's Housing Committee meeting which was considering a proposal to support new state legislation aimed at protecting homeowners from unscrupulous lenders.

The resolution submitted by Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin supports state legislation which, among other mandates, would create counseling programs, legislate mortgage standards, regulate mortgage advertising and provide criminal sanctions for offenses.

In introducing the issue, Coughlin cited statistics showing a 70% increase in foreclosures in Massachusetts this year and a 63% increase in Quincy where 186 homes are on the block.

Coughlin cited reckless lending practices as a major part of the problem and cited sub-prime lenders' ads such as one that teases, "Your bank says no; we say yes."

Coughlin then introduced Jones to the committee. Jones who has never missed a mortgage payment described what she considers fraudulent practices by her mortgage lender and a real estate agent.

Two years ago, Jones moved from Mattapan to the two-family house she bought in North Quincy. She cares for four grandchildren and her daughter lives in one unit with two handicapped children.

Jones purchased the $550,000 house with a $55,000 down payment, but she needed a sub-prime loan because of a bankruptcy five years earlier in 2001.

At the time, Jones, a 30-year employee of N-Star, was told she'd be eligible for a fixed rate mortgage in two years.

"They told me I could refinance within two years," Jones told the committee. Instead, the two years are up, and Jones faces increased interest rates which she may not be able to afford.

The worst part is Jones has now been told that the value of the house was inflated in the appraisal process and never worth her purchase price.

In addition, she also charges that the mortgage company, now out of business, forged documents inflating her income as well.

Committee Chairman Joseph Finn and Coughlin supported the resolution which will be considered by the full City Council. Ward 6 councillor Brian McNamee opposed the resolution.

Yard Care Conference At Park Complex Saturday

The Park Department will hold a yard care conference Saturday, April 28, from 9 to 11 a.m. on the lawn of the Richard Koch Park & Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway. Admission is free.

The presenters and their topics include:

Mike Nelson, a member of the faculty of Norfolk Agricultural School - "Flower Gardens & Perennials."

Dave Gaspar, sports turf manager at Prescription Turf Services - "Lawn Care & Turf Maintenance."

Mark Bogan, a certified arborist at Bogan Tree Service - "Tree Health and Pruning."

Each presenter will give a 15 to 20 minute talk, sharing methods, tips and strategies, followed by a question and answer session. Coffee and light refreshments as well as a raffle will be provided.

Local garden clubs from Houghs Neck, Wollaston and Squantum will be on hand to detail some of their projects and inform those interested in joining their clubs.

In the event of inclement weather, the conference will be held in the community room of the Park & Recreation Complex. For more information, call 617-376-1251.

After 28 Years, New Manager At Alfredo's

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

For 28 years, Ekaterina Koumentakos (Katerina) was a welcoming fixture as manager at Alfredo's Restaurant on Franklin St. with her warm smile and friendship.

But that all changed Tuesday at City Hall, when the License Board granted a change of managers from Koumentakos to John Hughes, Sr., who is also a chef at the restaurant.

She told the board that she wanted her name taken off the liquor license, and said she was accused of wrong doing and then was fired.

She added that she wished the new owners "the best of luck" and said she hoped that they keep the same employees that have worked with her for 28 years because they have the same "dedication that I gave to Alfredo's."

Chairman Joseph Shea said he and the board members received more calls about this change of managers than any other time and commended her "for all of those years."

Her brother sold the business last year to Helen Ventouris and Koumentakos devoted the time for the transition to her customers into the idea of new owners.

Prior to the meeting, Koumentakos who also lived above the restaurant said she now has "no job and no place to live."

in addition to restoring marshland and aiding the environment."

Murphy presented Foley and Moscardelli with certificates of appreciation from Pheasant.

Senator Michael Morrissey praised Foley and Moscardelli for their community service.

"It's important that we have people in the city that really contribute to it to make it a better place. These two people have!"

Morrissey presented each with a commendation from Congressman William Delahunt who was unable to attend.

City Council President Doug Gutro, a former student at Central when Moscardelli was principal, said he was "a role model."

"I remember as a student that his personality was magnetic. His presence and his greetings were welcoming and warm. He made the teachers proud to work with him and the students proud to go to that school."

"What P.J. has done in five years, few people have done in a lifetime," Gutro said. "His environmental leadership has earned him both national recognition and regional acclaim."

Councillor Leo Kelly, in whose ward Foley lives, said the latter was a most worthy recipient of The Sun Award.

"For the work you have done restoring acres of salt marsh. For your assistance with the city's renewable energy efforts."

"The restoration of the Souther Tide Mill and your efforts with local and state officials to improve water transportation for this city. You have been an outstanding friend of our environment and a remarkable leader in this community."

Gutro and Kelly presented Moscardelli and Foley with City Council citations.

State Reps. Steve Tobin and Bruce Ayers presented Foley and Moscardelli with State House citations.

Tobin recalled working as a broker at Central Real Estate founded by Moscardelli after retiring as Central Middle School principal.

"At Central you always dealt with a class act with Vinny and all the people who worked there. Real estate can be a very difficult business but whenever you dealt with Central Real Estate you had no worries."

"Straight forward, above board, great operation. Vinny, what a credit to you. You've been a wonderful friend over the years."

Commending Foley and Moscardelli for their community service, Ayers said:

"One thing they share in common is that they share the same principals and values: helping others with their knowledge and they both use their talent and experiences for the betterment of the community unselfishly."

"Quincy is a great place to live and it is because of people like P.J. and Vinny, and the past recipients of The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award that make it a great place."

Ron Ivil and George Mallett of the Quincy High School's 1959s Football Alumni Club of which Moscardelli is a spearhead member presented him with a special plaque "in appreciation of your many years of dedicated, outstanding service and charitable contributions to the Quincy community and to football."

A letter from Marty Finnegan, the 1988 recipient of The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award now living in California was read by Priscilla Ivil. He wrote, in part:

"Your life has been one of giving to the young people of Quincy and North Quincy. You were a teacher, a coach and an inspiring principal at Central, a very respected and beloved leader. Vinny, throughout your career and life, you have epitomized care and concern for others."

Lou DiMartini, who succeeded Moscardelli as principal at Central and is a 1955 classmate at Quincy High School, was out of state and unable to attend but sent a brief letter:

"I can attest to the many selfless deeds that Vinny has contributed to the community in his quiet unassuming way no matter the time, no the experience. Bravo to The Quincy Sun for recognizing and appreciating one of Quincy's special sons!"

Moscardelli was in the Quincy public school's system 20 years as a coach, teacher and principal at Central Junior High School where he retired in 1982.

In addition to his generous support of Quincy-North Quincy high school and youth sports, he is involved in other worthy causes.

Among them, the Muscular Dystrophy Association, sponsoring golf tournaments that have raised $85,000. His Central Real Estate Firm which he founded has contributed over $30,000 to Quincy public school programs.

Foley started his crusade to restore salt-water marshes in 1999 after finding household articles buried in seaweed near his Sea St. home backyard.

He organized a volunteer group of neighbors and friends and together they have restored 1000 acres of marshland along Houghs Neck and in Broadmeadows.

His latest volunteer project is helping to determine if renewable wind energy is feasible for Quincy.

Last August wind-measuring detectors were mounted on the 180-foot tower at the Quincy police station and on the 700-foot Quarry Hills Tower. Results are expected to be known soon.

STATE HOUSE CITATIONS were presented to P.J. Foley and Vincent Moscardelli by state Reps. Steve Tobin and Bruce Ayers.

SENATOR MICHAEL MORRISSEY (right) presented P.J. Foley and Vincent Moscardelli with Congressional commendations from Congressman William Delahunt.

MEMBERS OF THE Quincy High School 1950s Football Alumni Club of which Vincent Moscardelli has been a spearhead were among those honoring him. From the left, (seated) Gene Cavanaugh, Moscardelli, Ron Ivil and George Mallett. Standing are Priscilla Ivil and Irene Mallett.

FORMER MAYOR Frank McCauley, 2004 recipient of The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award, and his wife, Sandra.

Vin Moscardelli's Remarks

In accepting his Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award, Vin Moscardelli said in part:

"I have been most fortunate for my family and friends. It is hard to get through this because there are so many friends and family members here.

"A tremendous honor. I appreciate this city for the simple things. Drive by Black's Creek and see the beautiful swan there all the time. In the fall at Wollaston Beach, the different kinds of ducks. It's beautiful.

"There are not many places in the world that you can see that kind of stuff. From now to October looking for bass and blue fish. Simple things like that.

"I would be remiss if I didn't mention the wonderful people I've met in real estate and Quincy schools. The people I worked with in the Quincy schools... Great group of people. I appreciate them all a lot. Thank you!"

P.J. Foley's Remarks

P.J. Foley, in accepting his Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award, said in part:

"I really appreciate this. This is quite an honor being selected along with an educator (Moscardelli). The way his fellow teachers and co-workers rallied around him to nominate him for this award spoke volumes. It says so much about Vinny.

"We have scout leaders here today. Mark Berry and Marty Gordon from Troop 6 in Houghs Neck. It is one thing to design a project but it is something else to get in there and do it. It's hard work. The Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts have been great."

Foley praised Mayor William Phelan, the City Council, Dave Murphy of the

The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year award ceremony Sunday honoring Vincent Moscardelli and P.J. Foley will be shown on Quincy Access Television Ch. 8 Saturday and Sunday. It will be shown twice on each day at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m.

The ceremony was videotaped at a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

mayor's office, Congressman William Delahunt, Senator Michael Morrissey, Steve Perdios, of the Quincy Environmental Network, Sally Owen, who supervises a "Environmental Treasures" program.

"We are blessed in this city to be represented as well as we are. Mentioning those names, I'm standing on the shoulders of giants. All these people are doing all this work.

"One person who I've always stood on his shoulders and is still a giant is my father, Bob Foley. He taught me to lead by example.

"I want to thank my wife, Julie. We are all in this together. We are all in this together. You good citizens are part of the team."

COUNCILLOR Kevin Coughlin, Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Business Association and member of the selection panel, Tom Koch, whose late father, Richard Koch, Sr. was the 1987 recipient of The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award: George White, immediate past recipient and David Murphy, Chief of Operations who represented Mayor William Phelan at the reception.

Painting, Sewing, Cooking Classes For Youth, Adults At Houghs Neck Center

New painting, sewing and cooking classes for youth and adult levels are on the schedule at Houghs Neck Community Center. Youngsters, ages 7-12, can participate in an introductory sewing workshop on Thursday, April 26 from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. The course will introduce beginners to the use of the sewing machine. Weekly classes begin in May. Interested persons can call the center for dates.

A second new youth program will introduce youngsters 7-12 to cooking and baking, particularly sweet specialties and traditional breads. Introduction will be held Thursday, May 3, and the fee is $4. Interested persons can call the center for dates.

New adult programs in painting and sewing are also scheduled. A beginners and intermediate class for adults in acrylic painting will be held from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on the second, third and fourth Tuesday of each month. Supplies are needed and the fee is $65 for five classes.

Sewing machine classes will be held on the second, third and fourth Wednesday of each month from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Students will learn how to use patterns, select fabric and alter clothes to fit the subject.

Eventually, students can create their own fashions for themselves and their home. Participants must bring their own sewing machine, scissors, thread, bobbins, and large fabric scraps to the first class.

Fee for five classes is $56.

Mayor William Phelan provided testimony in favor of Senate Bill #2160, the City's Home Rule Petition to create a "Neighborhood Stabilization Fund." Mayor Phelan's Director of Operations Dave Murphy provided Phelan's comments to the Joint Committee on Municipalities and Regional Government on Monday.

The Neighborhood Stabilization Fund could provide grants of $400 to Quincy residents 62 years of age or older, who have lived in their current properties for 20 years or more. The City Council further amended the Mayor's proposal to create a financial means test for eligibility and to allow for disabled residents to qualify.

"The Neighborhood Stabilization Fund would recognize the significant impact that these people have made on our city and its neighborhoods," said Mayor Phelan. "These are the people that may have formed our neighborhood associations, parent-teacher organizations, youth sports leagues, and other community organizations and activities."

Added Phelan, "I want to thank Senator Michael Morrissey and our state representatives for their efforts in helping our city get this valuable piece of legislation passed. There are still some hurdles, but we will keep working to get this done and help our senior population."

7 Deadly Mistakes That Will Cost You Thousands When You Sell Your Home

Quincy - A new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9 Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market. The fact of the matter is that fully three quarters of homesellers don't get what they want for their home and become disillusioned and - worse - financially disadvantaged when they put their home on the market.

As this report uncovers, most homesellers make 7 deadly mistakes that will cost them literally thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable.

In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar."

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report, call 1-800-611-0351 and enter ID #1000. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

Call NOW to find out how you can get the most money for your home.

FOOT NOTES

by Joel Chariton, D.P.M.
Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Surgery
Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

HEEL SPURS

Any medical term with the word "spur" in it sounds uncomfortable, especially if that spur is on the bottom of your foot. A heel spur is a bony growth on the bottom of the heel bone. It can produce pain when standing, walking, or putting any other kind of pressure on the heel. It is caused by calcium deposits made because tissue on the bottom of the foot pulls away from the heel. The condition is more common in people with flat feet and high arches, and women are more likely to suffer from it than men because of the types of shoes women tend to wear. Your podiatrist can recommend orthotics and/or surgery to alleviate discomfort from heel spurs.

When your feet cause you pain, there are many steps you can take to get relief. The first, and probably most important, is a visit to your podiatrist. If heel spurs or other foot problems have got you down, let us show you how to do best—diagnose and treat the problem so you're back on your feet quickly and painlessly. Located at 999 North Main Street, Randolph, in the MEDICAL OFFICE BUILDING, we are currently accepting new patients for complete podiatric care in a friendly, comfortable atmosphere. Please call us at 781-896-3668 for an appointment. Office hours are also available at Quincy Medical Center and Milton Medical Building, Suite 221. I am affiliated with the Brockton and Good Samaritan Hospitals.

HINT: Many people confuse heel spurs with plantar fasciitis.

A Job Well Done

On Wednesday, April 18, Officers Michael King and Matt Hockney were dispatched to Walgreen's Pharmacy on Quincy Avenue on a call of "someone attempting to pass a bad prescription."

Dispatch informed the responding officers that the female suspect was wearing black jeans and a black leather jacket. Since the suspect was waiting for the prescription to be filled, Officer Hockney arrived on scene and conducted a scan of the parking lot. He noticed two people sitting in a vehicle and approached them.

The driver matched the suspect's description. Officer Hockney requested identification from the occupants and learned the passenger was the suspect's brother. The officers escorted the suspect back to the pharmacy to meet with the pharmacist.

The pharmacist told the officers the suspect had just been in the store and attempted to pass a prescription for Oxycodone. The pharmacist told the suspect she would have to wait for the prescription to be filled, then called the police.

The pharmacist told the officers he received a telephone call from a pharmacist at the Walgreen's in Weymouth, informing him that a woman had been in the Weymouth and Dorchester store attempting to use the bogus prescription. The pharmacist also said he called the doctor listed on the prescription and learned it was fraudulent.

The pharmacist then handed the officers the photocopy of the prescription that the suspected handed over to him. The suspect initially denied any involvement with the prescription, voluntarily stating she was diabetic and approached the pharmacist to ask him a question. After listening to the pharmacist's account of what occurred, the suspect revealed she was a drug addict and that she needs to go to a halfway house to take care of her problem. She then admitted to passing a false prescription.

The suspect, a 48-year-old Hull resident, was charged with "uttering a false instrument" and transported to the station for booking. Nice work!

According to Lt. Patrick Glynn of the Quincy Police Special Investigations Unit, Oxycodone is an outstanding medication utilized primarily for pain relief. The problem is it can also be highly addictive when not properly taken. It is becoming more common nationwide for individuals with substance abuse issues to commit crimes in order to support their dependency.

In addition to passing false prescriptions and purchasing drugs illegally on the streets, people have turned to stealing medications, whether it is from shopper's pocket books to family medicine cabinets. In this case, the suspect is facing four years in prison for passing the false prescription.

The suspect was desperate for the drugs in order to feed their habit, which can cost hundreds of dollars a day.

Everyone suffers from substance abuse issues — directly or indirectly — whether it is from collateral crimes, as a family member or as the abuser themselves.

Lt. Glynn stated the Quincy Police Drug Unit not only enforces narcotics laws, it also refers people for treatment for various programs.

If you know anyone who needs help with a drug problem, please contact the Drug Unit. Remember, as with any communication with the Drug Unit, you are not required to identify yourself.

Learn How to Boost Your Credit Score

We all have so many numbers in our lives: Social Security number, driver's license number, phone numbers, lock combination at the gym, credit score and more. While they're all important, it's the credit score that allows (or limits) many of the financial steps we take.

"CreditBooster: Ultimate Guide to a Better Credit Score" (InCharge Education Foundation, $19.95) is a book you'll want to read with a pencil in hand. "CreditBooster," in a very hands-on workbook format, will take you through every step of understanding and then improving your overall credit picture.

Whether you have a long credit history, are sinking in debt or are just starting out (or are newly married), you'll find help here:

- How your everyday actions, such as making one late payment, can impact your credit scores.

- How to read your credit reports, find any errors and communicate with the credit agencies to have those errors corrected. Have you ever found an error in your credit report and just left it there, taking the easy way out? Your credit could suffer if the information is incorrect. Still, dealing with the credit reporting agencies isn't always easy, but the book walks you through the easiest path to getting corrections made, and includes sample letters.

- How the credit scores are calculated and what counts most in determining your credit score.

- How to build your credit back after a divorce or bankruptcy.

- Determining your debt inventory and assets.

- How long it will take to get out of debt — If you have a number of credit cards and are only making the minimum payments, you'll find step-by-step help for setting up a budget that will help you pare away those balances.

The importance of your credit score becomes apparent in an illustration from the book showing how your credit score impacts what your monthly mortgage could be. Someone with a credit score of 760 and a mortgage interest APR of 5.8 percent will have a monthly payment of $1,275 on a $216,000 loan. Drop that credit score down to 620 and you'll likely be hit with a 7.44 percent APR and a payment of $1,502. That is, if you're given a loan. The lower your score, the more likely you'll be turned down.

David Uffington regrets that he cannot personally answer reader questions, but will incorporate them into his column whenever possible. Write to him in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475 or send e-mail to letters.kfws@hearstsc.com.

Hints For Homeowners

Getting The Most Out Of Windows

(NAPS) — You wouldn't think of running your air conditioner or heat with your windows open, but that's essentially what you're doing if you neglect to replace your windows when they need it.

The good news is that new home windows can make your home greener by providing energy efficiency.

healthier by preventing water intrusion and mold, and safer if you consider impact-resistant products. Plus, a retrofit project provides one of the highest rates of return — up to 90 percent, according to some surveys.

The following tips can help you get the most out of your window replacement project:

- Consider your local climate, such as the number of heating and cooling days, average humidity and amount of sun exposure. Visit Efficient Windows Collaborative at efficientwindows.org to compare actual costs by product and review available tax rebates. Ask your local power company about free inspections and information about rebates.

- Are you in an area susceptible to high winds such as hurricanes? Building codes require windows to meet certain performance criteria, depending on your location. Your local building department can be a resource for this information.

- Make this an opportunity to modify the look of your home. "WinGuard and non-impact PGT products are available in all shapes and sizes, such as circles, sunbursts and triangles," says window and door expert Debbie LaPinska of PGT Industries, manufacturer of custom windows and doors.

These three basic choices are products with wood, vinyl or aluminum frames. Vinyl units are most noted for thermal efficiency and durability, but require reinforcement upgrades in areas susceptible to extreme winds. Aluminum frames, ideal for coastal areas, are known for structural strength and low cost, but require upgrades to make them energy efficient. Wood frames are thermally efficient but tend to be high maintenance. They are best suited for low-humidity environments.

"It's important to think long term when evaluating a window replacement project," explains LaPinska. "EnergyStar options and energy-efficient vinyl frames can qualify you for tax rebates and reduce heating and cooling costs. In states where hurricanes are an issue, impact-resistant windows and doors, such as PGT WinGuard, can qualify homeowners for up to a 43 percent reduction in windstorm insurance.

Select reputable dealers and products and check references. Be wary of high-pressure telephone sales. You could end up with inferior products or pay too much. Visit pgtindustries.com or winguard.com for more information about replacing your windows and doors.

Patriots' Alexander Purchases Condo At Presidents Crossing

New England Patriots linebacker Eric Alexander recently purchased a condominium unit at Presidents Crossing Condominiums located at 87 Franklin St., Quincy Center.

Presidents Crossing is located adjacent to the John Adams and John Quincy Adams birthplaces, Quincy Adams MBTA Station and access to all major highways.

Michael Flavin of Flavin & Flavin Realty, representing the marketing of Presidents Crossing, said Alexander was attracted to the features of the condominium has to offer such as extra large units, quality upgrades like jacuzzi, oak floors, state-of-the-art kitchens, wine coolers, high ceilings and architectural lighting along with garage and ample parking.

The developer, Thomas Fitzgerald of Braintree, has built many developments that attract young professionals of all types.

Alexander, who wears number 52 for the Pats, says he's very happy with his unit and his decision to live in Quincy.

According to Flavin, Presidents Crossing is a 26-unit building with 70 percent of the units sold or under agreement.

Flavin & Flavin Realty invites the public for previewing available units Sundays from 1 to 3 p.m., or private appointment by calling 617-479-1000.

Alexander was born in Tyler, Texas, attended Stephen F. Austin High School and played college football for LSU where he was a member of the National Honor Society.

The linebacker signed with the Patriots in 2004.

Katie Brown Saves Time But Gets The Cleaning Job Done

Home Style Expert's Spring Cleaning Tips To Save Time

(NAPS) – Let's face it, while many of us love a tidy home, actually cleaning the house can be dreaded chore that's all too easy to put off. After all, with so many other things on our to-do lists these days, there just aren't enough hours in the day to get everything done.

In fact, according to a recent survey of American households conducted by New Best Ever Bounty paper towels and Synovate, Inc., more than 68 percent of Americans feel they just don't have enough time to keep their homes as clean as they would like.

To help Americans make cleaning less time consuming, Katie Brown, often hailed as "the doyenne of domesticity for Generation X" has created tips and tricks to get your home in tip-top shape. A home-style expert, Brown believes her tips can actually make cleaning fun.

"For many of us, cleaning seems like such a hassle," says Brown. "Believe it or not, there are ways to make this dreaded task more enjoyable. An easy way to stay ahead of the learning curve is to use the tools that instantly help you to be more efficient and effective."

Brown says one of her all-time favorite timesaving tips is to get the whole family involved with spring-cleaning and get the job done even quicker. "The beauty of having everyone help clean your home is that the job will be done much faster and more efficiently," says Brown. "And talk about efficiency, here's a little secret you may not know: One sheet of Bounty keeps working through multiple spring cleaning tasks—just rinse, wring, reopen and then toss in the garbage when you're done. No more cleanup after your cleanup!"

Bounty's clothlike durability and thick quilts make it an ideal partner for cleaning. It can be used for the full gamut of cleaning inside and outside, from attic to basement and kitchen to garage. Whether it's cleaning patio furniture, wiping down blinds or making the stove sparkle, one sheet of Bounty will keep working—until the job is done.

A novel way to make cleaning fun, says Brown, is to put on a favorite soundtrack while cleaning and "sing'n clean!" Or make a contest to see who can help clean the most with one sheet of Bounty.

Brown also offers these quick tips to help take the chore out of cleaning:

- Clean your home the most effective and efficient way and then celebrate the outcome!

- Dress in your favorite, comfy "cleaning uniform."
- Have snacks and refreshments ready for you and your little helpers—everyone can us an energy boost!
- When you are finished cleaning, give yourself a little reward.

Speaking of ways to take the dread out of chores, to encourage people to tackle cleaning with enthusiasm and make the most of tidying time, Bounty and Katie Brown have teamed up for the One Sheet Challenge. Log on to OneSheetChallenge.com and share your story of using one sheet of Bounty to tackle a tough task in your home for a

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

by Andrea Wyatt
M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

Q. I am 35 pounds overweight and inactive. I know I need to lose weight and have just joined a fitness club. I have never belonged to a fitness club before, and I'm not quite sure how to get started? I have the motivation to start, but I am not sure what to do first.

A. Congratulations on your decision to make your health a priority. Joining a fitness club can offer many resources to help you on your fitness journey. How you use your club membership after enrollment can determine the strides you make toward your fitness goals.

Entering a fitness center for the first time can make you feel uneasy. Not being sure of what to do or how to do it can sabotage your desire to get fit. First, take advantage of any initial sessions offered to you to meet with a fitness professional. Most fitness clubs will offer one to three sessions with a fitness team member to help you feel comfortable in the club, introduce you to equipment and classes available, and to show you a safe and basic exercise routine. This can make your transition easier.

Before the fitness team member, who should be a certified personal trainer, designs a program for you, he or she will discuss your past exercise and medical history. Your instructor should also ask that before beginning an exercise program, you speak with your physician about any medical conditions and obtain clearance to participate in all forms of exercise. If you are given any restrictions or guidelines to follow, be sure to mention them to your trainer.

If your facility does not offer introductory sessions with a fitness professional hiring a certified personal trainer can be a great investment. Not only can the trainer help you develop a goal-oriented and effective training program, but he or she will also make sure your program is safe. Providing motivation and accountability is another great reason to hire a personal trainer.

Try different classes and programs that might seem fun. Go early and ask the instructors about the structure of the class. Explain that you are new and will need them to keep an eye on you. Don't be afraid to ask questions; they are there to help.

In order to get the best out of any fitness facility you must USE its resources and programs. The best gym in the world cannot help you if you do not take the steps to walk inside and begin to work. Your success will depend greatly on how comfortable you feel in the fitness club.

If you are confused by equipment, indifferent with your exercise program structure or uneasy about the overall environment of the club, you will find reasons why you shouldn't go. Secure your success by finding something you enjoy and get started.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

A Dose of Prevention To Safeguard Kids

(NAPS) – Recent studies point to a new substance abuse trend among teens: taking excessively high doses of over-the-counter cough medicines containing dextromethorphan to get high.

While cough medicine abuse is no secret to kids—in fact, a survey by the Partnership for a Drug-Free America found that one out of 10 teens, or 2.4 million kids, reported taking cough medicines to get high—parents are largely unaware of the problem. And of the dangers.

When used properly, cough medicines that contain dextromethorphan have a 50-year history of being safe and effective. But when taken at 25 to 50 times the recommended dose, dextromethorphan can produce a hallucinogenic effect, as well as heart problems, high blood pressure, loss of consciousness and seizures. The dangers multiply when abused with prescription drugs and alcohol.

"Parents need to be aware of this new trend in teenage drug abuse," said Linda Suydam, President of the Consumer Healthcare Products Association (CHPA), which represents the makers of over-the-counter cough remedies. "We believe strongly in the power of education and are committed to raising awareness about medicine abuse and giving parents and other key influencers in teens' lives the information they need to stop this preventable problem."

To help educate parents and give them tools to help curb such medicine abuse, CHPA and the Community Ant-Drug Coalitions of America (CADCA) created a toolkit for communities across the country. A Dose of Prevention is designed to empower parents and other adults by providing statistics, outreach materials and event-planning ideas to help them educate others in their communities about the problem. You can learn about the toolkit at www.DOSEOFPREVENTION.org.

CHPA's Suydam offered the following tips to help parents combat teen cough medicine abuse:

1. Educate yourself about the problem and know the warning signs.

2. Talk to your teens about all types of drug abuse, including cough medicine abuse.

3. Safeguard your medicine cabinet; know what medicines you have and how many.

4. Monitor your teens' Internet use, as the Internet is a significant source of dangerous information that instructs kids how to get high.

5. Seek professional help if you think your child has a substance abuse problem.

"Leading substance abuse experts tell us that teens who talk about drugs with their parents are half as likely to use drugs," Suydam said. "This is a great incentive for parents to take an active role in talking with their teens about the problem."

Manet Health Center Helps Establish 'Road To Fitness'

Manet Community Health Center in collaboration with the Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation has established the "Road to Fitness" along Quincy Shore Drive at Wollaston Beach.

On Monday, April 23, the mile-marker sponsors joined the MA Department of Conservation and Recreation and Manet Community Health Center for the official unveiling of the "Road to Fitness" on Quincy Shore Drive.

Sponsors and participants included: Congressman William Delahunt's office; Arabella Insurance; Quincy Medical Center; Fallon Ambulance; Doug Gutro, City Council president; Alicia Gardner; Elizabeth Caddigan, Director of Nursing, QMC; Friends of Wollaston Beach; South Shore Y.M.C.A. and Ralph Yohe, president Telephone Worker's Credit Union and owner Tony Clam Shop.

Mileage markers have been placed an eighth of a mile apart running parallel along the ocean seawall as an incentive for walkers and runners alike to challenge themselves on their personal health and fitness program. The 12-inch by 20-inch granite markers will be permanently embedded in the newly installed sidewalk for two miles.

For more information, contact Lyn Dionne, Director of Development at Manet Community Health Center, or Cynthia Sierra, Director of Community Development at (617) 376-3030, ext. 253.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustlin, D.M.D.

SOMETHING TO SMILE ABOUT

No longer merely satisfied with having healthy teeth and gums, patients are increasingly turning their attention toward improving their smiles with cosmetic procedures such as bonding, tooth-whitening, contouring, the application of veneers, and tooth-colored replacement fillings. Cosmetic dentistry becomes of significant importance to patients who discover that, as they age, the lower third of their faces begins to droop and their teeth yellow. Cosmetic solutions for these age-related changes range from tooth whitening to bonding to contouring teeth in order to achieve a more youthful shape. Custom-made plastic or porcelain shells known as veneers not only improve tooth color and shape, they also augment teeth, filling in the shadowy corners of the mouth, thereby creating a more youthful smile.

Unfortunately many of use are insecure about our teeth—so we hid our smiles. But there are solutions to common dental problems, and we can bring your smile back. If you struggle with dental problems, you can count on our caring professionals and leading-edge technology to make your smile a work of art. We take pride in our ability to provide quality dental care in a relaxed and comfortable environment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where our trained professional staff works as a team to make your visits pleasant. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. Rely on us to answer all your questions about treatments and procedures. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. SPORTS

Pitching, Confidence Keys For Re-Tooling Quincy

By SEAN BRENNAN

The Quincy girls' softball team is young and will undoubtedly have to push through some growing pains this spring. But head coach Mike Sedar looks at the big picture and sees a team that may struggle early, but in the long run should benefit from the trials and tribulations they are bound to face this season.

"We are retooling this season," Sedar said last week. "But we are not rebuilding. We lost six starters (all pitching) from last year's team and this year we returned only four starters from a year ago. I have a very young team with five freshmen and two sophomores, but we have begun to build confidence and I am working on getting everyone comfortable with their roles on this year's team."

As is the case with every softball team, either high school, college or at the professional level, pitching is a key to a successful team. Quincy is in the process of finding that starting pitcher who can carry the team and dominate opponents.

"We need our pitching to develop," Sedar said. "Thusfar we are 0-2 on the season, but once our starting pitching develops and learns how to pitch, we should improve dramatically. Our offense and defense is solid, but unless we can get good pitching, this year could be more of a learning stage for us."

The Presidents will rely on the continued all-league play of senior catcher Brigid Kyle to help guide their young team. Kyle, who has already committed to play softball at Framingham State College next year, returns to her position as team leader and field general.

"Brigid is by far the best catcher in the Atlantic Coast League," Sedar boasted. "She is already committed to play at the collegiate level and should bring some stability to our team behind the plate. I expect her to help develop our young pitching staff and I think she will do just that."

Junior Marybeth Torpey returns this season at the shortstop position. Torpey is an all-around softball player who contributes on offense and defense with the best players in the area.

"Marybeth is as clean a ballplayer and shortstop as I have ever had here at Quincy," Sedar said. "She is a joy to coach and is only going to get better this year and next."

"Like I said before, we are very young, but it lines us up to get better this year and be very good for the next five years," Sedar said. "Our future is bright. One thing I

MEMEBERS OF THE 2007 Montclair championship team receive their trophies from Recreation Department Director Barry J. Montclair Wins Dunn Basketball Tournament

The annual high school-aged, citywide basketball tournament, known as the George Dunn Basketball Tournament, was won by Montclair Gym, 34-27, over Merrymount Gym.

Dean Zoia, supervisor for the Montclair Gym for the past 25 years, was the coach of the winning squad.

In the championship game, Montclair and Zoia hung-on to defeat Merrymount in a well-played game that was not decided until the final minutes of regulation. Montclair managed to pull out the win even after losing one of its top scorers, Anthony Pastore, to an ankle injury that sent him to Quincy Medical Center for treatment.

Playing well for Montclair were Dave Hennessey who stepped up big with 10 of his 12 points in the second half; Cheng Zeng (8 points); Andy Ng (4 points); Anthony DiPalmo (3 points);

Raymond Fang (2 points) and Simon Heung (1 point). Zoia cited Adam Heung for his tough man-to-man defense.

Merrymount, coached by Corey Awed and assisted by Paul Carson, showed solid balance on the scoring front in a losing effort. Adam Vranic had seven points in the first half and finished the game with a team-high nine points; Jon Mullin (7 points); Enis Liagami (6 points);

Montclair Wins Dunn Tourney

(Con't From Page 25)

Steve Lo (3 points) and Diego Arrendondo (2 points) rounded out the scoring for Merry Mount.

David Swanton, Chris Mariano and James Mullen all contributed with solid rebounding and strong zone defense.

Merry Mount had advanced to the championship game with a close 33-31 victory over Snug Harbor in the semi-finals of the single elimination tournament.

In that semi-final game, Snug Harbor was led by Pat Dean's 22 points, Jordan Blair's seven points and Gerald Nelson's two points. The Matt Lavery coached team received good play from Mark Kellham, Thomas Speed, Keenan Pinckney and Ausei Leusi.

In the other semi-final game, Montclair defeated a young Atlantic Gym team coached by Paul Griffith, 51-26. Lee Ng led Atlantic with 16 points; Huang Lu scored six points and Julius Balayo and Jerson Samson each scored two points. Tim Tran led the team in assists and rebounds.

In a first-round game, Snug Harbor knocked off Sterling Gym 35-33 despite J.J. Barros tossing up three second-half three-pointers on his way to a team high 11 points. Also scoring for Sterlig were Kevin Smith (7 points), Darnell White (5 points) and Victor Otodesell (4 points). Mike Curtin coached the team.

Montclair also defeated a strong Point Webster team coached by tournament veteran Jonathan Brilo and first-year leader Vincent Pastore. Richie Shea led Point Webster with eight points and Atikel Passley finished with five points. Also playing well for Point Webster were Rasheen Walker, Nino Martins, Aaron Cook, Tim Sullivan, Steve McNally and Glenn Henry.

The tournament marks the conclusion of the Quincy Recreation Department's winter gym program. The City Championship has been conducted for more than 40 years and in the high school division, players cannot have played on a varsity basketball team.

The tournament winner (this year it was Montclair Gym) receives the George Dunn Trophy, named for George Dunn a much-admired member of the Recreation Department's winter staff who passed away after his courageous battle with cancer.

The award has been in his name since 1998. In presenting the award, Recreation Director Barry J. Welch noted that Dean Zoia has worked alongside Dunn for many years, and both helped in shaping the participants in solid fundamentals of sportsmanship and winning the right way.

"It is fitting that Dean Zoia have his name engraved on the perpetual trophy that remains on display at the Recreation Office."

Welch presented the certificates to the finalist (Merry Mount Gym) and the individual trophies to all members of the Montclair Gym championship team.

Dan Sweeney New Manager Of Quincy Legion Baseball

Dan Sweeney of Milton takes the helm of Post 95's Legion baseball team for 2007. Sweeney is a 2003 graduate of Milton High School and he played for Quincy Legion in 2004. Sweeney also played two years of college baseball at Curry College.

Sweeney currently attends Nichols College where he is a regular on the varsity baseball team.

Quincy Legion Post 95 Athletic Officer Lenny Seitz is thrilled with the hiring of Sweeney:

"(Dan's) ability to instruct aspiring ballplayers in acquiring and developing solid baseball fundamentals, mechanics and techniques made him a leading candidate in 95's search for the right man to lead our team," Seitz said. "His passion for the game, work ethic and desire to excel was acknowledged by Post 95 when he was named 'Mr. Baseball.' This was the first and only time that award was given to any Post 95 player. His knowledge of the infield will be a great assistance in 95's development of promising candidates competing for those vacated positions."

Andy McAllister of Quincy is slated to assume the role of coach of Post 95 and will assist Sweeney in that capacity. McAllister graduated from North Quincy High School in 2004 where he captained the NQHS baseball team.

McAllister and Sweeney were teammates on the 2004 Quincy Legion team.

"Andy and Dan offer our players a solid working knowledge of baseball fundamentals," Seitz added. "Their work ethic, respect for the game and all out approach is totally focused on teaching and instructing players on solid baseball fundamentals, techniques and strategy. To Dan, this is not a volunteer position; it is part of his life's ambitions. His successes and track record with 95 will have a determining effect on his advancement in this field for years to come. He is motivated and more than ready to share his experience, knowledge and abilities in baseball to promote player development. His educational and baseball experiences make Dan an excellent source to be called upon for aspiring college athletes."

always do is scheduling a tough set of games to let me see where we are at each year. It helps with our development and experience."

Barry Nedham and Ron Barden round out the Quincy coaching staff and according to Sedar both are major contributors to the team.

"Barry Nedham is our pitching coach and has been a big part of our success in the past and will be in the future," Sedar said. "Barry is going to be a part of helping to develop our young pitching staff. Ron Barden is the assistant varsity coach. He has been unbelievable in helping get our team ready for the season."

Quincy played on Monday against Atlantic Coast League foe Plymouth North

High School and yesterday (Wed.) the team played against ACL member Whitman-Hanson High School. Their next game is today (Thurs.) on the road against Plymouth South High School.

Their next home game is scheduled for May 2 at 4 p.m. versus North Quincy High School at Mitchell/McCoy Field.

Danielle Thibeault's Marathon Run Benefits Baby Giovanni Guglielmo

By SEAN BRENNAN

A few weeks back in the March 15th edition, The Quincy Sun ran a story about Quincy resident Danielle Thibeault and her fundraising efforts for Baby Giovanni Guglielmo—a baby boy in dire need of a bone marrow transplant.

Thibeault's fundraising efforts culminated with her running in the 111th Boston Marathon on Patriot's Day in Giovanni's name. The major fundraising event for Thibeault and her cause was a benefit dinner that was held at the Sons of Italy in Quincy on March 30. Between the benefit dinner and numerous contributions to her website, Thibeault raised over $5,000 for this important cause.

"The benefit went very well," Thibeault said this week via email. "All in all, between that and the website donations I raised a little over QUINCY RESIDENT DANIELLE THIBEAULT (pictured here with Baby Giovanni) helped raise more than $5,000 in support of Giovanni Guglielmo—a baby boy in dire need of a bone marrow transplant. Thibeault held a benefit dinner on March 30 and ran the 111th Boston Marathon in support of a cure.

$5,000, and we also added 17 more bone marrow donors to the registry. To date, Michael and Christina Guglielmo-Giovanni's parents have added 6,855 donors to the registry since January."

At the benefit dinner, Giovanni's parents presented Thibeault with a Cannondale bicycle to help her to train for an upcoming triathlon she will be participating in at the end of the summer. Once again, she will be competing in Baby Giovanni's name.

"I will be competing in the triathlon in August," she added. "But the Boston marathon went very well. I finished in a time of 4:13:05 and had a few spectators with Giovanni signs along the course to help keep me motivated. The weather was actually perfect for the run, a little wet in the beginning, but by Ashland it was beautiful for running."

Thibeault would not have been able to raise awareness for Baby Giovanni and bone marrow disease without the help of many local businesses and contributions from friends, neighbors and everyone else who contributed to the cause.

"Some of the sponsors I would like to thank include Sean Hannon and the Outback Steakhouse for catering the benefit dinner," Thibeault said. "I would also like to thank Allure Spa; Gennaro's Eatery; Alba Restaurant; Nick's Pizza; O'Donnell's (Randolph); Reggie's Oil; Lander's Jeweler; F1 Boston (Braintree); Sun's Up Tanning Salon and the Quincy Athletic Club."

"I would also like to give a special thanks to my 'committee', Marie and Lauren Lumaghini and Katie O'Donnell," Thibeault said.

If any resident or local business would like to donate to the cause or help support Thibeault in her fundraising efforts for her August triathlon, you can contact her at (617) 529-5169 or reach her by email at dtbibeault9@hotmail.com.

SPRING CAR CARE

Keeping Your Car In Tip-Top Shape

The American Society of Appraisers suggests 10 steps consumers can take to enhance the value of their vehicle.

1. Keep it clean. Not only will you feel better about the car, but you will likely reap the rewards at trade-in time or when you sell. Have your car professionally detailed before you attempt to sell it.

2. Maintain your car. Find the manufacturer specifications in the owner's guide (that book in your glove box).

3. Go synthetic. When you do get that oil change, consider one of the well-known synthetic oils on the market. Synthetic oil is made so that all molecules are the same size; increasing flow and decreasing wear.

4. Fix what brakes. Little problems become big problems if ignored—get them fixed.

5. Fix those paint chips. Little paint chips grow into big paint chips; fix them before they grow.

6. Wax on, wax off.

Find a high-quality paste wax and spend the afternoon getting to know the nooks and crannies of your car. Wax your car at least once a year.

7. Get a yearly physical. Have a reputable mechanic do the inspection.

8. Park and walk. Don't grab the first space you see. Instead, park further away and walk the short distance. You'll reduce the chance for door dings or being a target of the "park-by-touch" crowd.

9. Don't be cheap. Use parts that are approved by the manufacturer or come from a source you trust.

10. Keep records. Keep a simple file of all of your bills, receipts, recall notices, e-mails and letters about your vehicle. Future buyers will thank you.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A sudden change of plans could lead to a misunderstanding with a friend or family member. Be ready to offer a full explanation of your decision. A past favor is returned.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Expect pressure from those who want you to change your position on a matter of importance. However, the determined Bovine will be able to withstand the bullying and win out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) It's time to stop dwelling on past disappointments and move on to other possibilities. By week's end, you'll be meeting new people and making new plans for the future.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A long-simmering situation between co-workers threatens to heat up and could create problems with your work schedule. Best advice: Consult a supervisor on how to proceed.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might have just learned that someone close to you is keeping a secret. And, of course, the Cat's curiosity has gone into overdrive. But be patient. All is revealed soon enough.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Don't give up. The recognition citing the good work you recently did will come through. Meanwhile, an opportunity opens up that can lead to a lot of traveling later on.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A financial crunch eases, but it's still a good idea to keep a tight rein on what you spend for nonessentials. Education becomes a major focus as the week winds down.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Recent encounters with stressful situations could require some restorative measures to get your energy levels back up. Talk to your doctor about a diet and exercise program.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) New connections follow changes on the job or in your personal life. But keep your feelings reined in until these relationships have a chance to develop.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Pay more attention to your aches and pains, and avoid self-diagnoses. Seek professional advice to make sure these problems won't lead to something more serious.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You love doing research and learning new things, so you'll be happy to know that education becomes a big part of your life at this time, and for some time to come.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your Piscean penchant for doing things logically could be challenged by an equally strong emotional reaction to a new situation. Best advice: Keep the two factors in balance.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love music and nature. You would be an excellent environmentalist, as well as a fine singer or musician.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Dr. Gary Gibbons Guest Sunday At Good Shepherd Church Service

Dr. Gary Gibbons, president and CEO of Quincy Medical Center, will be a guest during the 10:30 a.m. Sunday worship of the congregation at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 308 West Squantum St., North Quincy.

Dr. Gibbons will share his vision of how the Quincy Medical Center is becoming a proactive advocate in the community for health and wholeness. He will be available after the service for conversation during a fellowship hour hosted by the congregation.

tion.

Dr. Gibbons joined QMC in 2000 and was named chief of surgery in 2004. In September, 2005 he was appointed president and CEO after serving briefly as interim president and CEO.

As president and CEO, Dr. Gibbons has taken a leadership role in many community development programs in the City of Quincy. He serves on the board of directors for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and the Quincy 2000 Corporation.

tion.

In addition, Dr. Gibbons serves on the Board of Advisors of the Quincy Public School System's Community Partnership Program. In 2006, he received the Partnership Appreciation Award for the Quincy Public School System for his contributions and advocacy on behalf of the school system.

For more information, contact Pastor Nathan Phipps at the church office of Good Shepherd at 617-328-8348.

OBITUARIES

Everett W. Redmond Sr., 82 Owned Roofing Company

A funeral Mass for Everett W. Redmond Sr., 82, of Braintree, formerly of Quincy, a retired roofing business owner, was celebrated April 21 at St. Ann's Church, 757 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Mr. Redmond died April 17 at Southwood at Norwell Nursing Center.

He was president and owner of E.W. Roofing in Quincy for 50 years. He retired in 1998.

Mr. Redmond was a member of the Canadian-American Club in Watertown.

He enjoyed dancing and was a longtime parishioner at St. Ann's Church.

Born in Prince Edward Island, Canada, he lived in Quincy before moving to Braintree three years ago.

Husband of the late Frances E. (McCarron) Redmond, he is survived by a daughter, Linda Mezzetti EVERETT REDMOND, SR. of Holbrook; two sons, Everett Redmond Jr. of Brewster and Paul Redmond of Weymouth; seven grandchildren; and a great-grandchild.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Memorial donations may be made to ALS Foundation for Life, P.O. Box 504, Franklin, MA 02038.

Evelyn R. Allen, 83 Real Estate Agent

A funeral service for Evelyn R. (Filsinger) Allen, 83, of Quincy, formerly of Stratford, Vt., and Florida, was held April 21 at Wakefield-Lynnfield United Methodist Church, Wakefield.

Mrs. Allen died April 14 at Caritas Carney Hospital in Dorchester.

Born in Richmond Hill, N.Y., she had lived in Florida for 20 years before moving to Quincy in 2006.

She was a graduate of Sayville High School.

Mrs. Allen had been a real estate agent for Century 21 in Stratford and was active in United Church of Stratford.

She was also a volunteer with Stratford Auxiliary Fire Department.

She enjoyed vegetable gardening and crocheting.

Mrs. Allen is survived by her husband, Carl Allen; a son, Howe Allen of Dorchester; a sister, Gloria Powers of Lake Ronkonkoma, N.Y.; and a nephew.

Funeral arrangements were made by McDonald Funeral Home, Wakefield.

Regina M. Hussey, 66 Quincy School Teacher

A funeral Mass for Regina M. (Sullivan) Hussey, 66, of Quincy, a homemaker and a teacher in Quincy public schools for many years, was celebrated April 20 at Holy Trinity Parish in Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, 227 Sea St., Merry Mount.

Mrs. Hussey died April 16 at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center.

Born in South Boston, she had lived in Quincy for 35 years.

Mrs. Hussey was a graduate of South Boston High School and received her bachelor of science degree from Suffolk University in 1978.

She was an accomplished water skier who won several events with the South Boston Water Ski Club.

She ran in many road races and completed the Newport Marathon in 1978.

Even while battling cancer, Mrs. Hussey went for a run or walk every day at Wollaston Beach or Castle Island.

An original Quincy Youth Hockey member or "plank owner", she wrote weekly press releases. She was a regular at hockey rinks and ball fields, cheering on her children and grandchildren.

REGINA M. HUSSEY

Mrs. Hussey enjoyed gardening, cooking, boating, camping and traveling. She was an active member of the Merry Mount Association for many years.

Wife of the late Paul C. Hussey, she is survived by two sons, Michael Hussey of Marshfield and Paul Hussey of Quincy; a daughter, Kathleen O'Brien of Quincy; a brother, Francis Sullivan of Plymouth; a sister, Elaine Breen of Stoughton; and 10 grandchildren.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It has been said that happiness is impossible without some regard for the happiness of others and can so often be fostered by the smallest acts of kindness; acts that become instinctive and part of our nature if practiced from day to day.

It has also been said that happiness is to be found among life's common things. It is not the rare gifts, the possession of the few; it is not great wealth, great learning, great genius, or great power. It is not these things that make the possessors happy... It is health; it is friendship; it is love at home; it is the voices of children; it is sunshine. It is the blessings that are commonest, not those that are rarest; it is the gifts that God has scattered everywhere.

Those who use happiness as a tool for living appreciate, enjoy and find satisfaction NOW in everything they have and in everything they do. Their condition in life may not be ideal, and need not represent the limit of their ambitions. But being content for the present, they can plan with imagination and work with enthusiasm... Those who make happiness a goal and put it off into the future and those who make it something to struggle for may never know it... To make happiness a tool is never to lose it.

In Memoriam

James R. McGregor, III

Born November 25, 1940

Departed: April 4, 2007

Mr. McGregor died April 4 at Englewood Community Hospital.

Jim was born in Quincy, MA.

Son of James R. McGregor II and Evelyn (Winlock) McGregor, and younger brother of Diane.

He was raised with proper, and meticulous values, and retained those values through the duration of his life. Throughout Jim's life he acquired an enormous amount of lifelong friends. Jim always had an old school attitude, a look in the eye, a handshake, and you could take his word on it. His word was as good as gold; there was never a broken promise. He loved his family, and he loved his friends.

Jim was a longtime member of Local 4, and had a long-standing history with the elevator union, and its members.

He owned Vertical Transportation in Quincy for more than 25 years.

Jim had a true passion for the outdoors, he loved fishing, and hunting. In Jim's eyes, it was about spending time with friends and family. He was a true outdoorsman in every sense, in every way. Thankfully there were a few deer that narrowly escaped Jim's eagle eye, the rest of us outdoorsmen might now stand a chance.

Jim is survived by his wife, Delores McGregor of Lincoln, ME, who he loved dearly and accepted into his life. Jim is also survived by his sister, Diane Fernandez of Burlington, VT; his seven children, James R. McGregor IV of Pawling, NY, Stephen A. McGregor of Lynnfield, MA, Todd A. McGregor of California, Adam A. McGregor of Marshfield; Heather J.

JAMES R. MCGREGOR McGregor of Quincy, Kathy J. McGregor-Anderson of Holbrook and Julie McGregor-Hook of Lynnfield; and his first wife and mother of his children, Barbara D. McGregor of Quincy. Jim is also survived by his nine wonderful grandchildren, two stepchildren, Kelly and Dominic, and one step-grandson. His hard work and devotion to his family and friends will never be forgotten.

We said good-bye to Jim's physical body, but we need never say good-bye to his spirit. He remains with us always. He is no doubt looking down upon us, and smiling, as he will most likely continue on with his endless pranks. We are also certain he is standing proud and observing from above, the family, the legacy and the way his virtues have been carried on.

There will be a private gathering at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery for family and close friends, followed by a celebration of Jim's life at the Elks Club in Quincy, MA on May 12, 2007 at 1 p.m.

Memorial donations may be made to The American Diabetes Association, P.O. Box 1131, Fairfax, VA 22038-1131, or to The American Heart & Stroke Association, Memorial and Tribute Processing Center, P.O. Box 3049, Syracuse, NY 13220.

Anne Loughran, 90

A funeral Mass for Anne (Deveikis) Loughran, 90, of Easton, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated April 18 at Immaculate Conception Church, Easton.

She worked for Hood Rubber in Boston for many years. She later worked for Sigma Instruments in Braintree and as an engineer's assistant in quality control for the Polaroid Corp. in Cambridge and Norwood.

Mrs. Loughran was an expert craftswoman who specialized in needlecraft. She was a donor to veterans and animal charities and to St. Jude's Hospital. She also enjoyed her flowers and gardening.

Wife of the late Edward L. Loughran, she is survived by four daughters, Elaine Weeden of Fall River, Joan Hartnett of Hingham and Rosemary Harney and Kathleen Endriunas of Easton; 12 grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Cedar Grove Cemetery, Dorchester.

Funeral arrangements were made by Copeland-MacKinnon Funeral Home, Easton.

M. Theresa Griffin, 80

A funeral Mass for M. Theresa (Flaherty) Griffin, 80, of Quincy, was celebrated April 20 at St. Patrick's Church, Falmouth.

Mrs. Griffin died April 14. Wife of the late Leo J. Griffin, she is survived by a son, Kevin Griffin of East Falmouth; and three grandchildren.

She was the companion of the late Leo A'Hearn.

Burial was in Massachusetts National Cemetery, Broune.

Funeral arrangements were made by Chapman, Cole & Gleason Funeral Home, Falmouth.

LEGAL NOTICE

CITY OF QUINCY AND QUINCY-WEYMOUTH CONSORTIUM NOTICE OF SUBSTANTIAL AMENDMENT TO THE FY 2005-2009 CONSOLIDATED PLAN

On or about May 31, 2007, the City of Quincy and the Quincy-Weymouth Consortium will submit to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and a substantial amendment to their Five-Year (2005-2009) Consolidated plan for addressing Community Development; Housing; Homeless and Special Needs, as well as an analysis of impediments to fair housing, a suitable living environment and expanded economic opportunities for primarily low and moderate-income persons under Quincy's Community Development Block Grant and Emergency Shelter Grant and the Consortium's HOME program. Said amendment will allow for the implementation of infrastructure improvements including sidewalk reconstruction, handicap accessible ramps, new curbs, and associated street resurfacing work in the vicinity of the Water Street/Copeland Street/Granite Street/Smith Street intersection, or also known as Brewer's Corner. A draft of the amendment and the associated reports and plans will be available for viewing starting April 24, 2007 at the Department of Planning and Community Development, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169, and at the Thomas Crane Library, 40 Washington Street, Quincy, MA 02169. All comments must be received in writing to the Department of Planning and Community Development, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169 by May 25, 2007 at 12:00 PM.

Gas Leaks Seen As Major Threat To City's Trees

a specific timetable for repair and ratings of 3 put on a watch with no action needed.

Gas industry trade officials, also, have rejected the Trust's connection between the death of trees and gas leaks.

Tom Kiley, spokesman for the Northeast Gas Association, said that there is "fact and fiction around the issue of trees and gas. I don't think this is a widespread problem." He also contended that there is no scientific study linking dead trees and gas leaks.

Monday's committee meeting was held specifically to discuss Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin's resolution recommending that Quincy join the Shade Tree Trust.

In opening the meeting, Coughlin said one of his constituents claimed a connection between gas leaks and a dead tree in front of their house.

Shortly after that incident, Coughlin learned of the Shade Tree Trust and believes it may help protect Quincy's tree supply. Coughlin noted that the City Council just recently passed his resolution aimed at adding 2000 trees to Quincy's "Urban Forest" by 2012.

If the trees are dying, Coughlin questioned the logic of planting 2000 new trees for the gas leaks to kill.

Schlichtmann told councillors that officials in Saugus have committed to joining the trust while the Town of Marshfield is now considering it.

Under the terms of membership, the Shade Tree Trust would conduct a survey of the city's trees and determine the location of gas leaks and provide an evaluation and appraisal of the damage.

Ackley said, "When we find a leak, we notify Keyspan." In addition, the numbers are compiled along with the location of injured trees.

"In the process, we are picking up Grade 1 leaks," Schlichtmann said, noting each leak of any level is reported to Keyspan. "The level of leaks is far more than the industry has acknowledged."

ATTORNEY JAN SCHLICHTMANN (right), architect of the Massachusetts Shade Tree Trust, with Oversight Committee Chairman and proponent Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin.

Once the audit is completed and the number of injured trees is documented, then an appraisal of the value of the trees is made.

Schlichtmann said that "it takes a while for a five inch sapling to become a mighty oak," and that communities should be compensated for the loss.

Once all the documentation is complete, the Trust would seek damages from the company. The trust would retain 40% of all payments while member entities would be paid 60%.

If there is no settlement, there is no fee, said Schlichtmann, adding that the entire action would hinge on the contingency agreement. Schlichtmann also noted that Keyspan is a private company which could eventually be acquired by National Grid which is headquartered in London.

"We end up paying for our own recovery," said Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee who said the payments would just be charged to customer's bills.

Kiley who spoke for the trade association also said, "If a community does have a situation, they could work through their local gas company. Why would they want to have a middle man?"

Aimed At Eyesores And Health Hazards

Anti-Blight Ordinance Gets Approval

RESIDENTS OF GRANITE PLACE welcomed city officials last week when they designated the first senior traffic zone in the city, state and probably the country, in front of their building.

Traffic Reduced To 20 M.P.H

City Designates First Senior Safety Zone

Quincy became a major pioneer in senior citizen safety last week when Mayor William Phelan designated the city's first senior traffic zone at 125 Granite Street, a senior citizen residence.

"This is the first senior safety zone in the state," Phelan said as some two dozen senior citizens applauded.

The mayor held one of the city's new yellow, black and white traffic signs which warn, "Senior Zone, 20 m.p.h." Phelan also noted that a 500-foot section of the roadway will be painted, "SENIOR ZONE" and embedded with raised white crosswalks.

The City Council's Ordinance Committee Monday approved a new anti-blight ordinance aimed at forcing negligent owners to clean up eyesores and health hazards on their properties.

Prior to the vote, residents from Squantum, Wollaston Hill and North Quincy described abandoned houses and junk-filled yards that not only impact their real estate values, but, also, create dangerous nuisances.

The anti-blight ordinance, filed by Ward 3 Councilor Kevin Coughlin must now be approved by a formal City Council vote.

As part of the motion, councillors directed that the proposal be submitted for review and comment by the city's legal staff, officials in the health department, code enforcement, building department and other affected departments.

"It (blight) has a great impact on a neighborhood," Coughlin said as he introduced the proposed measure, then cited the more than a dozen residents who had waited two hours to be heard.

One resident after another described neighborhoods frustrated by an abandoned or neglected house, and in one case, storefronts, that damage the views and even endanger their homes or health.

In one area, a resident said she won't let her child near a neglected house because "raccoons are going in and out of that building."

At this time, residents say no one from the mayor's office, the health department or code enforcement appears able to help them. That, Coughlin said, is why the new law is needed, "to put teeth" in code enforcement.

Christine Zopkofka lives on the Strand near Wollaston Beach where one house has been boarded up for 13 years and another abandoned house with broken windows draws youngsters to the site to throw more rocks. Cats roam about unfettered.

"It just looks terrible," said Zopkofka, adding "We did have a nice little neighborhood. I'm so discouraged." She showed more than a dozen pictures of the two eyesores to council members.

Not only does Zopkofka have to pick up as many as 40 rocks at a time and look at the vacant houses but she's also paid dearly to live near them. Zopkofka has had damage to her car by rocks at a cost of $500 and damage to her house by the same rocks estimated at $1150. She'll pay $500 and insurance will cover the balance.

"The house is literally

The 18th annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy citywide cleanup will take place Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon with nearly 1,500 expected to participate.

The cleanup will include sprucing up the city's beaches, marshes, school grounds, parks and open spaces. Rain date for the event is Saturday, May 12.

Mayor William Phelan noted the significant impact this one-day event makes on the city's overall appearance and encourages residents to pitch in and join the ceremonial kick-off to the city's beautification efforts.

At Former St. Boniface Church New Germantown Center Seen Ready Next Month

Work on the new Germantown Neighborhood Center in the former St. Boniface Church, is expected to be completed in June.

When the Archdiocese of Boston announced it was closing the church, it came as a blow to the Germantown community, which had long depended on the church and its programs.

The closing, it was felt, would leave a significant void in the neighborhood.

But now, through the teamwork of Mayor William Phelan and the South Shore YMCA with a big assist from the South Shore Building Trades Council, the closed church is being renovated as the new Germantown Neighborhood Center.

The center currently operates out of a small classroom at the end of the Snug Harbor Elementary School.

Mayor Phelan and the South Shore YMCA worked together to purchase the building with Federal Community Development Block Grant monies. The YMCA committed to running programs out of the new facility and made a major capital investment to retro-fit the church building.

But the project was still well short of the funding needed to complete the work. The South Shore Building Trades Council then made a commitment to see the job through with volunteer union labor that could amount to close to an in-kind donation in excess of $800,000.

"I cannot thank the Building Trades more for what they are doing for this project and the Germantown neighborhood," said Mayor Phelan. "The talent and resources they are giving to this effort are making this dream a possibility. This is a perfect story of organizations working together to help our community."

"We are proud to be involved in another great cause that will benefit children and families in Quincy," said Robert Rizzi, president of the Building Trades Council. "This project shows organized labor's continued commitment to the families of this community and to the betterment of our neighborhoods."

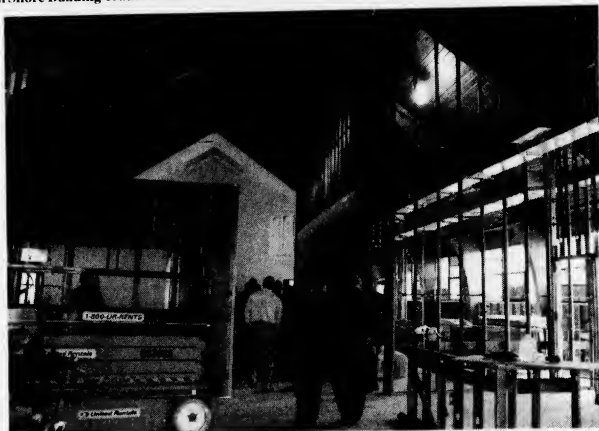

Phelan also pointed out the work done by Trades Council members at various park projects including the MAYOR WILLIAM PHELAN and Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly with leaders from the South Shore Building Trades Council who are volunteering to transform the former St. Boniface Church into the new Germantown Neighborhood Center.

The Germantown Neighborhood Center and Executive Director Kathy Quigley run a wide range of valuable programs in the Germantown community. Quigley has programs for young children, job training for adults, programs for seniors and she now runs the neighborhood food pantry out of the neighborhood center.

"There's more good that comes out of that neighborhood center than anyone could possibly imagine," said Phelan. "It is seen as a beacon of hope for many people and I want to thank the YMCA and the Trades Council for sharing our understanding of its importance to the Germantown community."

Phelan pointed out the work that Ward 1 City Councilor Leo Kelly and Dick Moynahan did in leveraging the support of the trade unions. He also thanked Trades Council President Rizzi for his work in gaining unified support from the members of his organization.

Running On Record Of Accomplishment Phelan Kicks-Off Campaign For Fourth Term

Mayor William Phelan, in front of a packed house Thursday night in the Quincy Lodge of Elks Tirrell Room on Quarry Street, announced he is running for re-election on his record of accomplishment.

Citing a major turnaround in the City's finances, from a $5 million deficit to a $11 surplus in just 4 1/2 years and an A+ bond rating for Quincy, Phelan highlighted the financial transformation as the foundation that other improvements are built upon.

Phelan emphasized Quincy's status as the 2nd safest city in Massachusetts, the implementation of all-day kindergarten, smaller class sizes, nicer parks and beaches, and new streets and sidewalks as accomplishments resulting from a stronger financial outlook for the city.

"Our accomplishments are based on our ability to properly manage our City's finances," said Phelan. "We had to straighten out the mess of the past and now we are seeing the benefits of sound financial planning and management. We will continue to build upon the success and achieve even greater goals in the years to come."

Phelan highlighted the construction of a new Quincy High School, the Crown Colony ramps, and the Quincy Center Concourse as significant projects set to break ground this summer.

He also championed the City's newest endeavor, an emergency efficiency program that will result in more energy efficiency at 41 municipal buildings, saving taxpayers millions in energy infrastructure costs in the years to come.

Phelan was introduced by his daughter Rachel, a senior at North Quincy High School. He was joined at the podium by his wife Tracey, daughters Rachel, Brianne and Kerry, and by his son William Arthur.

Rachel, in introducing her father, said:

"The lessons I have learned from my father are life lessons I couldn't have learned anywhere else. For example, to always do the right thing, no matter what the consequences, to always work hard, and to always stand up for what you believe in and you will persevere."

"On Sept. 18, I will be turning 18," she added. "I will register to vote at Quincy City Hall and I will have the incredible pleasure of casting my very first vote for my father, William Phelan for Mayor of the City of Quincy." Her poised speech was met with applause.

"We've come a long way together," he said. "And I ask that you stay with me and help me continue to move this city forward. But it will be a fight. Those same insiders want City Hall back. And I need your help."

"Those insiders want you to believe that this election is about them, and their long history of control over City Hall and departments throughout the city. Well, this election is not about them. It is about you. It's about your hard-earned tax dollars. It's about your public safety. It's about your family's public education. It's about your paved streets and sidewalks and your parks and delivery of basic city services to you."

After the event Phelan highlighted his plan for the coming months.

"Carry on the fight for the average taxpayer and always remember who it is that I work for and who elected me. It's time to roll up the sleeves and start knocking doors, hitting coffee shops and grocery stores and continue an open and honest dialogue with Quincy residents on how to best run their government."

MAYOR WILLIAM PHELAN kicks off his campaign for a fourth term saying he will run on his record of accomplishments. At the left are his wife, Tracey, daughter, Brianne, daughter Rachel, who introduced him, and son William Arthur. His daughter, Kerry, also attended.

There Could Be A Preliminary Election For Mayor

There could be a preliminary election for mayor.

Charles Dennehey of Willard Street, West Quincy took out nomination papers Tuesday the first day the papers became available.

Dennehey ran on stickers two years ago but that did not cause a preliminary election. He would have to become a regular candidate to create a preliminary election this year.

Others taking out papers Tuesday were mayoral challenger Tom Koch and Councilor at-large Joseph Finn.

Nomination papers will be available until July 31, the deadline for filing.

The case for consolidating your mortgage and home equity line into one loan right now

You had a great rate on your mortgage and didn't want to touch that. But there was something you needed or wanted money for. And adjustable home equity line rates were low-low-low. So you took one out. Now that line keeps adjusting up-up-up. You're feeling the squeeze and suffering with the squeeze. You are not alone. If you're worrying about where rates are going next and simply want to have the same mortgage payment every single month, consider consolidating your original mortgage and that home equity line into one new locked-in fixed rate 30-year loan while those rates are still near historic lows. Come see us and we'll help you figure out if consolidating is right for you. Or call Richard Coleman or Angela Blanchard at 617-471-0750.

Where Did Lassie Go?

Where did Lassie go?
And Fido, Rover and Spot?

Once the in-names in the canine world, they have virtually disappeared in Quincy as the annual dog license renewals show.

Carol Damiano and Brenda Fernandez in City Clerk Joseph Shea's Vital Statistics Department notice a big shift in popular names.

Going into this week-with Friday the deadline for license renewals-no Lassie had checked in. No Rover. One Fido. One Spot.

Those once popular names have been nudged aside by the likes of Max (56 so far), Buddy (53), Rocky (37), Lucky (37).

Some of today's other popular names: Bella (33), Maggie and Jake (29 each), Jack (26), Murphy (24), Brady (20), Charlie (19), Rosie (19), Teddy (12), Henry (12) Quincy (7).

Senior citizen, so far, is Shafer, a 17-year old male Bichon Frise. That's the equivalent to a 119-year old human.

And did you know there are a couple of new breeds? The Labradoodle and the Cockapoo. The Labradoodle is a cross between a Labrador and a poodle. And the Cockapoo is a cross between a cocker spaniel and a poodle.

The most popular dog?

It seems to be the Labrador, although those figures have not yet been finalized.

But there were more Labradors than any other breed at the Quincy Health Department's recent rabies clinic reports Michelle Bertoldi. Followed by Golden Retrievers, German Shepherds, Cocker Spaniels and Beagles.

The city's licensed population, which was 1,768 in 2002, has been steadily rising since. Last year's figure was 2,753.

Shea sees it reaching 2,800 this year.

Fee for a dog license he reminds owners is $10 until Friday's deadline. After that it doubles to $20.

And don't forget to bring an updated rabies vaccination certificate.

Volunteers Needed For Mass Memories Road Show At Library June 2

Volunteers are needed for the Mass Memories Road Show, which is scheduled to visit Quincy's Thomas Crane Public Library on Saturday, June 2.

The Mass Memories Roadshow is a traveling event at which participants and volunteers aim to protect and record historic photos of each locale through an online database.

The Road Shows are public events where residents interested in preserving local history bring in their pictures or documents related to local history.

Roadshow volunteers then scan the photographs and documents to the database. These documents and photographs become part of the archived online history base for that locale.

TACKEY CHAN has moved on from Senator Michael Morrissey's office to Atty. Gen. Martha Coakley's.

Chan, who had been Research Director of Legislation for Morrissey is now an assistant attorney general in the Division of Energy and Telecommunications.

He and Morrissey were together for 11 1/2 years with a friendship and mutual respect relationship.

"Tackey knew how to get things done," says Morrissey. "He's going to be hard to replace-big shoes to fill."

Chan returns the compliment.

"Mike was great to work for. I learned a lot from him. I would not have got as far if it wasn't for him and the staff."

That staff includes such reliables as former Ward 6 City Councillor Alicia Gardner, Director of Constituent Affairs and Jan Coughlin, office manager.

Chan, a Quincy resident, is treasurer of Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. and was recently appointed to the newly formed Asian American Association by Secretary of State William Galvin.

He is a graduate of Boston College High School, Brandeis University and New England School of Law.

Observers see a political career in his future.

RICHIE PEARSON, downtown Quincy's popular letter carrier, has what he considers the right job for him.

PEARSON

He loves to walk.

Each morning before he starts his route, he does a mile and a half warm-up with colleague Bobby Tagg. He then takes off on his route through Quincy Center and into the outskirts-something like three and a half miles.

And after work, when he gets home?

He's off on another three and a half-mile jaunt making it eight and a half miles for the day.

"It helps keep my weight in check," he says.

MBTA Job Lottery Open May 7 - June 5

The MBTA, seeking applicants for parttime jobs as bus operators, train attendants and motorpersons, will hold its 2007 Job Lottery beginning Monday, May 7 and ending June 5.

Only on-line applications will be accepted and may be made using the website www.mbta.com.

The MBTA Human Resources Department will have computer terminals available for walk-in applicants at the State Transportation Building, 10 Park Plaza, Boston, Room 4810, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The department will have a representative on hand to assist applicants with the on-line process.

"This is an excellent employment opportunity for those people who have an interest in working for the MBTA," said Sen. Michael Morrissey. "The entire on-line process takes about 15 minutes."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1909 REAL PHOTO postcard was mailed to Hilga Nilson in Providence by her father who was working in the Quincy quarries at the time. One of thousands of immigrant craftsmen who brought their skills from Europe to Quincy, this quarryman proudly stands next to an example of our famous granite that was extracted in blocks like this from the hills of West Quincy. The best-grained dark and blue granite found its use in the form of important monuments, building facades and memorial structures. Lesser grades and scraps were used for all types of stonework from breakwaters to house foundations and cobblestones. One can only wonder what beautiful polished Quincy Granite memorial standing today was fashioned from this block by one of Quincy's talented artisan stonemasons. The motto of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association was "Quincy Granite - Lasting Till Everlasting." To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Human Rights Commission Opposes Legislative Vote On Same-Sex Marriage

Open letter:

As state lawmakers consider a second legislative vote on same-sex marriage, The Quincy Human Rights Commission respectfully calls on area lawmakers Senator Michael Morrissey and Reps. Bruce Ayers, Stephen Tobin and Ronald Mariano to vote against any measure that would put fundamental human rights up for a popular vote.

Our Commission has invested much time and dialog with representatives from both sides of the debate. We've held city meeting on the issue and reflected on countless hours of testimony. We've heard from same-sex couples, some married and some hoping to marry. We've listened to clergy who vehemently oppose same-sex marriage. We've seen the passion on both sides of the debate and continue to respect all points of view.

Through it all, we are unanimous in our belief that tolerance must begin where agreement ends. Our experience with the issue suggests that intolerance for same-sex marriage stems primarily from the religious belief that homosexual relationships are immoral. It is primarily for this reason that we are asking area lawmakers to reject the petition.

There should always be freedom to exercise religion, but equally as important is the freedom from the establishment of religion. This is where our Commission feels the proposed amendment violates civil liberties and becomes destructive.

No constitution has ever been amended to take away existing rights. Our Constitution was created to protect everyone and it should not be changed to discriminate against anyone. Massachusetts could soon hold a public vote on the right of same-sex couples to marry. For the first time in our history, we would be allowing one group to vote to restrict the civil rights of another group of people. We respectfully and graciously implore you all to formally reject the same-sex marriage petition.

The April 19th Quincy Sun article about special activities for Point Webster students (page 8) incorrectly calls pi "Einstein's formula."

While Albert Einstein was arguably one of the most brilliant minds of the modern age, one cannot attribute pi to him. Pi is a mathematical constant equal to the ratio of a circle's circumference to its diameter. The online resource Wikipedia states that "the value of pi has been known in some form

"The humblest citizen in all the land, when clad in the armor of a righteous cause, is stronger than all the hosts of error." (William Jennings Bryan).

since antiquity."

As early as the 19th century BC, Babylonian mathematicians were using $\pi = 25/8$, which is within "0.5% of the true value." Wikipedia further states that the Greek letter pi was used to represent the number in a text in 1706.

Pi's approximate value is 3.14; this is why March 14th is called "pi day." March 14th (1879) is also Albert Einstein's birthday.

21 Appointments Beef Up Police, Fire Depts.

By FRANK McCAULEY

Appointments and promotions of 21 men will beef up and bring into existence the Quincy Police and Fire Departments.

The 21 men representing the largest single change in personnel for the two protective branches in recent years were sworn in this week at City Hall.

It will give both departments more manpower and flexibility and bring into existence a Police Narcotics Division to fight the ominous rise in drug abuse especially among Quincy teenagers.

Mayor James R. McIntyre, who made the appointments and promotions said, "They are needed and will increase the efficiency of both departments, giving Quincy a first class line of defense against both fire and crime."

SECOND PARKING HEARING TO BE SET MONDAY

The City Council will set a date for a second public hearing on the proposed 140 car municipal parking lot on Mechanic Street, at its May 5 regular meeting.

The second hearing is necessary, Council President J. Vincent Smyth noted, because of opposition registered at the first public hearing.

Proponents argued that the project is necessary for the "economic vitality of not only the downtown business district but the city in general."

Opponents countered that the problem is not one of a need for parking but one relieving traffic congestion.

Boston's Big Dig Project Topic At Crane Library May 8

Boston Globe reporter Sean Murphy will present the inside scoop on Boston's Big Dig at a free lecture scheduled Tuesday, May 8 at 7 p.m. at Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington Street.

Murphy's lecture entitled "Highway Robbery: The Rise, Fall and Collapse of Boston's Big Dig" traces the $15 billion Central Artery Project from its beginnings in the 1970's to the collapse of a tunnel ceiling in 2006.

During his presentation, Murphy offers a chronological outline of the Big Dig and individual sketches of the key players as well as related events. Murphy traces events from the earliest "Big Dig" proposal scribbled on a napkin through five gubernatorial administrations.

"This is the story of politicians, union workers and commuters who have been shoveling the Big Dig's dirt for over 20 years," says Murphy who has spent the past two decades breaking stories on the Big Dig. His published reports include coverage of the state's failure to hold contractors accountable in 2003.

Murphy, an award winning investigative reporter and editor, researches government documents for his stories. A law school graduate and member of the Massachusetts Bar, Murphy has taught journalism at local colleges and universities, most recently at Tufts University, Boston University, Suffolk University and Eastern Nazarene College.

NQHS Drama Club To Present 'You Can't Take It With You'

The North Quincy High School Drama Club will present its spring production of "You Can't Take It With You" on six evenings in May.

The shows will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, May 10, May 11, May 12 and the following Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 17, May 18 and May 19.

All shows start at 7:30 p.m. in the Black Box Theatre at the high school.

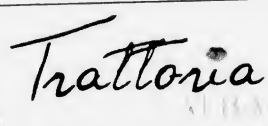

This play by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman tells the story of a delightful family named Sycamore who appears to be quite mad. However, as the plot develops, it actually appears as if the rest of the world is madder by far.

Tickets for each performance can be reserved by calling the Drama Club office at 617-984-8998. Ticket prices are $8 for adults and $5 for students and senior citizens.

Quincy Students Spend Spring Break In Service

Marissa Deegan and Julia Berberan, sophomores from Quincy at Saint Michael's College in Colchester, Vt., spent their spring break working as volunteers in the Big Thicket National Preserve in Beaumont, Texas.

Marissa, the daughter of Douglas and MaryLouise Deegan of Squantum, is a psychology major, and Julia, daughter of William and Julie Berberan of Quincy, is a sociology major at the Catholic liberal arts college.

Both are graduates of North Quincy High School.

Their work in the Big Thicket involved spending some of their time searching for a threatened species of Phlox and studying the diverse ecosystems that include flatland forests, cypress-tupelo swamps, flood plain forests, wetlands and slope forests.

For the past 21 years, the Saint Michael's College MOVE (Mobilization of Volunteer Efforts) program has sent across the country during spring and winter breaks to participate in a week of service.

Quincy Post Office To Extend Passport Hours May 5

The U.S. Departments of State and Homeland Security have made it more difficult for American citizens, as of Jan. 23, to travel by air to and from any part of the Western Hemisphere.

And as early as Jan. 8, 2008, travelers by air or sea to and from Canada, Mexico, Bermuda, South and Central America and the Caribbean may be required to present a valid passport.

Now the U.S. Postal Service is making it a bit easier to get one.

The Quincy Post Office, 47 Washington St., will extend its passport application hours on Saturday, May 5, until 4 p.m.

Under normal conditions, it costs a $97 fee to process a passport application for an adult, with $30 going to the Postal Service and $67 going to the State Department. For persons under 16, the fee is $82.

For expedited service, $60 is added to each application, payable to the State Department. Two-way overnight delivery is encouraged with costs made payable to the U.S. Postal Service.

In order to help the process go smoothly and efficiently, the Postal Service recommends the following steps be taken by the passport applicant:

- Bring proper proof of American citizenship — a certified birth certificate, a previous U.S. passport, a certificate of citizenship or a naturalization certificate. A hospital-issued birth certificate alone won't do.

- Bring proof of identity — a previous U.S. passport, a naturalization certificate, a certificate of citizenship or a current valid driver's license, government ID or military photo ID.

- The passport application requires two recent identical photographs of the applicant. As a convenience, photos can be taken at the Post Office for a $15 fee.

- To save time, an applicant can download a passport application at www.usps.com/passport to complete an application beforehand.

'Last King Of Scotland' Among Movies This Month At Library

Library officials recently released the May movie schedule planned at Thomas Crane Public Library, Washington Street, Quincy Center. These free movies will be shown on a Thursday evening with a 7 p.m. starting time.

On May 10, The Last King of Scotland will be featured. This film depicts the reign of Ugandan dictator Idi Amin through the eyes of a fictional Scottish doctor who served as Amin's personal physician beginning in the early 1970's. The account traces Amin's reign from its beginnings to Amin's final years of genocidal tyranny. Running time: 121 minutes. Rated R.

On May 24, the feature film will be The Bothersome Man which depicts the adventure of Andreas who arrives in a strange city with no memory of how he got there. He is then presented with a wife, job and apartment, but soon learns he can't get out. In an effort to escape, Andreas teams up with a character called Hugo. The film chronicles their effort to escape to "the other side" and features beautiful music. Running time: 95 minutes. Rated for ages 17 and over.

VOLUNTEERS FILLED this 10 cubic yard dumpster with trash that littered the shoreline of the Neponset.

Giving Back On Earth Day

Volunteers Clean Neponset Shoreline

On Saturday, April 21, in honor of Earth Day, a group of hard working Quincy residents spent the morning cleaning up trash that littered the shoreline of the Neponset River.

Over a dozen volunteers filled a 10 cubic yard dumpster with tires, propane tanks, and garbage bags full of plastic bottles, Styrofoam cups, and snack wrappers. Nearby friend of the river, Boston Scientific, donated the dumpster for the event. Panera Bread donated bagels for the volunteers.

The clean up effort focused on the segment of the Neponset along Commander Shea Boulevard near the MBTA bridge.

Carly Rocklen, outreach director for the Neponset River Watershed Association (NepRWA), said, "What an inspiring event — weather, food, and camaraderie.

VOLUNTEER LAURA BILOTAS and others carrying trash away from the river's edge.

People put in a lot of effort."

The clean up was organized by the Quincy Environmental Network (QEN) and NepRWA. For more information on future events like this, visit the QEN website (www.QENet.org) or the NepRWA website (www.neponset.org).

needs of orphaned and abandoned children around the world."

She will remain a Staff Associate in the Office of Quincy Constituent Services where she is now also Executive Director of the Affordable Housing Trust Fund.

"Combining doctoral studies with a challenging job in the Office of Constituent Services means that I could not be a fully contributing member of the School Committee," she said.

Stice said she received a letter of acceptance into the doctoral program from Lesley University two weeks ago.

She said her decision not to seek another four-year term on the School Committee was a difficult one.

"Serving on the Quincy School Committee has been the greatest honor of my professional life," she said. "For 16 years, I've loved working with students, families, a wonderful staff and my colleagues on the Committee. From all of you, the Quincy Public Schools family, I have learned and grown."

The doctoral program will help lead her to the role of consultant with an agency such as CARE, UNICEF, World Health Care or a governmental agency.

"Working with the Quincy Public Schools has been both an intellectual challenge and a labor of love," she said.

"I have many people to thank for that privilege, but my deepest gratitude is to the voters of Quincy who have entrusted me with the education and well-being of children. For me there is no higher calling. Thank you from the bottom of my heart for all you have given me."

Stice was first elected to the School Committee in 1991 and served as vice chairman from 1997 to 1999.

She has been chairman of the Policy Sub-Committee since 2000 and is a member and past chairman of the Budget and Special Education Sub-Committee.

Stice has also been a member of the Massachusetts Advisory Committee on Assessment for Early Childhood Education Programs and the Advisory Committee on Assessment for Parent-Child Home Programs.

She served as Executive Director of the Commission on the family from 1995 to 2002. She founded and continues to supervise a prize winning transitional housing program for homeless Quincy families and the Parent to Parent newborn home visiting program.

She founded and chaired the Local Council on After-School Activities, assisting in bringing more than 3 million into the Quincy public schools for before and after-school programs.

She was coordinator of the Quincy Teen Mothers Program and a director of Survival, Inc., a member of the Impact Quincy Advisory Board, and College Courses, Inc. Board, and the Community Policing Commission.

Stice has received the Quincy Public Schools "Distinguished Educator" award, the Impact Quincy "Community Hero Award", the Mayor's Commission on Woman's "Outstanding Service Award." She has been nominated three years for "The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award."

And as she purposes to fill out her last term on the School Committee, she says:

"I look forward, as you do, to the continued success of a great school system that truly values children and exemplifies excellence, integrity, compassion and innovation."

Her decision not to seek re-election will leave an open-seat on the School Committee, which is expected to attract a number of candidates.

The two other incumbents up for re-election this year, vice chairman Elaine Dwyer and Dave McCarthy, are expected to run.

Nick Puleo, president of the Ward 5 Neighborhood Association announced his candidacy before Stice disclosed her plans to step down.

Nomination papers for the city election became available Tuesday at City Hall.

COMFORT DOLLS knitted for HIV/AIDS orphans in Rwanda are displayed Lois Ferrazzi of Quincy. Each of the five-inch dolls is different and was knitted by hand. A Vermont organization, CHABHA, hopes to send 1000 dolls to Rwanda in the near future.

Knitting Comfort Dolls For Orphans In Rawanda

Quincy's Lois Ferrazzi recently invited 30 knitters to a Sunday afternoon tea and asked them to make dolls.

She wanted little dolls, just five or six inches high, with brown faces.

Ferrazzi called the little dolls, Duduza or comfort dolls, and told her students that the dolls will be shipped to Africa soon, thanks to a Vermont charity called CHABHA.

In Africa, Rwanda to be specific, the comfort dolls are given to youngsters orphaned and suffering from the AIDS epidemic that is sweeping their continent. Duduza is the original African name for comfort dolls.

After hearing the story of the Duduzas, Ferrazzi's knitters went to work like elves. The group actually produced 35 little dolls before the tea was cold at The Snow Goose Yarn Shop in Milton. Now these dolls and other dolls made in Cohasset and other New England towns will go to Rwanda.

Actually, CHABHA's goal is for many, many more Duduzas because there are never enough Duduzas to meet the demand.

According to CHABHA's founder, Susanna Grannis, she brought 250 Duduzas to Rwanda recently and 1000 children showed up. Now Grannis is hoping to send 1000 Duduzas to Rwanda with the next shipment planned for October.

Grannis describes her trip and CHABHA's goal and other projects on the CHABHA web site, www.chabha.org. The website also includes the pattern for making the comfort dolls.

CHABHA headquarters is located at 2766 Windham Hill Road, Windham, VT 05659.

Mayor Phelan Proclaims

Community Development Week 'A Great Success'

Quincy's participation in National Community Development Week was "a great success," announces Mayor William Phelan.

This year's theme was "Building Stronger Communities: Telling the Story, Promoting the Success." Community Development Week was recognized April 9-13.

Since 1975, the Community Development Block Grant program has provided more than $64 million to the City of Quincy for community development programs related to housing rehabilitation, first-time homebuyers, public facilities, economic development, public services, handicapped accessibility, affordable housing, and public works projects.

"The Community Development Block Grant program has greatly contributed to the overall improvement of the physical, economic, and social conditions of our city," Phelan said.

Several recent events highlighted the positive impacts Quincy Community Block Grants and similar federal programs have had in Quincy.

The Community Development Week celebration began April 9 with a first anniversary tour and reception at the Germantown Neighborhood Center Food Pantry.

On April 10, the Ward 4 Community Center joined in the celebration by unveiling its new "Pokemon Club" to the delight of several dozen area children.

Three events held April 11 culminated Community Development Week. The day began with the mayor joining the city's Fair Housing Committee to announce the recent updates made to the city's Five-Year Housing Plan, and to announce the opening of the public comment period with respect to the plan.

Later that same morning, Phelan gave the keynote address at a ribbon-cutting ceremony at 356 Washington St., which is the city's newest affordable housing project that will provide permanent supportive housing for at least five chronically homeless individuals.

When speaking about Quincy's 10-year plan to end chronic homelessness, the mayor said, "We are almost four years ahead of schedule in creating this much-needed supportive housing. The chronically homeless population in the City of Quincy has decreased by nearly 56 percent in the past three years."

Along with a federal McKinney-Vento grant of more than $450,000 and a partnership with Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore and Rockland Trust, the City of Quincy is committing $350,000 of HOME Program funding to this project. In addition, the Massachusetts Department of Housing and Urban Development is committing over $1 million to this project.

Phelan was joined on the dais by Taylor Caswell, the New England regional director of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Three community development awards were presented at the Washington Street event.

The first annual Mayor's Community Service Award was presented by Mayor Phelan to Sandra Buckley, director of the Squantum Community Center.

Robert Card of the city's Housing Rehabilitation Office, was given an award for having served the City of Quincy for nearly 20 years under the Community Development Block Grant Program.

The third award was presented to Nancy Callanan, community development director of the City of Quincy. Her plaque was presented in recognition of her leadership in managing Quincy's Community Development Block Grant Program with a positive attitude, clear focus, and an open mind.

On April 12, the Atlantic Neighborhood Center sponsored an English as a Second Language (ESL) class and senior luncheon.

Community Development events ended April 13 with two programs in the northern part of the city. The Beechwood Community Life Center started things off with their "Friday Fitness Fun" program. An open house of the senior program at the Squantum Community Center followed.

In all, the City of Quincy showcased eight community development programs over a five-day period.

By the end of this fiscal year, Quincy's Community Development Block Grant Program will have created a suitable living environment for an estimated 12,132 low- and moderate-income residents and will have provided decent affordable housing for 150 individuals and four households. In addition, an estimated 7,155 individuals and four businesses will have directly benefited from economic opportunity programs under the umbrella of the Community Development Block Grant Program.

"I am very pleased with the large number of people we are able to serve under this program, and I was delighted to see so many people attend the events of Community Development Week," Phelan said. "It is very important for our citizens to know about these vital programs, which assist us in moving Quincy forward."

SANDRA BUCKLEY (center), director of the Squantum Community Center, is the first recipient of the first "Mayor's Community Service Award." She was presented the award during the city's observance of Community Development Week. With her are Mayor William Phelan and Nancy Callanan, community development director for the City of Quincy.

Mayor Urges Year-Round Cleaner, Greener Philosophy

Mayor William Phelan urges Quincy businesses and residents to adopt a "Cleaner, Greener" philosophy not just for one day, but for the entire year.

"We are a large city, yet we maintain a great small-town neighborhood feel here in Quincy," said Phelan. "Quincy residents are extremely proud of their city and it's reflected in the way people maintain their properties. As I've said before, a beautiful yard can make a beautiful neighborhood and beautiful neighborhoods can make a beautiful city. I thank all those folks who work hard, and it is hard work, to keep their properties looking great."

Quincy recently conducted a successful "Yard Care Conference" where experts are brought in to coach residents on how best to maintain their lawns, gardens, and flowers.

This Saturday, more than 1,000 residents are expected to fan out across Quincy's parks, playgrounds, beaches, marshes and open space areas to give the city a spring cleanup.

"Combining the resources of city government with the passion that people have for their neighborhoods, we are able to accomplish a great deal in one day," Phelan said. "But Cleaner, Greener is about more than one day; it is an attitude that needs to be adopted throughout the year to keep our city looking great."

Specifically, Phelan called upon coffee shops and convenience stores to assign personnel to keep the outside of their stores consistently clean.

"One bad neighbor can have trash blowing throughout a neighborhood," Phelan said. "If there is a problem in your neighborhood, I urge you to contact the City Code Enforcement Officer immediately."

The City Code Enforcement Officer can be reached at (617) 376-1450.

McNamee To Seek Second Term On Council

Ward 6 City Councillor Brian McNamee will formally announce his candidacy for a second term Thursday, May 31, at a fundraising reception from 5:30 to 8 p.m. at the Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

McNamee pledged to place continued focus on city finances, insuring community input and oversight of development, promoting traffic and pedestrian safety and ensuring that neglectful property owners do not destroy the residential fabric of neighborhoods.

"We have made some significant progress in improving the quality of life in Ward 6," he said, "but much work remains."

Among the achievements of his first term, McNamee listed an agreement with

BRIAN MCNAMEE

Boston's Health and Hospital Unit to stop using the North Quincy T station as a transportation hub for clients of its homeless shelter on Long Island.

Individuals from Boston seeking the services of the shelter are now transported to and from the JFK/UMass MBTA station.

McNamee also focused on what he called "the forgotten streets" of Ward 6.

"Many residents who live on streets where some level of neglect has crept in, know that I have aggressively utilized every resource available to me to ensure that their streets are clean and safe," he said.

"I have worked closely with the rooming house task force, the code enforcement officer, community police officers, the Park Department, Traffic and Public Works to insure the maximum delivery of city services."

All are welcome to attend the May 31 reelection fundraiser regardless of contribution, but if you wish to contribute to McNamee's reelection campaign, the suggested amount is $100 per person.

New Krabby Joe's Owner Gets License

The License Board Tuesday granted a common victualer all alcoholic license to Kristie Hendrikson, now owner at Krabby Joe's, 30 Victory Rd. with the same restriction that all patrons are off the property by 11 p.m.

The board granted a pledge of license presently held by Di-Jo Corp.

Hendrikson, who also owns Siro's adjacent to Krabby Joe's at Marina Bay told the board she has been "cleaning up and painting the establishment." She said they are also replacing the floor and roof.

She said the name will remain the same and that the menu will be gourmet pizza only.

Because of a noise issue Hendrikson said she plans to drop down sides on the side facing residents in the West Building.

Plans for opening are set for mid May.

Phelan Announces Comprehensive City Environmental Initiative – 'Act Locally'

Mayor William Phelan utilized the celebrations of Earth Day and Arbor Day to announce a five-point plan to help improve our local and global environment.

Labeling his new initiative, "Act Locally", the plan lays out steps that Quincy's local government will be taking over the next 12 months to help improve the environment.

"This issue of the quality of our environment is too important to simply rely on other levels of government," said Phelan. "We must act in unison with Federal and State officials to improve our world and our local environment for the better. There are important steps that we can all take, as a government, as neighborhoods, and as individuals, that can collectively make a major impact on the quality of our local and global environment."

Phelan announced that the five major tenants of the "Act Locally" initiative include:

- Developing renewable energy sources, possibly including a wind turbine (s), photovoltaics, and harnessing of landfill gasses, in Quincy in the next 24 months.
- A major overhaul of all city infrastructure to improve the City's energy efficiency by more than 25% in the coming 18 months and reduce water usage efficiency by more than 30%.
- Reconstituting the city's "Recycling Committee" to educate and encourage residents to recycle more and waste less.
- Adopting procurement policies that focus on more environmentally friendly products.
- The preservation of precious remaining open space.

Renewable Energy:

The City of Quincy has been working with the Massachusetts Technology Collaborative for the past three years to investigate the possibility of creating a wind turbine in Quincy. An initial site assessment of the entire city, led to the installation of wind testing equipment being installed on existing towers at Quarry Hills and the Quincy Police Station. The data gathering process will be completed this summer and the results will be analyzed to determine feasibility.

"Mayor Phelan has been a strong supporter of renewable energies since first taking office," said P.J. Foley, local environmentalist and volunteer for the Mayor's renewable energy team. "He has provided us the opportunity to deliberately explore the possibilities of wind energy in Quincy with an eye toward our environment and saving taxpayers' money."

Information from the anonymous is currently being analyzed by the wind laboratory at U-Mass Amherst. Comprehensive wind data should be available to the City in the summer of 2007.

The Center for Technical Education is undertaking a project that will install a small wind machine and solar panels to help educate students about the importance of renewable, natural energy sources. North Quincy High School currently has solar panels on their roof. The project is being undertaken with significant help from IBEW Local 103 and other business partners.

Energy Efficiency:

Quincy is poised to become the first community in Massachusetts to take advantage of new State law to save millions of dollars in improved energy efficiency. An energy audit has been completed at 41 municipal buildings. Improvements to boilers, lighting systems, heating systems, windows, doors, and buildings will save the City millions of dollars in the coming years.

Added Mayor Phelan, "not only will we be improving the learning and working environments in our schools and public buildings, we can make a huge difference in the energy consumption in our city. Quincy is proud to be the first community to undertake such a comprehensive energy efficiency effort."

The city is aiming to invest $32 million in energy efficiency upgrades. The capital investment will be paid for in large part by the captured savings on lower utility bills and more accurate accounting on water usage.

Mayor Phelan thanked City Council President Doug Gutro for his support and advocacy for such an energy efficiency program.

Recycling:

Mayor Phelan will appoint 10 citizens to the Quincy Recycling Committee in early May. The committee will be charged with examining ways to further promote and encourage recycling in the city of Quincy.

The City of Quincy has recently launched a program to end co-mingling of trash and recyclable materials at every school building.

"Above all else, it is imperative that our schools set the example of what we should do in our community," said Superintendent Rick DeCristofaro. "I want to thank the DPW and all our principals and administrators for helping lead our children down the right environmental and educational paths relative to recycling."

The City of Quincy saves hundreds of thousands of dollars on an annual basis by separating recyclable materials from its general waste.

Environmentally-Sound Procurement:

Mayor Phelan is introducing an Executive Order requiring that the Purchasing Department issue specific standards and guidelines pertaining to environmentally friendly products that avoid toxins and help protect our future environment. City Ordinances have been adopted in Buffalo and Seattle that create a similar mandate for municipal purchasing.

"We are a major consumer of goods and products and our purchasing can impact our employees, students, and the public in general," said Phelan. "I want to ensure that cleaning products, light fixtures, lawn maintenance products and other goods are purchased with the health and safety of our people and environment foremost in our minds."

The City has already undertaken steps to improve the environmental quality of its purchasing by installing light fixtures with the lowest standard level of mercury.

Protecting the Local Environment:

Mayor Phelan has advocated for the further protection of open space through the City's new Community Preservation Act, adopted by voters in November 2006. The Mayor has suggested the Committee consider a short-term bond to allow for the immediate protection of valuable open space permits.

The City purchased a bird sanctuary at Lot 23 in Marina Bay and a waterfront boatyard in Houghs Neck two years ago.

Added Phelan, "It is my hope that the Community Preservation Committee considers the unique opportunity to protect our valuable open space in perpetuity. In a dense city, trees and open space have an increased value in producing cleaner air and providing a natural space to put the bustle and jar of the city far away."

Mayor Phelan will include money in the Fiscal Year 2008 City Budget Appropriation for additional tree plantings. Last year, the Mayor included tree-planting money in the budget for the first time in decades. The City is finishing up a contract that will plant more than 400 new trees citywide. Quincy has been recognized as a "Tree City USA" by the National Arbor Day Foundation in each year of Phelan's term in office.

Phelan thanked the residents who have long lobbied for the local environment in Quincy, and specifically highlighted the efforts of the Quincy Environmental Network.
